It is very desirable, therefore, that the production of these two great classes of society should be brought together, so that by comparison the relative merits of the various improvements that have been made may be ascertained.

Under the arrangement of the present year all articles placed within the enclosure for exhibition (except when they interfere with the mechanical production of Carbon county) will be sold at public sale, without charge, if the owner desires it, thus relieving exhibitors from the labor of removing their property, and enable others to supply themselves with the choicest specimens of agricultural and mechanical productions. This we think a most important feature of our exhibition.

We invite, therefore, all, both at home and abroad to attend and participate in it, either as exhibitors or spectators feeling that none will be disappointed. The officers and members of the various agricultural societies in Pennsylvania and elsewhere, are specially and cordially invited to attend.

THOS. KOONS, President.
W. M. RAPSHER, Sec'y.

The Carbon Advocate.

H. V. MORTHIMER, ... EDITOR

LEHIGHTON, PA.:
SATURDAY MORNING SEPT. 25, 1875.

—The full returns of the votes for Governor of California are given as follows: Irwin, Democrat, 61,515, Phelps, Republican, 30,922; Bidwell, Independent, 29,639.

—The New York Herald of Tuesday has the following editorial paragraph, which is important, if true, and it probably is. It says;

President Grant does not fear the triumph of inflation at the fall elections, nor does he anticipate that even the success of that doctrine could affect the legislation of Congress for two years to come. He will veto any act for the repeal of the law providing for resumption in 1879, and thinks that a two-thirds vote against the veto cannot be secured in either the Senate or House.

—The Beecher case threatens the public again. Mr. Beecher procured the indictment of Mr. Moulton for prejury. The District Attorney suggests that the suit be relinquished. Mr. Beecher concurs, and gives his consent to the withdrawal of the suit. Mr. Moulton protests against the withdrawal and demands that the trial proceed.

—The balance sheet of expenses of the Post-office Department for the year ending June 30, 1875, just prepared for the Postmaster General's annual report, shows that, while the postal service was largely increased, there was a decrease of the expenses of $48,866. This result has been accomplished by the correction of abuses, chiefly the "crushing out of straw bidders" and the letting of contracts west of the Mississippi at reduced rates.

—Ex-Governor Dix writes upon the currency question to Reverdy Johnson, to say that he believes the Legal Tender act unconstitutional, that he always believed it to be so, and that as long ago as 1861, when the late Secretary Chase consulted him in regard to measures to meet the expenses of the war, he "objected in the strongest terms" to such a law. Mr. Dix also agrees with all thinking citizens that "the contest between the advocates of redeemable and irredeemable paper money" is "the most important issue to be tried by the people at the next election of a President."

—The Secretary of the Treasury has just issued his twenty-seventh call of Government bonds, it being for the redemption of five millions of the principal and interest of the bonds of 1864, the call expiring on the 14th day of December next, when interest on the same will cease—that is to say, bonds of the act of 1864, June 30, as follows:

$50—No. 2301 to No. 3300, both inclusive.
$100—No. 7001 to No. 10000, both inclusive.
$500—No. 12101 to No. 15300, both inclusive.
$1,000—No. 39001 to No. 59700, both inclusive.

The amount outstanding embraced in the numbers as above is $5,000,000. United States securities forwarded for redemtion should be addressed to the "Loan Division, Secretary's office."

—The finance and currency plank in the platform adopted by the convention of the Democrats of New York, on Friday of last week, reads as follows:

First—Gold and silver the only legal tender; no currency unconvertible with coin.
Second—Steady steps towards specie payments; no step backward.
Third—Honest payment for the public debt in coin; the sacred preservation of the public faith.
Fourth—Revenue reform; Federal taxation for its revenue only; no Government partnerships with protected monopolies.

The currency part of the above platform is precisely the same as that last year adopted by the convention which nominated Governor Tilden, and on which he was elected by more than 50,000 majority. It is clear in language, unequivocal in purpose, and, in the opinion of every honest-minded business man, covers the best interests of the country. It has an honest ring, says the Phila. Ledger, and, we trust, will have the effect of silencing those knaves who are incessantly croaking of the repudiation of the public debt. There is no party in the country, as we sincerely believe, that contemplates any such purpose, and of the few individuals favoring such an idea the majority of them are found among those who talk most of such a thing. The mass of voters in this country are honest men, favor an honest currency and an honest adherence to plighted faith. When the test comes in Congress the inflation policy now discussed will be found with few supporters.

