SATURDAY MORNING NOV. 27, 1875.

Volume IV., No. 1.

"KEEP thy shop, and thy shop will keep thee."

When, to-day three years ago, we issued the first number of the CARBON ADVOCATE, we little dreamed to meet with the encouragement all along extended to us. Indeed, when we first undertook its publication, success was extremely problematical. Having but recently driven our stakes in a community of comparative strangers, crippled in means, and limited in credit, all will agree with us that our prospects were far from flattering; but having made up our mind to publish a paper, we went at it with a will, convinced that, if we would but "keep our shop, it would keep us," which it has done to this day. During the first year of its existence, the circulation of the ADVOCATE was naturally small—the paper hardly paying its way, and, but for the very liberal manner in which the people of this place, Weissport, Parryville and the surrounding neighborhood patronized us with job work, we should have been compelled to seek a better field elsewhere. But the liberality of our neighbors, our frugal way of living, coupled with the exercise of the most rigid economy, carried us safely through the second year, as well as through the panic. Since then our progress has been gradual, but steady, and we acknowledge to-day but one county paper superior to our own in point of circulation. In addition to this very satisfactory result, we can boast of a job office as complete as any in this region of country, and what is more satisfactory still—it is paid for! Now precisely what share of our success we might justly claim as exclusively our own it would be hard to determine; indeed for much of it we are indebted to those that have so kindly and liberally patronized us, and while thanking them for past patronage, we shall endeavor, by promptness and fair dealing, to secure its continuance during the future.

With regard to the ADVOCATE, we are glad to perceive that our efforts to render it a first-class family paper are appreciated, of which our steadily increasing circulation is ample proof. We shall aim hereafter to make it even more interesting than heretofore, and with this pledge enter with our readers upon the Fourth Volume of our existence. Our principles are too well known to require particular mention, and our motto will continue to be the same as heretofore—"LIVE AND LET LIVE!"

—According to the annual report of General Benet, Chief of the Bureau of Ordnance, the strength of the organized militia of the United States is 84,724, and the unorganized 3,071,877. If arms and military equipments could be more freely supplied, the General says "the organized force would be greatly enlarged,

Death of Vice President Wilson.

Vice President Wilson died suddenly and unexpectedly Monday morning, of apoplexy. The President, when informed of the sad event, at once called a Cabinet meeting, and Secretary Fish was deputed to unite on the part of the President and Cabinet in any arrangement that might be made regarding the funeral. At noon a meeting of the Senators and Representatives now in Washington was held, the Chief Justice presiding, at which a committee of nine, headed by Senator Boutwell, was appointed to take charge of the obsequies. In the afternoon an order was issued by the President announcing to the people the death of the Vice President, and ordering the customary honors and display of mourning for the distinguished dead. When the news of the Vice President's death reached Boston, Governor Gaston at once made official announcement of the loss sustained by his State and the country, and called a meeting of the State Council. A meeting of the Boston Board of Aldermen was held last night, and after receiving a message from the Mayor, proper action was taken. In Philadelphia, New York, Baltimore, New Orleans, Little Rock, Albany, Fall River, Worcester, and other cities flags were half-masted, courts were adjourned, meetings were held, and official notice was taken by the Mayors and other city officers of the country's loss. The Fifth Maryland Regiment offered its services as an escort to the remains of the deceased Vice President on their passage through Baltimore. The news of Mr. Wilson's death reached Little Rock while the Senate of Arkansas was in session, and that body immediately adjourned as a mark of respect.

Hon. Henry Wilson was born at Farmington, N. H., February 16, 1812. His parents were very poor, and at the age of ten he was apprenticed to a farmer in his native town, with whom he continued eleven years, during which time he went to school at irregular intervals amounting in all to about twelve months. He was a great reader, however, and in this way obtained much information from a private library in the town.

On arriving at his majority, he left Farmington and walked, with a pack on his back, containing all his worldly possessions, to Natick, Massachusetts. Here he apprenticed himself to a shoemaker, and spent two years learning that trade; after which he went to a number of academies in various towns in New Hampshire and Massachusetts, paying for his education out of the money he had saved; but in a short time the person to whom he had entrusted his savings became insolvent, his plan of education was cut short, and he resumed work as a shoemaker in 1836. His early calling and his apprenticeship of it gave him among his neighbors the well-known appellation of the "Natick Cobbler."

Mr. Wilson entered political life in the Presidential campaign of 1840, making over sixty speeches in behalf of President Harrison the Whig candidate. In the next five years he served in the State Legislature of Massachusetts, three years as a Representative and two as a State Senator. He was an active and zealous opponent of slavery, and in 1845, in conjunction with John G. Whittier, carried to Washington the great anti-slavery petition from Massachusetts against the annexation of Texas. His chief political efforts were subsequently made in opposition to slavery, and in 1848 he took a prominent part in the organization of the "Free Soil" party being made chairman of the Massachusetts State Committee of that party, which post he filled for four years.

