

THE CORNER.

RUBBING IT IN.—The following trick was recently played in New York:—A Jeweller who shall be nameless was lately applied to by a nice looking young man to make him a gold ring, having in it a blade very delicate and keen, concealed, except on a narrow scrutiny, and opening with a spring. The Jeweller agreed to furnish it for thirty dollars. On the appointed day the purchaser appeared, paid the stipulated price, which was fobbed very complacently, and with an air of high satisfaction put it on his finger. The Jeweller of course, very innocently, asked what he wanted to do with such a ring—"Cut open pockets with it," was the frank reply. "Ah!" said the Jeweller, doubtless in amazement, "how can you do such things as that with such an instrument, and not be detected?" The performer replied his art consisted in diverting the attention of people from every thing that looked like a design upon them—that he rubbed his forehead, adjusted his hat, etc., and then the discovery came too late.—He then bade him good morning, and went away. Shortly after the Jeweller, as he walked round behind the counter, was thus accosted by the clerk: "Why, what is the matter with your pantaloons? How did you tear them so?" "Nothing that I know of," was the answer, "where?" "Why, just look!" When lo! his pocket was found to be out by the artist, with his new instrument, and his pocket book gone, with only thirty dollars just paid, but about four hundred beside! The last seen of the Jeweller he was in search of a detective in the hope of recovering his money.

Error loves to walk arm in arm with truth, to make itself thought respectable. The moon is so old that, if it is made of green cheese, it is unquestionably inhabited. "I'll pay your bill at eight," as the blind man said to the doctor, who had in vain attempted to cure him of his blindness. At a fancy ball in Paris a marchioness is described as appearing covered with ivy. The character she represented is not stated, but we surmise it must have been an old ruin—her husband! What are the points of difference between the Prince of Wales, an orphan, a bald head, and a gorilla? The Prince is her apparent, an orphan has no'er a parent, a bald head has no her apparent, and a gorilla has a hairy parent.

Anxious to be a Widow.—The Columbus Journal says that while many wives in that vicinity are anxious to keep their husbands' names off the enrolling officer's books an instance of the opposite kind happened in the Second ward, where a Dutch woman was found who was exceedingly anxious to have her husband's name enrolled notwithstanding he was over fifty years of age. She begged the enrolling officer to place his name on the list, and as an inducement to have him do so, she said she had lived with the man long enough, and she wanted to get rid of him. Her efforts were unavailing.

A contraband was lately sworn in as cook by corporal of the Iowa First Cavalry. Among other things he swore to do was the following:—"You do solemnly swear that when this war is over you'll make tracks for Africa, almighty fast." "Yes, massa, I do that, I always wanted to go to Cheerargo."

The last Paris fashions mention a love of a bonnet of white crinoline, lined with Mexican blue crape. On the front, a bouquet of corn, flowers and wheat; another of the same inside, with a double ruffle of white tulle and blue crape. The curtain, which is pointed, is composed of blonde and crape; strings of blue ribbon.

A lady who passed a five cent piece in one of the horse cars in Boston, last Tuesday, was very much confused by the wondering gaze of the other passengers. The conductor examined the piece very carefully to satisfy himself that it was genuine.

Babies are the tyrants of the world. The emperor must treat softly; baby sleeps! Mozart leave his nascent requiem; baby sleeps! Phidias must drop his hammer and chisel; baby sleeps! Demosthenes be dumb; baby sleeps!

Ferguson, the poet, died of starvation. A splendid monument adorns his grave, and on it is written: "He asked for bread and you gave him a stone." The finest sarcasm ever uttered.

The oldest of three brothers residing in Moultonboro', N. H., recently married a quite young girl; his next younger brother married the girl's mother, and the youngest took for his wife the grandmother.

One hour lost in the morning will put back all the business of the day; one hour gained by rising early, will make one month in the year.

"Ma, if you will give me an apple I will be good."

"No, my child—you must not be good for pay—you ought to be good for nothing."

Prentice thinks we have in the field enough regiments and enough officers, but not enough men.
