vanced stages of the disease.

O wide is the field of its usefulness and so numerous of the conset of its cures, that almost every section of the country abounds in persons publicly known, who have been restored from alarming and even desperate diseases of the lungs by its use, When once tried, its superiority over avery other expectorate is to apparent to escape observation, and where its virtues are known, the public no longer hesitate what antidote to employ for the distressing and dang-rous affections of the pulmonary organs that are incident to our climate. While many inferior remodies thrust upon the community have fulled and been discarded, this has gained friends by every trial, conferred benefits on the afflicted they can never forget, and produced cures too numerous and too remarkable to be forgotten.

We can only assure the public, that its quality is carefully kept up to the best it ever has been, and that it may be relied on to do for their relief all that it has ever dune.

Some eight, years ago one of my daughters seemed to be in a decline, and little hopes of her recovery were entertained.