Mr. Wilson in 1848 entered newspaper life, buying the Boston Republican, which he edited for two years, but he did not continue in the profession afterwards. In 1850 he was again elected a State Senator, and during that and the subsequent year he was President of the "Free Soil" National Convention which met at Pittsburg, and was made chairman of the National Committee. The same year he was a "Free Soil" candidate for Congress in the Massachusetts Eighth District and failed of an election by only 23 votes. In 1853 he was a member of the Massachusetts Constitutional Convention, and the same year was the "Free Soil" candidate for Governor, but was beaten.

Mr. Wilson first appeared in Congress in 1855, when he was chosen United States Senator as the successor of Edward Everett, a post that he filled for eighteen years, being the colleague of the late Senator Sumner. He was always an earnest opponent of slavery, and when the Republican party was formed, he took an active share in its organization. It was in May, 1856 that Mr. Sumner was attacked by Preston S. Brooks of South Carolina, and Mr. Wilson, in a speech in the Senate, denounced the act as a "brutal, murderous and cowardly assault." For this Brooks challenged him, but he declined to accept the challenge, because dueling was a barbarous practice, which the law branded as a crime, but he stated at the same time that he believed in the right of self-defence in its broadest sense." He took an active part in almost every subject of political discussion before the Senate anterior to the war.

When, after the beginning of the Rebellion, the Republican party became a majority in the State, Senator Wilson was made Chairman of one of the most important committees that of Military Affairs, a post which he held for twelve years, during that time performing a prodigious amount of labor. The Senator was conspicuous in the advocacy of all war measures and the emancipation policy during the war, and afterwards took a prominent part in the Reconstruction policy of the Republican party, and against that advocated by President Johnson. He took a leading part in the advocacy of the constitutional amendments, of the Freedmen's Bureau bill, and of the other acts of Congress that were passed at this eventful period, and was the author of the first Civil Rights bill introduced into Congress for the protection of persons of color in the District of Columbia. In 1868 Mr. Wilson was a prominent candidate before the Republican National Convention for Vice President. Schuyler Colfax, then speaker of the House, being however ultimately nominated after five ballots had been taken. In 1872 being a candidate for Vice President, Wilson was nominated over Colfax by a small majority, his success being mainly due to his support by the delegation from Pennsylvania. He was elected in the autumn of 1872, and assumed his duties as Vice President March 4, 1873. For some time past he has been in poor health, and his recent illness is familiar to the public.

Senator Wilson was a man of great industry, and in his later years was the author of several important political works. He wrote the "History of the Anti-slavery Measures of the 37th and 38th Congresses," the "Military Measures of Congress," "History of the Reconstruction Measures of the 39th and 40th Congresses," the "History of the Part which Congress Played in the War to suppress the Rebellion," and "Testimonials of American Statesmen and Jurists to the Truths of Christianity." His last and greatest work, and the one which his death leaves unfinished, is the "History of the Rise and Fall of Slavery in the United States." Had his life been spared he hoped to complete this work next spring. Mr. Wilson was the last survivor of his own household; and among the things upon which he looked were the memorials of his departed wife and son.

Current Events.

—A telegram from Washington states that at the meeting of the Executive Committee of the Union League in Philadelphia, on the 11th inst., it was unanimously agreed that the League should be re-organized, and an amendment to its constitution and ritural adopted which would "adapt them to the living issues of the day." The President and Secretary of the League have addressed a circular to its members, in which they assert that "the common schools are in danger," and call upon the Leaguers "to rally to their defence."

—Hon. Orrin S. Ferry, United States Senator from Connecticut died Sunday in Norwalk. His health had been failing for some time.

—As General John D. Imboden was about to get upon a northern bound train at Richmond, Va., on Saturday morning, he was approached by General Bradley T. Johnson, who, after telling Imboden that he had been looking for him all day, struck him several blows with a cowhide. Imboden made at Johnson, when the latter drew a pistol, but before he could use it the belligerents were separated and arrested, and were subsequently placed under bonds for their appearance before the Police Court on Monday. Imboden gave testimony in the contested election case of Knight against Johnson, and this is supposed to have provoked the assault.

—At Locust Dale, Pa., on Saturday a box containing a keg of powder, on which several miners were sitting, was exploded by the dropping of a spark. The men were terribly injured and three of them—Alfred J. Steely, John Durkin and Mordecai Jones—died soon after. Another, named Payne, was not expected to survive.

