Caving in of a Coal Mine.
Last Saturday, between 9 and 10 P. M., an extensive cave occurred in the Enterprise colliery, north Wilkes-Barre. The miners discovered signs of the coming cave and made their escape, but had been out a few minutes only when the crash came. In their hurry they left twenty-five mules behind, but went back after them when the ground ceased settling. They had succeeded in rescuing all, but another cave occurred, and cut them off from the main opening, and they had to make their exit through the safety opening. The next morning, the Engineer, Henry Carey, entered the mine with a lighted lamp, when the gas, which had been driven into that part by the cave exploded, bruising him severely. The surface shows a number of cracks or fissures, but none of the houses, of which a number are built over the mine, are perceptibly injured. An area of eight or ten acres is included in the cave, but it has all settled evenly, and the damage outside is very slight. Inside of the mine it is quite serious, and will entail a heavy loss upon the operators. The lowest vein worked is twelve feet thick, and is about 350 feet from the surface. The upper one is a nine feet vein, and has been worked, but the middle vein is five feet thick, and has never been worked. It cannot yet be told whether this latter vein can be worked hereafter.

Letter from Parryville.
To the Editor of THE CARBON ADVOCATE:
Sir,—Since the genial presence of your spicy little ADVOCATE continues to illuminate many of our Parryville homes every Saturday night, it has occurred to us that a few items from this quarter would be of interest to, at least, a few of your many readers.

The Carbon Iron Works are moving slowly along, at a little better than half their capacity. Nearly all the men are in employment, though at wages much reduced. The "good time coming," has, verily, been a long time on the way, and yet we do not even catch a dim glimpse of it in the distant future. Would that it were here. Rumors of "better times" are rife. Thus far, however, we have had to be content with mere rumors and wish for the "better times." We confidently hope that September will witness their advent.

Our Public Schools closed a successful term on Friday last. Miss Jones, teacher of the Primary School, returned to her home at Minersville, Schuylkill Co., on Saturday, in company with Miss Mollie, her sister, who had been spending a week of vacation in our romantic little village.

Mr. J. M. Bauman, son of Hon. D. Bauman, has returned after a second year at Fort Edward Institute, to spend his vacation at home. He returns, we understand, to finish his third year. Masters A. L. and R. H. Bauman, —younger sons of Mr. Bauman, are informed, are making preparations to enter Kingston Seminary at the commencement of the fall term.

It speaks well for our Parryville Schools that these young men have received all their preparatory training at home. Besides these, honorable mention might be made of Mr. C. T. Smith, now engaged in the Banking house of Wilbur & Co., at Bethlehem;—W. E. Smith, a brother, teacher at White Hall; Miss E. M. Paul, (now Mrs. Norton) formerly a teacher of this place and later in your borough, and Miss Mattie A. Puffer, of this place, all of whom, we are proud to say, have embarked upon their various callings, within the last few years direct from Parryville Schools. Besides the above named there are many who have received good, practical training, who have not entered any particular profession. Behold some of the fruits of the "Independent School District or, in other words,—the results of longer terms and better pay.

Think you, does it pay?
Let the people say.

In a future article, when our enthusiasm upon the school question shall have abated, we may attempt a description of our cozy little village and its picturesque surroundings.

Yours Truly, Pono Pono.
Parryville, July 16, 1874.
