The Lebanon County Agricultural Fair takes place this week commencing to-day (Wednesday.) It is expected that the display will be an unusual fine one as the Fairs of the neighboring counties, as well as the State Fair have all been postponed to next year. There will also no doubt be an immense number of people in attendance for the same reason, as well as the fact that the proceeds of the Fair will be applied to the benefit of the sick and wounded so diers. These considerations will make the fair a great success we think.

behold again. Our marches from Poolesville hither have been nurried and fatiguing, and our Division on this apes defeat and capture.

At various places along the route, we have been kindly treated by the inhabitants. As we near the Pennsylvania line, the Union feeling becomes more perceptible, and although but a few days ago we were met by nothing but scowls and insults, a kind and loyal people now greet us with smiles and favor. Nor does this feeling exist in appearance alone. The kind hearted hospitality with which they treated the "boys," assured us that they felt what they professed, and would

At Rebrersville, Md., especially, did the Union feeling seem to be deep seated. The goodly inhabitants visited our Camp, and by kind words and friendly tokens, gave much encouragement to hearts dispirited by the reverses of the past month. A hearty welcome, also, met our "boys," in the shape of bread, pies, biscuit, &c., whenever they visited the village, while apple dumplings, or some other delicacy, was the share of those who were fortunate enough to get to town at meal time. The Rebels passed through the soon as the Union troops made their appearance, another (which had been buried, in order to save it from destruction) was hoisted, and, when we off, was still proudly floating upon the breeze.

We had tarried at this place, only about two lays, when "orders" came to march once more. As is usually the case, we were awakened before dayl ight, and commanded to prepare breakfast,

Our rest on this occasion, however, was destined to be of very short duration. General Couch sont un 'Orderly' with "orders' for us to countermarch, and by 10 o'clock, that night, we could look back upon the whole journey of the morning retraced, with a worrisome addition of five miles more,—the whole effort reducing us to a state of prostration well calculated to receive a good night's rest. This boon, however, was not grant. ed, oppose all Negro Equality, who will three day's rations, and again aroused before day not support Cameron for the United States to prepare for the march. At early dawn, the tramp commenced. It continued, interspersed with several, rests, for a period of six or eight hours,—the linule bringing us to a point near the battle-field. The lines were still formed, and the straggling shots of the pickets augured, as we then imagined, the certainty of another fight on this occasion; but in this opinoin we were mistaken. Rumor has it that the rebels sent in a flag of truce, demanding an armistice in order that they might bury their dead .- which, barring its extension to our own ideas, instead of limit ing it to their request, was granted thom.

The next morning, (the Rebels having retreated during the night) we commenced our march towards Sharpsburg. Passing over the battlefield, we were enabled to see some of the terrible Schaylkill county, as the Democratic nomines wrocks of war. Mutilated corpses, recking with the stench of decomposition, stretched for miles along the road, and we have heard it said that, The Convention then proceeded to nominate and select candidates for the various offices to be voted for this fall, with the following results:

Limbers of cannon and groups of artillerymen near the spot where their guns had been planted—their budies actually torn to pieces—exhibit the terrible penalty these Rebels have paid for their treachery, and, as we looked upon a headless trank, or noticed the shattered limbs of the dead that were strewn along the road, we could not forber a shudder at the actual transfer of the dead that were strewn along the road, we could not forbear a shudder at the actual results of war's desolation, and bestow a thought upon the souls that, imbued with the who has received several amony mous worst passions of our nature, and without a moment's warning, had gone into the presence of a notes warning him of danger to his

Nearly every house bore the marks of some cannon hall or shell, while numberless bullet holes in the fences and weatherboarding attest the awful rapidity with which the buttle must have raged. As we passed through, "ye fair ladyes" greeted us with gracious smiles,—whilst the "Star Spangled Banner" was floating in all directions.
