-Chicago, the largest grain market in the world, handles about 90,000,000 bushels annually, and has now in operation eighteen steam elevators, with a capacity of 15,350,000 bushels, or more than the average product of 1,000,000 acres of the fertile wheat-producing lands of the continent. Their capacity varies from 200,000 bushels to 1,500,-The entire cost of the eighteen elevators now in operation was about five million dollars, exclusive of the cost of the ground on which they stand.

BEES .-- The California Agriculturalist says that there are 2,000,000 beenives ist eays that there are 2,000,000 beshives in the United States, each hive yielding a little over twenty-two pounds of honey in a year. The average price at which honey is sold is estimated at twenty-five cents a pound, from which it appears that bees, after paying their own board, present us with a revenue of about $8,000,000 a year. Or, it may be said that they give a pound of nore own board, present us with a revenue of about $8,000,000 a year. Or, it may be said, that they give a pound of pure honey to every man, woman and child in the United States. The Agriculturist estimates that the profits on the sale of surplus honey at from fifty to two hundred per cent. on the capital invested. But all bees are not so well educated as those of California. The honey that comes to us from California when not cut up and bottled, is contained in little square wooden frames, probably six by six inches, in which the bees deposit it ready for transportation. The upper side of the otherwise flat frame is made of a thin piece of wood shapen like a V. The bees begin building on the lower point of the V, and are thus made to keep their wax structure in the middle of the frame, After the honey has been deposited the frames may be packed closely together, and each layer is kepta separate from the others by the projecting sides of the frame. California honey usually reaches Eastern markets in this way, but for retail sale is taken honey usually reaches Eastern markets in this way, but for retail sale is taken from the frames and packed in glass bottles or jars.
