JOHN S. LENTZ. EMANUEL LAZARUS. Lehighton, April 23, 1874.

We would just say, for the benefit spondent of the Herald did not write that paragraph in Friday's issue Mr. Huffsmith, and that instead of telling the people to make sure their sta-tements , should do so first himself. Lehighton correspondent Morning Her-ald, April 20th.

We ask the correspondent's pardon for stating that he wrote the paragraph in question; but finding it with other items under the Lebighton head, we very naturally inferred that if he did not write it, he, at least, "wrote at it."

FOR THE CARDON ADVICATE. MY RUINED HOME.

BY JOHN PAGENCY. Oh, my home, my happy home! Now lonely and forsaken. And left a prey to moth and rust, My dearest idol taken!

The form I watched with zealous care, And held in such fond keeping. Deep in the dark lone grave to-night In her green educh is sleeping.

I gaze on the hetrogenious pile-Each dear remembered token; Oh, God. I cry, why most I live

So wretched and heart-broken? Why, when the wolf has entered in, And severed love's sweet tether, Why must I dally strive to keep

Life's broken threads together. And yet I know in reasoning thus My fettered soul is sinning; Better than I my Father sees The end from the beginning And though we may be parted here Kach golden link be riven-I hope to meet, to part no more,

Died.

In yonder home in Heaven.

In this borough, on the 19th inst., of phthisis pulmonalls, Martha J., wife of John S. Lentz, and daughter of Mr. Lazarus, of Audenried, aged 24 years, months and 20 days.

Thursday at noon a large number of relatives, neighbors and friends congregated at the residence of Mr. John S. Lentz, corner of Iron and Northampton streets, to pay their last respects to the mortal remains of Mrs. Martha J. wife of Mr. John S. Lentz. After prayer had been offered by Rev. J. T. Swindells, of Beth I here, in the house; those present repaired to the lecture room of the Lutheran Trinity church, which had been kindly ten lere I for that purpose by the officers. The sermon was preached from John xt., 25 & 25, by the Rev. W. Coffman, paster of the Methodist church, the Revs. D. K. Kepner and J. T. Swindells participating in the services, both there and at the grave. The commodious lecture room was insuffiiente to accommodate the many sympathizing friends who had gathered. Much sorrow was manifested that one who had greatly endeared herself to all who knewher should have died so early. Especially do we feel for him who thus soon has lost a dear companion and for the tender child that is now motherless.

MERCHANT TAILORING.

When in the course of wear and tear of every day life it becomes necessary to dissolve our connection with the suits that have done us so much services in keeping us warm and free from exposure, there is one place where we find consolation and a friend indeed in our distress. Yea, a place where we can safely put our trust—where there is no need of fear that we shall be cheatd, unsuited or unsatisfied -where the fabric is strong and the manufacture superb - where the prices are just and and the style all that can be desired. There is a charm about an easy, glove fitting, elastic suit, that is seen and observed by all men. "Where did get that superb suit of c'othes?" "W did you secure such a splendid fitting garment?" is often asked. There are many tailors, and a number of them are undoubtly fair samples of the genus homo and also a credit to the craft; but how generally tailors fail in the fitting of garments to the human form; how often a good piece of goods is spoiled in the fit; how sadly and delectedly manya man wanders about the streets, feelng the shame the tailor has caused him. in allowing a poor job to go out of his shop, and he the wearer of it! Perhaps his lady love has even filted him in consequence of his forforn appearance.

" -- Dress makes the man; The want of it the fellow."

Not that a man is less a man for wearing plain clothes, but when he is "dress-ed up" he should indeed be dressed not having his cloths hang like bags around him, and wrinkled and distored in all sorts of shapes, but that he should be ciad in fitting garments. Taste should be shown both in the colors and make-up of his suit. Many high priced goods ere af such outlandish colors and styles that a man's character is judged by his foolishly selecting those odd goods. A man is known by the company he keeps, and if he insists upon fraternizing with ill-looking and ill-fitting clothes, he will not make his "mark," as a man of taste, that's positive. To be looked upon as possessing the requisite attninments of a tasty gentleman, he must select cloths of suitable colors for his ciothing and have them made up in firstclass style by Laury & Peters, (post office building).
