BEATTY & PLOTTS.

The Beatty & Plotts celebrated Golden Tongue
PARLOR ORGAN
is acknowledged by professors of music and celebrated organists to be the leading Parlor Organ now in use. Testimonials and cards of honor are constantly being received in favor of them. We tapped a few and wish you to read them:—

ANTHONY, N. J., Jan. 25, 1873.
Messrs. Beatty & Plotts, Gents—Your Organ, sold me, gives entire satisfaction.
It beauty of tone and style of workmanship are seldom if ever surpassed. Wishing you success in your business, I am, with respect,
Prof. M. H. BEATTY.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., Feb. 11, 1874.
I have one of Beatty & Plotts' Golden Tongue Organs. It is an excellent instrument, fine tone and full power.
I like it better than any I have heard.
M. H. HANPEL, M. D.

LAURY'S STAT'N, Pa., Jan. 27, 1874.
I have had Beatty & Plotts' Organ since August 14th, 1873; it gives the highest satisfaction, and has proved all that it was recommended by the prop'r.
JOE HENRY.

SLATINGTON, Pa., Feb. 6, 1874.
Beatty & Plotts' Parlor Organ I like better than the Standard, and it gives better satisfaction, as I find in my travels.
Prof. FR. V. MAYER.

ST. CLAIR, Pa., Dec. 6th, 1873.
Messrs. Beatty & Plotts, Gents—I have received the Organ, as sent by your firm to me, and I have had it examined, and it gives ample satisfaction.
Hon. JOHN SINEY.

MAHANOY CITY, Pa., Oct. 16, 1873.
The Beatty & Plotts celebrated Golden Tongue Parlor Organ is by far the best Parlor Organ in use. I have carefully examined it, and find its tone, workmanship and durability to be the best I ever saw, and I can with pleasure recommend it to any in want of a first-class parlor organ. Prof. O. H. USGER.

Messrs. Beatty & Plotts, of Washington, N. J., are gentlemen of enterprise, and whose presence would be a credit to any community.—[Hackettstown, N. J., Herald, 1873.]

WASHINGTON, N. J., Sept. 5, 1873.
To Robert Morgan, Pottsville—I am happy to state that the instrument gives entire satisfaction, not only to myself but also to the teachers of the Seminary who are better judges.
Rev. A. M. JELLY.

We say, after careful and costly experiment, it is with pleasure we introduce the "Golden Tongue," knowing it possesses many advantages over all others manufactured. The tone excels in fullness, purity, and the thousands of testimonials which are being constantly received, are evidence that our efforts have been eminently successful.

The Two Ways.

In the county of Lancashire—that busy hive of industry—it is customary, as it is in some other counties, on Christmas Day to give to the poor people in the workhouses a treat, in the shape of an extra dinner, with plum-pudding, etc.

In the year 1869 a gentleman, who is a member of one of the Board of Guardians in that county, went up to the workhouse in the union where he resides, in order to see how the poor people fared. The dinner time was fixed for 12 o'clock. It was about a quarter before twelve when the gentleman referred to arrived at the workhouse.
He spent the intervening minutes which were to spare in walking around the Louse. He went into a room where sixty or seventy men sat anxiously waiting for their dinner. Taking up a position in front of the fire, from whence he could obtain a sight of all their faces, he spent one or two minutes in looking round. After a short pause he broke silence:

"I was looking round," said he, "to see if there was any one here that I knew; but I think there is not, unless it be that man there," pointing to a tall man on his left.

"No," said the man, "you don't know me."

"I think I do," replied the visitor.

"No, you don't," responded the man.

"You used to live at Summerseat," said the visitor, "did you not?"

"No, I never did," answered the man.

"But," said the visitor again, "did you not work on the East Lancashire Railway there, when they were making it, some thirty years ago?"

"Aye, I did," replied the man.

"I thought I knew you," was the answer of the visitor.

Another voice, proceeding from a man behind the other one, called out—"I used to wurch at Summerseat thirty years back, an aw geets lots o' brass."

"What," said the visitor, "lots o' brass. How is it you are here then?"

The man did not speak, but he answered in a more significant way than if he had spoken: raising his hand to his mouth, he made motions as if he were emptying a glass.