—The report of Adjutant General Townsend states that during the year ending June 30, last, the army of 25,000 men lost only 2021 by desertions, against 4850 during the previous year. In the years 1867–68 the number of desertions was 10,000 in an army of 25,000 men. The falling off in desertions is attributed to the improvement in the recruiting system. He recommends that authority be given for the enlistment of boys over 12 years of age to learn music for the purpose of supplying field music to companies.

—"An unprecedented religious revival" is reported in Port Jervis, where, it is said, over 600 persons have been converted during the past few weeks.

—Hon. John Wells, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, died Tuesday at Salem, aged 56.

—Matthew Christie, and Archibald McCausland, book-keepers in the First National Bank of Paterson N. J., were arrested Tuesday, on the charge of having embezzled two thousand dollars from the Bank. They made false entries of credit in their own names. It is thought Christie's pilferings were carried on for two years.

—Robert Payne, who was injured by the powder explosion at Locustdale, Penna., on Saturday, died Tuesday, making the fourth victim of the disaster.

—William Davidson was killed by a railway train at Louisville, on Monday night just after he had saved a man from serious injury, by stopping a runaway team.

—In consequence of the retirement from business of Messrs. Duncan, Sherman & Co., New York, who were the agents for the payment of the interest on the first mortgage loan of the Belvidere and Delaware railroad Company the remaining coupons will be paid as they come due by the treasurer of the company, at Trenton, N. J., or they may be collected through the Trenton Banking Company.

—William B. Ashton, died at his residence, in New York, on Wednesday morning last, aged 83 years. His estate is valued at $10,000,000.

THE REMEDY FOR THE COMING CONFLICT BETWEEN THE ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH AND THE AMERICAN REPUBLIC.

A LECTURE

By the REV. FATHER STACK, of Williamsport, in the LUTHERAN REF. CHURCH, of WEISSPORT, Pa., on Monday Evening, Dec. 13th, 1875.

The Doors will Open at SEVEN o'clock.

An Impartial and Eloquent Defence of American Principles, by a Roman Catholic Priest.

This Lecture is spoken of in the highest terms by the Press, and is an eloquent defence of American Principles in such manner as to convince the reverend gentleman's co-religionists, as well as citizens in general, of the necessity of limiting the absolute power of the Roman Catholic Bishops in America.

It will be remembered that Father Stack is the Priest of Williamsport engaged in controversy with the Bishop of that District. He discourses his subject with clearness and indulges in no personalities. The question he treats is undoubtedly the issue of the times, and likely to become, ere long, of paramount importance to the United States.

☞ Don't fail to hear this Lecture.

Admission, 25 cents.

THE WEEKLY SUN.

1776. NEW YORK. 1876.

Eighteen hundred and seventy-six is the Centennial year. It is also the year in which an Opposition House of Representatives, the first since the war, will be in power at Washington; and the year of the twenty-third election of a President of the United States. All of these events are sure to be of great interest and importance, especially the two latter; and all of them and everything connected with them will be fully and freshly reported and expounded in THE SUN.

The Opposition House of Representatives, taking the line of inquiry opened years ago by THE SUN will sternly and diligently investigate the corruptions and misdeeds of GRANT'S administration: and will, it is to be hoped lay the foundation for a new and better period in our national history. Of all this THE SUN will contain complete and accurate accounts, furnishing its readers with early and trustworthy information upon these absorbing topics.

The twenty-third Presidential election, with the preparations for it, will be memorable as deciding upon GRANT'S aspirations for a third term of power and plunder, and still more as deciding who shall be the candidate of the party of Reform, and as electing that candidate. Concerning all these subjects, those who read THE SUN will have the constant means of being thoroughly well informed.

The WEEKLY SUN, which has attained a circulation of over eighty thousand copies, already has its readers in every State and Territory, and we trust that the year 1876 will see their numbers doubled. It will continue to be a thorough newspaper. All the general news of the day will be found in it, condensed when unimportant, at full length when of moment; and always, we trust treated in a clear, interesting and instructive manner.

It is our aim to make the WEEKLY SUN the best family newspaper in the world, and we shall continue to live up to its columns a large amount of miscellaneous reading, such as stories, tales, poems, scientific intelligence and agricultural information, for which we are not able to make room in our daily edition. The agricultural department especially is one of its prominent features. The fashions are also regularly reported in its columns; and so are the markets of every kind.

The WEEKLY SUN, eight pages with fifty-six broad columns is only $1.20 a year, postage prepaid. As this price barely repays the cost of the paper, no discount can be made from this rate to clubs, agents, Postmasters, or anyone.

The DAILY SUN, a large four page newspaper of twenty eight columns, gives all the news for two cents a copy. Subscription, postage prepaid, 55c. a month, or $6.50 a year. Sunday edition extra, $1.10 per year. We have no traveling agents. Address, THE SUN, N. Y. City. Nov. 27,—6t
