

The Carbon Advocate.

H. V. MORTIMER, EDITOR.

LEHIGHTON, PA.:
SATURDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 13, 1874.

The Controller of New York has made a statement of the debt of that city, which shows its aggregate on September 30th to have been $153,726,093, an increase of about twenty-two and one-half millions since the beginning of the year. There are at present in the sinking fund of New York securities valued at $26,829,732; so that the debt, less the sinking fund, on September 30, was $126,896,360.

Dr. Linderman, in his report as Director of the Mint, says the amount of specie in this country on the 30th of June last was $167,000,000. The estimate shows a gain in specie and bullion in the last two fiscal years of $38,500,000. The amount of gold and silver coin and bullion in the world is estimated at from ten to twelve thousand millions. The present rate of production is—silver, $80,000,000 and gold, $100,000,000; the two together being an annual addition of about one and a half per cent to the existing stock of specie. This last point is elaborated in the report.

A correspondent of the Panama Star and Herald gives particulars of the earthquake at Antigua, which commenced on the evening of September 3d. The shocks began without previous warning, the movement being "a series of strong vertical and horizontal impulses combined," and the direction from west to east. The surface undulations rose at least a foot, making it almost impossible for people to move without being thrown to the ground. Loud, thunder-like sounds rose from the earth and mingled with the noise of falling walls and the cries of the afflicted people. About two dozen inhabited houses were demolished and thirty-two persons were killed. Many houses were so badly damaged that they will have to be rebuilt. The shocks continued with varying violence until the morning of the 4th.

A. J. Durling.

The popular druggist, of this borough, on Monday last, received the nomination of the Democratic Convention for member of the Legislature. In this nomination the delegates there assembled did themselves and their party an honor. Mr. Durling is a man of the people; honorable in his dealings, liberal in his principles, and yet Democratic to the "back-bone." If elected to the Assembly, and we doubt not that he will be, we have no hesitation in saying that he will work honestly and assiduously for the best interests of his constituents. In this, his own town, we believe that men of all classes and parties will give him their suffrages, knowing as they do that they and their interests will be faithfully represented by and through him in the State Legislature.

The Coroner's jury in their verdict in the case of the Granite Mills victims say that they examined thoroughly forty-nine witnesses, and ascertained that the fire originated in the male room in the fourth story at pair of mules No. 15. The fire department responded as promptly as possible, considering that four alarms were sounded from separate boxes. The Hook and Ladder Department were insufficient. Due care was not taken to give the alarm to the occupants of the sixth story, had it not been for which neglect, the lives of all in that story might have been saved. The mill's fire extinguishing apparatus was in order, but there was no water in the tanks, hence they were useless. There were hot, moreover, ample means to escape from the attic, a neglect which was the cause of much loss of life. The jury therefore find that had proper alarms been given, and had the means of escape been better, there would have been no loss of life. They severely condemn the model of the mill, and recommend that other mills profit by the lesson.

Advice to Politicians.

The following timely advice to politicians we take from the "Christian at Work," and earnestly commend it to the attention of candidates in particular and politicians in general: "We hope the day will come when Christian men will have charge of the ballot-box. It at present wants cleaning inside and outside. It is black and filthy. There have been unclean hands pushing it about for a good while. We are glad to know that the old crop of politicians are dying off very fast. They were a desperate race, and their reformation was impossible. We wish that consecrated Christian men would take charge of public affairs. The trouble is that when good men go into politics they do not take their religion with them. We, therefore, now that the actual election is approaching, volunteer them a little advice. First, Do not lie. There will be every temptation for you to say untrue things about the opposing candidate, and your county newspaper may yield to falsehood. But do not surrender your own veracity. All the good you have done before this campaign opens, and all the good you will do after it has closed, will be no excuse for present mendacity. Secondly, Do not drink. When you are out electioneering, and get your feet wet, and the night is chill, you may be allured to take ardent spirits. When you cannot get a man to vote right, you will be tempted to invite him to the neighboring bar, knowing that a man's heart is not far removed from his stomach. One of the worst effects of Election Day is the fact that it leaves so many men damaged of strong drink. Thirdly, Do not swear. Even Christian men, in hot political contests, are apt to use the name of God rhetorically. Beware! When you employ that over-empathic phrase, your Sunday-school boys may hear it, and men who do not believe in sobriety of speech will copy your bad example. Sober as much as is necessary, and bring down your foot very hard, and gesture violently, but do not swear. Let all politicians, especially Christian politicians, pray for help to keep right side up till after next November."

