Read This!

"Spare a copper, sir; I'm starving," said a poor, half-clad man to a gentleman who was hastening homewards through the streets in the great city one bitter cold night. "Spare a copper, sir, and God will bless you."

Struck with the fellows manner and appearance, the gentleman replied: "You look as if you had seen better days. If you will tell me candidly what has been your greatest failing through life, I'll give you enough money to pay your lodging."

"I am afraid I could hardly do that," the beggar answered, with a mournful smile.

"Try man, try," added the gentleman. "Here's a shilling to sharpen your memory; only be sure you speak the truth."

The man pressed the coin tightly in his hand, and after thinking for nearly a minute said--

"To be honest with you, then, I believe my greatest fault has been in learning to 'kill time.' When I was a youngster, I had kind loving parents, who let me do pretty much as I liked; so I became idle and careless, and never once thought of the change which was in store for me. In the hope that I should one day make my mark in the world, I was sent to college; but there I wasted my time in idle dreaming and expensive amusements. If I had been a poor boy, with necessarily staring me in the face, I think I should have done better. But somehow I fell into the notion that life was to be one continued holiday. I gradually became fond of wine and company. In a few years my parents both died; and you can guess the rest. I soon wasted what little they left me; and now it is too late to combat my old habits. Yes, sir, idleness ruined me."

"I believe your story," replied the gentleman; "and when I get home, I will tell it to my own boys as a warning. I am sorry for you, indeed I am. But it is never too late to reform. Come to my office to-morrow and let me try to inspire you with fresh courage."

And giving the man another piece of money, and indicating where he could be found, he hurried away.

Never "kill time" boys. He is your best friend. Use him well. Don't let him slip through your fingers when you are young, as the beggar did. The days of your boyhood are the most precious you will ever see. The habits you get into will stick to you like wax. If they are little ones, life will be a pleasure, and above all a success--I mean a true success. You may not grow rich, but your life will be a real success, nevertheless.

Never, on the contrary, you waste your early years, live for fun only, trifle with your opportunities, you will find after a while that your life is a failure--yes, even if you should be as rich as Croesus.

One of the saddest things is to meet a man who has let golden opportunities go by him just entering the battle of life, yet entirely unfit for his position. He is to be pitied, and yet blamed. In this favored land every one can learn to read and write, for instance. But how often we meet young men utterly unable to write a dozen lines correctly. Be assured, young friends, it will be a source of shame to you as men if you do not pay attention to education as boys.

The world is full of good books to read. You are surrounded with friends and relatives. Be warned in time, and coin happiness and honor in the future from the industry of the present, and you will not have to read this page in vain.

Love of the Beautiful.

Woman have a much nicer sense of the beautiful than men. They are, by far, the safer umpires in matters of propriety and grace. A mere school-girl will be thinking and writing about the beauty of birds and flowers, while her brother is robbing the nests and destroying the flowers. Herein is a great natural law, that sexes have their relative excellencies and deficiencies, in the harmonious union of which lies all the wealth of domestic happiness. There is no better test of moral excellence, ordinarily, than the keenness of one's senses, and the depth of one's love of all that is beautiful.

A gentleman of Michigan contemplating the schooner Zach. Chandler, said that if she was as light on
