

How Carl Rosa Got Married.

Carl Rosa and Perapa, antipodal as they were in complexion, stature and avoirdupois, were supremely harmonious, excellently adapted to associated enterprise. He had never undertaken management until after his marriage, and he is indebted to her, it is said, for the inspiration. He is so modest and retiring a little fellow that many persons have wondered how he could summon courage to propose to a woman so much larger than himself.

The matter of his proposal is thus related. The musical twin were en route to Hartford by rail seated side by side; Rosa seeming to be unusually depressed. Perapa, a close observer, and always sympathetic, noticing his melancholy, inquired the cause. He answered:

"I have been unlucky in this country. For some reason or other I have not been able to keep my friends in America. With the best of feeling and intentions, I appear to lose as rapidly as I make them. I think I have not today a single friend."

"Oh, I am sure you have," responded she brightly.

"Alas!" he exclaimed, sighing, "I fear I have not!"

"Indeed, you are mistaken, my good Carl. If you have not so regarded me heretofore, I promise you now that I will always be your friend."

Rosa's boyish face kindled with delight, he took her gloved hand; and with chivalrous instinct lifted it to his lips.

"And," she added, with a charming ingenuousness, "I will be your wife also, if you like."

A fortnight later they were married. She had long been very fond of him, and he of her, and she knew it. But he was so sensitive and self-deprecating that she felt that he would not reveal his affection unless he were liberally encouraged.

Few men or women have been better partners, sentimentally or financially, than Perapa and Rosa. They gave English and Italian opera at the Academy in better styles than it had ever been given, and notwithstanding the great expense to which they had gone, they realized handsomely from the endeavor. Rosa and his wife cleared here over $250,000.—Chicago Times.

Odd Fellowship.

The annual minutes of the Grand Lodge of the independent order of Odd Fellows of Pennsylvania have been published in book form. The statistical report of the Order for the year ending May 13th, 1874, shows that the membership in the State at that time amounted to 95,197, being an increase of 10,034 during the year. The Lodges in working order numbered 809, showing an increase of 46. The Rebecca degree Lodges numbered 86. The relief report shows that during the year 12,021 members were relieved, at an expense of $265,779.33, there was also paid $19,730.18 for the relief of widowed families, 1,434.59 for the education of orphans, and $76,556.32 for burying the dead, making the total amount for relief $263,590.02. The receipts in the various Lodges during the year amounted to $598,802.33, and their total assets is given at $1,160,202.46.

A strange though not a novel phase of the Indian question, is that two prophets have arisen, each of them in regions far remote from the other, preaching that the Indians should have no further intercourse with whites and missionaries, and that though few in number, they shall again possess the land, Smohalla, the Oregon prophet, urges the Indians to live upon no reservation, to accept no bounty, to enter no church or school or house of prayer, and to be in no way lured from the habits of their forefathers. Already he has a compact and powerful band who believe in his doctrines and try to live up to them, though no attempt has been made to carry out the extermination of the whites, which he also preaches. A similar prophet has arisen among the Comanches of Arizona, who tells his people that he has had an interview with the Great Spirit, who said that the Indians who were adopting the mode of life of the whites were going down hill fast, as regarded population, and that the Comanches would do the same, should they too become civilized.

John Harper, familiarly known as "Uncle John Harper," the well-known Kentucky stock raiser and distinguished turfman, was of a plain, frugal family of Pennsylvania Dutch origin, though long settled in Kentucky. He was one of five children, only one of whom, a brother, ever married. Another brother, Adam, was killed in 1864 by guerrillas, who visited his house for booty. His brother Jacob and sister Elizabeth were, on the 11th of September, 1871, murdered in their beds by parties still unknown. They had amassed a large property by farming and rearing race horses, all of which became the property of John Harper. He leaves by will his homestead, with 600 acres of the finest blue grass land in Kentucky, together with all his race horses (including Longfellow), to his nephew "Little Frank Harper." John Harper was about 78 years of age.

MERCHANT TAILORING.

When in the course of wear and tear of every day life it becomes necessary to dissolve our connection with the suits that have done us so much services in keeping us warm and free from exposure, there is one place where we can find consolation and a friend indeed in our distress. Yes, a place where we can safely put our trust—where there is no need of fear that we shall be cheated, unsuited or unsatisfied—where the fabric is strong and the manufacture superb—where the prices are just and the style all that can be desired. There is a charm about an easy, glove-fitting, elastic suit, that is seen and observed by all men. "Where did you get that superb suit of clothes?" "Where did you secure such a splendid fitting garment?" is often asked. There are many tailors, and a number of them are undoubtedly fair samples of the genus homo and also a credit to the craft; but how generally tailors fail in the fitting of garments to the human form; how often a good piece of goods is spoiled in the fit; how sadly and dejectedly many a man wanders about the streets, feeling the shame the tailor has caused him, in allowing a poor job to go out of his shop, and be the wearer of it! Perhaps his lady love has even jilted him in consequence of his forlorn appearance.

— Dress makes the man;

The want of it the fellow!

Not that a man is less a man for wearing plain clothes, but when he is "dressed up" he should indeed be dressed not having his clothes hang like bags around him, and wrinkled and distorted in all sorts of shapes, but that he should be clad in fitting garments. Taste should be shown both in the colors and make-up of his suit. Many high priced goods are of such outlandish colors and styles that a man's character is judged by his foolishly selecting those odd goods. A man is known by the company he keeps, and if he insists upon fraternizing with ill-looking and ill-fitting clothes, he will not make his "mark," as a man of taste, that's positive. To be looked upon as possessing the requisite attainments of a tasty gentleman, he must select cloths of suitable colors for his clothing and have them made up in first-class style by Laury & Peters, (post office building), Lehigh, Pa., who have a splendid stock to select from, and where you will obtain that symmetry of fit so necessary to the adornment of the person. Call and examine the most beautiful assortment of cloths, cassimeres and vestings, ever brought into Lehigh,
