THE BLOODY KNIFE.

Husband Possessed by the Green Eyed Monster Attempts to put His Wife and Himself

out of existence. On Sunday forenoon last a telegram was received here from Slatington announcing that a double murder had been committed there the night previous, and asking that the coroner should come on at once. The said functionary left here at noon in response to the summons. accompanied by the district attorney and some of the newspaper men, arriving at Slatington at a little after two o'clock. It was then found that there had been no out and out murder-that the parties to the tragedy were yet living. The particulars of the affair were as follows: John Jones, his wife and one child lived together in two small rooms in Slatington. Jones came from Wales and settled in Statington about eight years since, where he met and married Ellen Kuntz, at that time a maid in Neff's hotel. Their married life appears to have been a stormy one, and, while Jones, having no regular trade, obtained work as he best could. being inclined to idleness and jealousy his wife seems to have troubled herself but little to make his life better or hanpier. At various times he had suspected his spouse of infidelity, and he insists, with good reason, that she was guilty, while she asserts her entire innocence and states that his suspicions were unfounded. They quarreled frequently, and twice during their married life separated .- The last time of their separation was three weeks ago, and then they parted in anger, he going off to Shenandoah City and other places in search of work. On Saturday night he returned, in the pouring rain, to the place that should have been his home and, from what he says, met with but a cool reception at the hands of his wife, so much so that he went to the floor above his own, occupied by a photographer named Dengler, and asked permission to sleep there. Mr. Dengler gave his permission and also something with which to make a bed. He lay down to sleep, but awoke about 2 o'clock so wet and cold that he thought he would go down stairs and try to sleep. When he went to the room occupied by his wife the door was locked, but was opened by her after some time. As soon as he got into the room she cursed and abused him, and they quarreled until after daylight, when he in his desperation went into the next room, where he found a butcher knife, with which he returned to the bed room and stabbed his wife in the abdomen as she lay on the bed. He then stabbed himself and pressed the handle of the knife against the door, to make the wound more effectual. Neither stab was very deep-not sufficiently so to penetrate the peretoneum. The surgeon states that the locations of the wounds in both the husband and wife do not vary an inch. His wife, after being stab bed, alarmed the neighbors, who found the couple in a most deplorable lying on the outside of the bed asleep when he stabbed her. The lives of both are in great danger. At last accounts the husband was not expected to recover, he being then in a sinking condition, inflammation having set in in his wound. Mrs. Jones' condition was more favorable.-At about 8 o'clock on Sunday evening she was removed to her sister's residence, Mrs. Hunsicker, whereall the attention that can be desired is being given to her. Jones on Sunday stated that he was sorry he committed the deed, and wished he was dead. He loved his wife, but she had "gone back on him." Ever since their marriage he has charged his wife with infidelity, which accu sation she invariably resented. result was a very infelicitous wedded life, which terminated in the attempted murder and suicide above related. Jones is a young man, of about 24 years, while his wife is his junior by about 4 years. They were not suited as partners, and would not have held such relations toward each other had it not been compul-sory—they having loved not wisely but too well. They have but one child, aged about two years, which is cared for in the family of Mrs. Jones' sister.

condition, both being covered with blood.

-Mrs. Jones makes a statement different from this. She says: When he returned on Saturday night she was afraid of him, and so told Mr. Dengler. She went to her bed, and knew nothing more of him until he stabbed her; she did not undress, but kept her clothes

S. Heintzelman; all he saved from the flames was his books, his entire stock valued at fully $5,000 was consumed; he has insurance thereon to the amount of $3,200. The tavern was occupied by George Bachert, who lost everything but a desk containing books and papers. The building belonged to Jacob Godachalk, and was insured for $1,700. #### MERCHANT TAILORING.

When in the course of wear and teas of every day life it becomes necessary to dissolve our connection with the suits that have done us so much services in keeping us warm and free from exposure, there is one place where we can find consolation and a friend indeed in our distress. Yea, a place where we can safely put our trust—where there is no need of fear that we shall be cheated, unsuited or unsatisfied—where the fabric is strong and the manufacture superb—where the prices are just and and the style all that can be desired There is a charm about an easy, glovefitting, elastic suit, that is seen and ob served by all men. "Where did you served by all men. "Where did you get that superb suit of clothes?" "Where did you secure such a splendid fitting garment?" is often asked. There are many tailors, and a number of them are undoubtly fair samples of the genus home and also a credit to the craft; but how generally tailors fail in the fitting of garments to the human form; how often a good piece of goods is spoiled in the fit; how sadly and dejectedly manya man wanders about the streets, feeling the shame the tailor has caused him, in allowing a poor job to go out of his shop, and he the wearer of it! Perhaps his lady love has even jilted him in con-

Not that a man is less a man for wear-ing plain clothes, but when he is "dress-ed up" he should indeed be dressed not having his cloths hang like bags around him, and wrinkled and distored in of shapes, but that he should be clad in fitting garments. Taste should be shown both in the colors and makeup of his suit. Many high priced goods are af such outlandish colors and styles that a man's character is judged by his foolishly selecting those odd goods. A man is known by the company he keeps and if he insists upon fraternizing with ill-looking and ill-fitting clothes, he will not make his "mark," as a man of taste, that's positive. To be looked upon as possessing the requisite attain ments of a tasty gentleman, he must select cloths of suitable colors for his clothing and have them made up in firstclass style by Laury & Peters, (post office building), Lehighton, Pa., who have a splendid stock to select from, and where you will obtain that symmetry of fit so necessary to the adornment of the person. Call and examine the most beautiful assortment of cloths, cassimers and vestings, ever brought into Lehighton, and leave your measure with Laury March 14, 1874.