One of the paupers at the other end of the room, upon seeing this, called out—
"It's dthink uz sendz us 'o here."

"Now," said the gentleman, who was still standing near the fire, "just listen to me for a moment. Our friend there says that thirty years ago he was working at Summerseat, 'getting lots o' brass.' Thirty years ago I was a boy working at Summerseat, 'getting eighteen pence a week,' and here we both meet to-day. Our friend there is a pauper, I come as a poor law guardian, but I never did that," (lifting his hand to his mouth as if in the act of drinking.) "Never," continued he, "spent a penny upon drink in my life. When I had got my wages, I used to think that down here (putting his hand into his pocket) or else in my mother's pocket was the place where the money ought to go, and not in the pocket of the publicans. And instead of spending my evenings in staring into quart-pots and put-pots in a public-house, I used to go to the evening school or the Mechanics' Institute, to get a knowledge to fit myself for the battle of life and here I am to-day, and there our friend is."

The man who had previously called out, again shouted in tones louder than before—
"It's dthink uz sendz us 'o here."
The workhouse where this incident occurred was the Bury Union Workhouse. The visitor was Mr. William Hoyle, the author of "Our National Resources, and How they are Wasted," Mr. Hoyle was then a factory lad, earning his eighteen-pence a-week. He is now a large employer of labor, well known on the Manchester Exchange, and is a writer of great reputation on economical and social questions.—British Workman.

—The following dialogue was over-you noticed when a strange darkey comes here dat mounts to sumfin, dis white folks say, 'who is that colored man?' but the cullod people say, 'who is dat nigga?' Jim, a nigga ain't got no sense, no how." "Dat's so, Si, she's —"Oh!" said a love-sick Hibernian, "what a recreation it is to be dying of love! It sets the heart aching so delicately there's no taking a wink of sleep for the pleasure of the pain!"

—Some scientific wretch has been suggesting that, when a physician supposes his patient to be dead, he ought to pierce the heart of the supposed departed with a long needle, to make sure work of it. As if doctors did not know how to make sure work of their patients with out such experiments! We protest against any innovations upon the established method of medical procedure in facilitating our exit from this sublunary sphere.

—"There is an old darkey in one of the back counties who lately voted for local option, as he understood it, but not as the public generally understand it. The story, a true one, runs thus:
At a recent election a friend asked the old man how he was going to vote.
"Oh," he replied, "the Republican ticket, I always vote that ticket."
"But how are you going to vote on local option?" The darkey looked up and asked: "What's that?" "Why, local option is putting down liquor," was the reply. "Lors a massy," said the darkey, "of course I vote for local option; I votes to put down liquor to the old price, six-penny-bit a pint!" Not very unlike his paler brethren is that very same old darkey.

—The plaintiff in a recent case at court was asked what he expected to gain by such a suit. His reply was,
"You have heard of the man who, going down the river in a flat-boat, moored the boat one day to the bank, and, going up into the timber, found a man engaged climbing first one tree, then rapidly descending (and occasionally falling,) and running to another tree and repeating the operation. Continuing this for some time, the flat-boat man approached the stranger (being curious to know the object of his strange manœuvres), and asked what he was doing. The stranger, pointing to a woodpecker on the topmost branch, asked the flat-boat man if he saw that woodpecker. 'Yes,' said the other, 'but you certainly do not expect to catch it?' "No, of course not," said the stranger, 'but I will worry it!'" —It is said that the Chinese declare that Noah's real name was Ah Boo, and that he resided in Pekin. Unforat it exactly what his name was.

His door plate also seems to be missing, and he had a very careless way of neglecting to mark his shirts; so we are baffled in that direction. We have inquired at the libraries for a copy of the Pekin directory of that date, to see if Noah really figured in its pages; the only copy any of them had was out.
For our part, we do not believe that his name was Ah Boo, or that he resided in Pekin. These Chinamen really claim everything that is going, from gunpow-er up to newspapers. If we give them any ground on the Noah business, the first thing we know they will be out with the assertion that the ark was insured in the Pekin Mutual Company, and that Noah used to give the Pekin newspaper people free tickets to go in and see the animals perform.