—The call addresses to Carl Schurz, asking him to speak in the Ohio canvass, says: "The main question under discussion in view of the approaching election in this State is whether the country shall advance or recede to specie payments. The popular decision will assuredly have a serious influence upon political organizations, business interests, and public policy. We are mindful of your superb arguments in the Senate on a behalf of a sound currency, and, as merchants and business men, we invite you to come to Ohio and present in public speeches your views upon the cause at issue, which we esteem to be that of national honor and common honesty." Mr. Schurz's reply was: "I simply obey a call of duty in complying with your invitation. I shall be ready to address the citizens of Cincinnati on the evening of Monday, Sept. 27."

—The Liberal Reform State Convention of New York met at Albany Wednesday, about 300 delegates being present. General John Cochrane called the Convention to order and was chosen as its permanent President. A Platform was adopted declaring that there can be no sound currency but coin, or paper convertible into coin on demand, and that "without a speedy return to a specie basis a national disaster threatens;" favoring civil service reform; deprecating forcible interference with State Rights; condemning the national administration for illegal and oppressive acts, retention of corrupt men in office, unstable financial policy, inflatation of the currency, extravagant expenditures and general disregard of public opinion; commending Governor Tilden's action, against the canal ring, and recommending the Independent voters to support those candidates already nominated of whom they most approve, and who will co-operate with Governor Tilden in the work of administrative reform. The convention then adjourned sine die. Resolutions directly endorsing the Democratic platform and ticket were twice offered in the Convention, but not acted upon.

—The Massachusetts Democratic State Convention met Wednesday, in Worcester. Edward Avery was elected permanent President. The platform, after some opposition to the financial plank by one of the delegates, who was answered by several others, was adopted unanimously. It declares, on behalf of the Democrats and Liberals of the State, for the acceptance of the recent amendments to the Federal Constitution; opposes any further inflation of the currency; demands a speedy return to specie payments; arraigns the Republican party for corruption and disregard of constitutional obligations; demands a reduction in the State expenditures and in taxation, and such legislation as will secure to both capital and labor "fair play and equal rights;" congratulates the people on the repeal of the odius prohibitory law, and favor such modifications of the present liquor law as experience may suggest; oppose any constitutional amendment which will tend to limit the election of public officers by the people; and concludes by "welcoming the assurance that the policy of reconciliation advocated by the Democratic and Liberal Republican parties in 1872 will be inaugurated by the administration to be placed in power in 1876;"

—The report of business of the country, says the N. Y. Observer, is much the same as last week. Money remains plenty at low rates, and business is conducted with great care and prudence. The people are beginning to learn that economy and prudence are their only salvation from ruin, and we believe that things will settle down upon an honest and frugal basis, which will be healthful in the end to business and to morals. Upon this topic Governor Bedle, of New Jersey, in a recent address truthfully said:

"There never was a time in the history of our country when there was more need of a sturdy, honest industry than now. We have been passing through a period marked by an over-anxious desire for sudden riches, and a disposition to procure them by questionable means. The public eye has been blinded, and extravagance, waste and fraud have stalked through the land. There is, however, a better day coming. The public begin to realize that the true prosperity of a people is not in its inflated schemes of speculation, however attractive they may be, but in economy, and solid, useful employments and industries. It is a great evil to haste to be rich, and when that spirit overtakes a people, it can only be corrected by stagnation in trade and financial disaster. The crisis through which we have been, and are still passing, is one that has awakened the fears of the prudent and shaken public confidence in most classes of business. Trade is sensitive and is affected by the follies, vices, or virtues of the people, as it also is by the errors or wisdom of government. The present difficulty has arisen largely from the former, and the people have the power in their own hands greatly to correct it. Extravagance in living will have to cease: law cannot regulate that. Individual prudence and economy are virtues that the people learn and voluntarily practice. Employments must be more regular, and the employer must be satisfied with reasonable awards. Private business must be honestly conducted, and men understand that to cheat is as bad as to steal. Integrity must be at the very core of trade, and be diffused through all its arteries and branches. There must be no discouragement or indolence. They must meet the crisis in the spirit of true manhood, and be satisfied to do as well as they can. In public affairs also the people must take a deeper interest. Taxation has become oppressive, and chiefly because of extravagant and unnecessary schemes of improvement and reckless expenditure in office. Municipal debts, particularly, are very burdensome. Notwithstanding it, all public debts must be paid, and the public are obliged to meet them. But it impresses them to see that for the future these burdens are kept within the reasonable necessities of the public, and that there shall be no waste, extravagance or plunder. Honesty in office should be the rallying cry of every voter. It rises above mere partisanship and admits of no compromise. It is radical, and without it government is a mockery and a curse to the people."

