

A Singular Flight in China—Englishmen Firing on their Countrymen.

From the London (Eng.) Times.
An English steamer, the Carisbrooke, cleared from Singapore in June last, with passengers and cargo for Hainan and Hong Kong. The vessel was valuable, being worth $140,000, and almost her entire trade was with the port of her destination, Hong Kong. According to the statement made by her captain, the whole passenger fare and freight to Hainan amounted to not more than $1,500; and this fact is dwelt upon as showing that there could have been no evil intent in what was done. There is a port in Hainan to which foreigners are admitted by treaty, so that intercourse with the island is not prohibited, but this port, Klung-chow, is on the north coast of Hainan, and out of the track for Hong Kong. The Carisbrooke accordingly anchored some 70 miles of the treaty port, on the east side of the island, for the benefit of her Chinese passengers, who, it appears, were bound for the treaty port of Klung-chow itself. The spot where the Carisbrooke anchored was at the mouth of a river called Chinan, and some distance up this river there is a town called Weichang. Junks were to come out and take off the passengers to their destination. It is admitted that the steamer did not communicate with the shore, and that there was no real using of this town of Weichang as a port. The Chinese gunboat Pen-chao-hai came down upon her and arrested her on the charge of having violated the treaty by trading with a non-treaty port. The Hainan passengers were allowed to land after having had their luggage searched; the chief officer and the three quartermasters of the Chinese gunboat were sent on board the Carisbrooke, and the two vessels stayed together, the captain of the Carisbrooke having promised, as ordered, to take his vessel to Whampoa.

The curious thing about this Chinese gunboat is that the principal persons on board were Englishmen. There was Mr. Brown, Deputy Commissioner of Customs at Canton, specially in charge of the cruiser; there was Capt. Palmer, who commanded the vessel, and Mr. Collins, the chief officer, who was sent on board the Carisbrooke. It appears that Capt. Scott of the Carisbrooke, after promising to proceed to Whampoa, reconsidered the matter. He had desired to obtain from the Englishmen in the Chinese service on board the gunboat a certificate that he did not take this course of his own free will; falling in this, and Mr. Collins, the chief officer of the gunboat, telling him that if he resisted force would be used, the captain of the Carisbrooke seems to have made up his mind to yield only to compulsion. According to his own account, "knowing that the Carisbrooke was innocent of any illegal trading, and if there was any fault, it was in the passengers, I made up my mind to proceed direct to Hong Kong, and this I told Capt. Palmer shortly afterward." The commander of the Pen-chao-hai, perceiving this, fired four shots at the Carisbrooke, smashing her rudder and piercing her hull. Some of the crew of the gunboat were then put on board the Carisbrooke and took that vessel to Canton. Here the matter was investigated by a court, of which the British Consul and the Chinese Commissioner of Customs are members. The court was held with closed doors, and it was agreed that the ship was seized within three miles of the coast of Hainan performing acts unauthorized by the treaty. The Chinese authority demanded that the ship and cargo should be confiscated; to this her Majesty's Consul would not agree, and accordingly the matter will be "referred to the high authorities of both nations at Peking for decision, and, pending this, the Carisbrooke will be released on bond."

John Randolph's Religious Services. Two Spectacular Scenes in Church.

From the Co-Operative News.
Mr. Randolph was a great Bible reader, and was deeply concerned with religious subjects. He employed an excellent and eloquent man, Mr. Abner Clopton, to preach every Sunday to the negroes in a large chapel he had erected on his plantation. When at home he invariably attended these services, taking his seat by the preacher on the open platform, from which the preacher conducted the services. On many occasions while kneeling beside the preacher, who was prone to be carried away by the fervor of prayer, Randolph would slap him on the back and call out loudly, "Clopton, that won't do; that's not sound doctrine. Clopton, take that back," and if Clopton re-constituted, Randolph, though keeping himself on his knees, was ready at once for an argument to maintain his point. No one but Mr. Clopton, who knew the respectability and highest motives of the man, could have borne with these irreverent interruptions while in the midst of prayer; but Mr. Clopton, when he found Randolph determined to argue the point, either gracefully yielded or proposed to note the point and argue it at the dwelling house. To visitors at the chapel—and they were many—these scenes were exceedingly curious, and sometimes absurdly ludicrous. But that was Mr. Randolph's way.

It is said that one cold Sunday in this chapel on Mr. Randolph's plantation, while giving out the hymn in the old-fashioned way, two lines at a time, and it was being lustily sung by the negroes, Mr. Clopton, the preacher, observed a negro man put his foot upon which was a new brogan, on the hot stove. Turning toward him he said in his measured voice, "Youascal you, you'll burn your shoes." As this was a rhyme of the exact meter of the hymn, the negroes all sang it in their loudest tones. Smiling at the error, the preacher attempted mildly to explain by saying, "My colored friends indeed you are wrong; I didn't intend that for the song." There it was again, a rhyme in good measure, so the negroes sang that too in pious fervor. Turning to his congregation, the preacher said somewhat sharply, "I hope you will not sing again until I have had time to explain;" but this only aroused the negroes, who sang the last words with increased vigor.

Mr. Clopton feeling that his tongue seemed to be turned to rhyme, abandoned all efforts at explanation and went on with his services.

Made in Two Months. A Wall street Operation. The Banking-house of Alex. Frothingham & Co., No. 12 Wall-st., who deal in Stock Privileges, have paid this enormous sum to their customers during this short space of time. Some persons have made as high as $50,000 from only $100 originally invested and many have made $1,000 and over from only $5. They paid in a single day over $40,000, which only $2,000 or $3,000 net profit to various people. They employ continually from twelve to fifteen competent book-keepers and assistants. With this strong force they are often compelled to remain at their work all night. This energetic firm well deserves the credit of being the leading house in their branch of business. It is most wonderful to acknowledge that they have established this business in the short space of five years.
They have customers who reside in nearly every State of the Union, the Dominion of Wales; from the Island of Cuba they receive orders from persons who are continually dealing in stocks. Their business has become so extensive that two experienced correspondents are employed to attend to their advertising accounts. Their cards may be read in every first-class newspaper published in the United States. To this they attribute a portion of their success. We advise those desiring to place their business with a firm possessing the very highest reputation for uprightness, and who conduct their business upon honest principles, to deal with this house. They also issue a weekly report of the condition of affairs in Wall street, which they are glad to mail free, for one year, to any one who desires and complies with application.