Party Platforms.

The following excellent article we reproduce from the columns of The Guide, published at Germantown, Pa. We commend it to the attention of both political factions:

"So notable have been the changes within the past few years inside the two great parties of the country that it is almost impossible when comparing their State and National platforms, to distinguish the difference between Republican and Democratic. Of course the one will ever be characterized as 'negro worshippers' and the others as 'copperheads'; the one will never cease prating about its victories of the war, nor the other of its adherence to the constitution of the country. To the thoughtful looker-on, however, all this making of faces and calling of hard names will prove about as interesting and convincing as a wordy squabble of school boys over a game of marbles. If the Republicans did all the fighting, and the Democrats remained at home to feed the soldiers who were in the field, why who cares? Somebody must fight while others fill their haversacks and prepare their ammunition! If all the Republicans went forth to war, who could have been left at home to preserve an orderly condition of domestic affairs, except the Democrats and old woman? It was a perfectly natural and economical arrangement; and now all this crimination and recrimination because the Democrats 'didn't fight their share.' How could they? The fields had to be tilled and the harvests gathered, the anvils kept ringing and the looms whizzing. But as we have said the changes have been so marked, in both sentiment and policy, that the one can with difficulty be distinguished from the other. To day the 'copperhead' of Pennsylvania is a better protectionist than the 'loyalist' of the West; and as this, the tariff question, is destined to be the great bone of contention, the great issue of the day, after the green-back and gold difficulty shall have been settled, it is plain to be seen that the difference between these political antagonists will soon dwindle down to about the same as that 'betwixt two eggs.' 'In our own State nothing is left for factionists to crow over, save the 'glories of the past' and the predictions of the 'future'; both of which the cautious and upright citizen cares nothing for, for it is of the present with which he has to content. He has heard and felt enough of war, for it is written on his tax-bills and in the rent of his house. He needs no more light on the constitution, for it is but a ground on which demagogues are trained for the ring. What the hard working and honest tax-payers want is honest and capable men to vote for. Platforms are of no account; no matter how many planks they contain, it is well known they are all of rotten wood. Resolutions, no matter who or what they praise or condemn, are valueless, for at best they are but a string of deceptive buncombe. Give us good men; this is what we demand, and we care not a fig for your party principles. Cease your prating about the war and the constitution, for these are mere blind men! Men who will neither cheat us of our vote nor sell themselves for a glass of rum. This is what we want. Away with your platforms! Something better than these patched-up concerns, made to order by a set of biotated politicians is what we want, and will have before long upon which to stand. What does your cry of 'loyalty' and 'piggery' amount to without good men for office?'"

Abraham Hardenburgh, business manager and cashier of the Jersey City "Standard," is reported to have disappeared.

Lehigh Emery Wheel Company.

We are glad to learn that the Lehigh Emery Wheel Company are again busily turning out their solid wheels. Owning to the giving away of the cylinder of one of the powerful hydraulic presses used in making the wheels, the work was interrupted for a few days, but is now resumed, and the orders which have been accumulating are being filled. This Company have six of their machines and a number of their wheels at the Franklin Institute Exhibition now held in Philadelphia, and probably no better place could be found to place them where they would be seen and examined by manufacturers, machinists and all interested in emery grinding machinery. Mr. James P. Sanford, the agent of the Company, is in charge and will show the wheels in operation day and night, during the whole time of the Exhibition, which will be open all this month.

It is gratifying to see that among all the various manufactured products, the machinery, the ingenious mechanical appliances, collected at this most interesting exhibition, that our Valley is represented in this new industry which gives such promise of success. As this enterprise is largely controlled by Mauch Chunk capital, we look with interest at the record it will make at the Exhibition.—Coal Gazette