Current Events.

—There are 323 American colleges, and the end is not yet.

—George Quacco, a colored man from Newark, N. J., was drowned in the Delaware in Easton, Tuesday, while attempting to escape from the Phillipsburg police.

—Carl Schurz is to make nine speeches in Ohio during the present canvass in support of a sound currency. The first, by invitation of the merchants of Cincinnati, will be delivered in that city on the 27th inst.

—The banking house of O. M. Tyler, & Co., at Waukesha, Wis., suspended Monday and made an assignment. Its failure was caused by the absconding of E. R. Hendri, who was largely indebted to the bank.

—A number of horses in Poughkeepsie and other town in the interior of New York state are suffering from a disease resembling the epizooty. The disease appeared in Buffalo nearly three weeks ago. It is milder than the epizooty of 1872.

—Jacob Benjamin, a wealthy pawnbroker, of Baltimore, died Monday, at the age of 55, from the effects of hair dye. He used the dye upon his whiskers, and, as it caused irritation of the throat, he shaved them off, which caused erysipelas to set in.

—At Cleveland Ohio on Sunday, the body of Mrs. McGillis, wife of Alexander McGillis, was found buried in the back yard of her residence, in an advanced stage of decomposition. It was shown at a Coroner's inquest that McGillis had murdered his wife, and compelled the two sons to dig the grave and bury her. He and his sons are in jail.

—The Post-office Department has decided that the writing of anything upon the address of a postal card, excepting the address, renders it liable to letter postage, and if by inadvertence it reaches its destination without prepayment of letter postage, then double postage must be charged, less one cent, originally prepaid by the card.

—The New Orleans Cotton Exchange reports the cotton crop for the year ending September 1, at 3,257,845 bales, of which 2,674,448 bales were exported and 1,200,473 consumed at home (125,500 in the South). The sea Island crop is stated at 16,687 bales. The average weight of bales was 4 8 pounds, the Sea Island bales averaging 392 pounds.

—Charles G. Fisher, son of Judge Fisher, and Assistant Attorney for the District of Columbia, was arrested in Washington, late on Monday night, for the stealing of the papers in the appeals to the Criminal Court. He was committed in default of $4000 bail. The stolen papers, as well as others of importance, have been recovered. Fisher had placed them in the hands of a third party, the object being to realize money on them.

—A lady, apparently between 25 and 30 years of age, committed suicide, at Lebanon, Pa., Monday, by throwing herself in front of a railroad train. Her head was severed from her body. She arrived in Lebanon on Monday evening, and registered at the Lebanon Valley hotel as "Miss Lulu Green of Philadelphia," a piece of paper was found in her pocket, with the name "Martha Nelson" written upon it.

—The New York Democratic State Convention Friday of last week adopted the "anti inflation" platform, reaffirming the declaration in favor of gold and silver as the only legal tender; no paper currency not convertible with coin; the honest payment of the public debt in gold, and the inviolability of the public faith, which was adopted by the Democratic National Convention in 1872, and the New York Democratic State Convention last year. This platform was adopted with applause, there being but few dissenting votes. A resolution endorsing Governor Tilden's course, and also one approving the action of the Legislature in electing Senator Kernan were adopted. The following State ticket was nominated; Secretary of State, John Bigelow; Comptroller, Lucius Robinson; Attorney General, Charles S. Fairchild; State Treasurer, Charles N. Ross; State Engineer, John D. Van Buren, Jr., and Canal Commissioner, C. A. Walrath.

—The Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows of the United States met Monday in Indianapolis, Grand Sire Durham, of Kentucky, presiding. Representatives were present from all the Grand Lodges in the United States and from Canada and the Sandwich Islands. The report of the Grand Sire showed that lodges were being instituted "at all important points in the Republic of Switzerland." Chili's Grand Lodge and five subordinate lodges have been established in Peru and Chili, and that the Order is rapidly increasing in the Sandwich Islands and in Australia. R. H. Morrison, of Michigan, has been appointed special deputy to establish the Order in Great Britain. The Grand Secretary's report showed that the number of Grand Encampments and Lodges reporting was 84; Subordinate Encampments, 1630; Subordinate Lodges, 5987; Lodge member, 434,701—Encampment members, 83,416. In the afternoon, the Grand Lodge was formerly received at the Academy of Music, where addresses of welcome were made by Governor Hendricks, Mayor Caven, Senator Morton and ex-Vice-President Colfax. A grand parade of the Order took place Wednesday.
