pared for resistance. However this might be, certain it is that they parted company with us forthwith, and troubled us no more. The joy of the crew and passengers, thus rescued from perils so imminent, need scarcely be described. The captain was quite beside himself with joy, and seemed almost inclined to embrace the black cook Sambo for his gallant handling of the poker. Double, if not treble allowances of grog were served out to the men; and we reached port in safety, without further incident, about three weeks after this adventure with the pirates.

The Carbon Advocate.

H. V. MORTHIMER, ... EDITOR

LEHIGHTON, PA.
SATURDAY MORNING JUNE 5, 1875.

The Philadelphia Times, speaking of the action of the Lancaster Convention on the third term question, says that "it came upon the President like a clap of thunder from a clear sky. He was prepared for a mild resolution, something after the Kentucky deliverance, denouncing as a slander the charge that he is seeking another nomination, but without declaring positively against a a third term, but he was not prepared for such a resentful slap in the face as came from the Cameron Convention. The President felt outraged by the action of the Convention, and manifested much temper about it. Especially was he grieved at Cameron, but confessed that he was not greatly disappointed, for he did not trust the veteran Pennsylvania Senator, and he felt that his friends who have been so long flattering him with their promises were either cowardly or treacherous. He regards Hartranft as the real author of the real resolution, and is implacable in his hostility to the Republican candidate for Governor. He declared his purpose to see that the law forbidding the assessment of office-holders for political purposes shall be rigidly enforced, and broadly intimated that enthusiastic support of Hartranft would not be a strong recommendation to his official or personal favor. The President is unshaken in his belief that the people would rally to his support and triumphantly elect him again if the politicians did not arbitrarily interfere. His obstinacy is more dogged on this issue than is usual even for Grant, and he will wield the whole power of the Government to overthrow the Republican party as soon as it is clearly ascertained that it has resolved upon taking a new man for 1876."

No. 3—"Thinks I to Myself"

"I'll read," so selecting a paper from a batch of twenty or more, I began to peruse its columns. Now it is seldom that advertisements have any attraction for me, but on the occasion referred to I hardly read anything else. Indeed, feeling somewhat below par, what more natural than that I should seek consolation in the long array of "infallible remedies," generally filling the advertising columns of county papers. But, although in the paper before me I read of sure cures for coughs, colds, and consumption—of curatives for worms, freckels, constipation, corns and bunions; and found probably twenty or thirty others, each guaranteeing to cure some specific ill, or ills that human flesh is heir to, yet not finding what I considered needful for my own particular case, I exchanged the paper for another. In this I found a catalogue equally as long, but nothing to suit me. I picked up the third—the fourth, fifth, and lastly the sixth paper, but invariably with the same result. Altogether I had read of at least two hundred and fifty remedies, warranted to cure as many different diseases! This somewhat staggered me. It set me to thinking Finally "thinks I to myself" how can these things be and perverse humanity continue to suffer, when a trifling investment would make them sound as a silver dollar? But then, "thinks I," supposing they have been tried and found wanting? Why then, of course, the whole catalogue must sink to the level of a swindle! If all as represented, it would be a wonder indeed that people should die at all! But since they continue to die as heretofore, caution in the use of most of these infallible panaceas cannot be too highly recommended!

When we meet again, I shall give you a bit of my mind on newspaper puffs in general, and personal puffs in particular.

The News.

—The Treasury Department will sell $2,000,000 in gold during June—$500,000 on each Thursday of the month

—President Grant has written a letter to Gen. White President of the late Republican Convention of this State, denying that he is or has been a candidate for a third term of the Presidency.

—A report comes from Camp Stambaugh, Wyoming Territory, that a large body of Sioux, Cheyenne and Arrapanoe Warriors are on the war-path, with the design of attacking the Shoshone Agency.

—The New Hampshire Legislature met Wednesday amid the greatest excitement. In the Senate, after the election of a Democratic president, the Republican members withdrew and formed a separate organization.

—At Portland, Me., on Saturday, the libel suit of Stephen Grant against the Portland Press, for $1,000 damages, ended in a verdict for the newspaper, which had informed its readers that Mr. Grant was "the biggest liar in the State.

—A fire at Great Bend, on Saturday morning, which is supposed to have been started by an incendiary, destroyed the bank, the office of the Great Bend Reporter, the post office and 12 or 15 stores, comprising the business portion of the town. The loss is estimated at $125,00.

—Mrs. Rohm the "fat woman" of Barnum's exhibition, died last Friday in Baltimore, aged 23. She was born in Licking county, Ohio, and her maiden name was Hannah Jane Buck. She weighed 583 pounds, was 6 feet 4 inches high, and measured 72 inches around the waist.

—The Supreme Court at Harrisburg has rendered a decision in the case of the Kittanning Coal Company vs. the Commonwealth establishing the right of the Legislature to classify corporations having franchises to mine and sell, and to impose a tax on their franchises to be measured by the number of tons of which they make merchandise. In the case of the Pennsylvania Coal Company vs. the Commonwealth, the Court decides that the tax imposed by the act of May 1, 1874 is a tax on francchise and not on coal, and it can be collected for the period between January 1 and April 24, 1874

—Advices from Fayetteville report a commencement of resumption in the Schuylkill region. Tuesday morning some of the miners resumed work in one of the Philadelphia and Reading Company's collieries at Mahanoy City, accepting the reduced rates, and men are reported for work at the East Franklin Colliery, near Tremont. Several furnaces which have long been idle are also expected to resume operations in a few days.

—The council between the Indians and the Secretary of the Interior Tuesday morning resulted in an agreement for the cession of the largest portion of the Sioux hunting grounds in Northwestern Nebrasaa. The Indians accept $25,000 for their lands.
