The ball of Lehigh Hook & Ladder Co., No. 1, of this place, on Friday evening of last week, was a decided success. About 100 couples were present, consisting of some of our most respectable citizens. The music was furnished by the Eureka Orchestra of Allentown, and if anything excited their former efforts in this place. Everything passed off quietly and pleasantly—all expressing themselves pleased with the evening's enjoyment. About $50 were netted by the company.

A young son of Simon S. Snyder, living at Lehigh Gap, was badly scalded on Tuesday morning of last week by accidentally pouring a tea kettle of boiling water on his body and arm. The pain caused by the scald was very acute, and the child suffered intensely until relieved by professional aid, and is now doing very well.—News.

The Outcast's Thanksgiving. It was the eve of Thanksgiving. In the land of the living. That a wretched outcast. Was walking, far from fast. The busy streets alone. Hearing not the busy throng. Who, thinking of the morrow. Had no thought of sorrow. No thought of others' woes. As they would heedward go.

"Oh! I'll find good rest at last," Said the poor outcast; "And though weak and weary, And life is sad and dreary, God will take pity on me I know. He will not think me sorry. Then who knows but what I may Yet have a Happy Thanksgiving Day!"

The poor soul was right. For he died that day. And they took his body away. From the street, on Thanksgiving Day!

Mr. J. F. Rowland, Principal of Parryville Schools, was in town on Saturday afternoon. We noticed his name mentioned as a candidate for the clerkship of County Commissioners. He would make an efficient clerk.

Oliver Brendler, Esq., sheriff, has been confined to his room for the last ten days. We are unable to state the nature of sickness.

A zinc tube has been laid about two feet below the ground, which connects the First and Second National banks. We have heard several explanations regarding the import of this tube, but suppose it is intended for either watch-man to give the other the alarm in case of an attempt at burglary.

Mr. S. H. Hollinger, the efficient pedagogue of Summit Hill, illuminated town for a short time on Saturday. He reports schools in a flourishing condition. Mr. H. receives the second largest salary of any teacher in the county, viz: one hundred and twenty dollars per month. Besides, he teaches a night school, from which he realizes sufficient to pay his current expenses. Who wouldn't like to teach school under such "impecunious" these hard times?

Al. Dingman, well known here and formerly mail carrier for the L. V. office, but now baggage master on the L. V. R. between Easton and Elmira, N. Y., met with an accident at the latter place on Sunday evening by being caught between the tank of the engine and baggage car, breaking several ribs and otherwise sustaining injuries; dispatches received here state he is getting along well.

Two tramps were equipping for the lockup the other evening; but we couldn't tell them exactly where it was; nevertheless we pointed in the supposed direction.

Bernard Phillips, Register and Recorder elect, was in town early Monday morning, and, in company with Maj. Robert Kiser, repaired to the reservoir to ascertain the leak in the pipes.

Mr. Charles Geer, dispatcher at Packerton and for the last year and a half a boarder at the Broadway House, has rented a house on Race street, which he is now furnishing and into which he will move in a few days.

The Lehigh Emery Wheel.

We are reliably informed that General Lilly and E. C. Burgess, Esq., of "The Lehigh Valley Emery Wheel Co." were at Washington, D. C., during last week, at the Government Navy Yard, to represent the Emery Wheels and machinery of said company at a grand trial test. The Lehigh wheel stood the hardest and severest tests without showing any signs of weakness. It received the highest praise from the chief engineers of the Navy Department. It was also recommended to the Ordnance and War Department.

This severe test and high recommendation speaks well for our enterprising neighbors who are engaged in it. The patronage of the Government would largely increase an already extensive business. During the month of October the company shipped goods amounting to more than five thousand dollars.

Broke his Leg.

Ephraim Roug, residing in Franklinton township while passing with the Weisport crew on the truck to the Packerton workshops on Saturday morning last, met with a very serious accident—double fracture of the left leg. The truck car was running close behind a coal train and when near Packerton the train suddenly stopped and the truck ran under the bumpers of the caboose and crushed the leg. Dr. N. B. Reber was sent for, who, after examination pronounced that the leg could be saved. The Dr. reports an unusual number of fractures and surgical cases this year, having no less than eight under his own immediate treatment at the present time. The Dr. holds the appointment of U. S. Examining Surgeon for this district, having been re-appointed when the last appointments were made, thus holding the same for his second term, which proves that the Government is well satisfied with his abilities and services.

The Schneeksville Murder.

Some time on Friday afternoon, of last week, says the Allentown Morning Herald, Mrs. Maria Schneek, aged 63 years, the wife of Mr. Joseph Schneek, was murdered at the residence of the family, situated about two miles from Schneeksville, near Hollenbach's mill, Lowhill township. The circumstances of the murder are briefly these: Mr. Schneek, who had been away from home since noon on Friday, returned soon after five o'clock on that evening, and shortly afterwards entered the house of his nearest neighbor, Mr. Peter Schmick, and, in a state of great excitement, informed him that something was wrong at his house. He said that when he reached home he expected to find his wife engaged in the preparation of supper, but was surprised to find everything dark and no sign of life about his home. He approached the house and called his wife, but there was no response. At this he began to be alarmed and suspecting something wrong, he went to the barn and hid his pocket book, and then going to the house he opened the door cautiously, and went in, carefully feeling his way in the darkness. In the kitchen he stumbled over something on the floor, and reaching down became aware that a dead body was there. He touched the cold hand and thrilled with horror, in his excitement and fear he rushed from the house, terrified and amazed, to alarm his neighbors and get others to search his home with him, and uncover the horror which the darkness veiled. Such was the story with which Joseph Schneek, pale and terrified, burst in upon the family of Mr. Schmick on Friday evening. At once a company of neighbors was gathered, lights were procured, and in a body they proceeded to what proved to be the scene of a tragedy. And when they reached Joseph Schneek's home they discovered this: Olose to the churn at which she evidently had been at work, stretched on the floor lay the body of Mrs. Schneek in a pool of blood, while around the floor, the walls, the churn, a chair, were spattered and splashed with the dark red stains. She had evidently been struck a number of times with some sharp, heavy instrument, and the face was battered and smashed beyond recognition. The arm and shoulder were bruised, the jaw and nose broken with a terrible blow on the cheekbone, these were evidences of the fiendish brutality with which the lady had been beaten to death. Searching the house, a desk in an adjoining room was found broken open, the drawers pulled out and the contents thrown about the floor. Mr. Schneek was unable to say whether anything of value had been carried away, so that it is uncertain whether the murderer secured the booty he appeared by the condition of the desk to have been after. No weapon could be found at that time which seemed to be the instrument used for the preparation of the murder, but on Saturday morning there was found under a porch an axe, the blade of which had been carefully washed, but the handle stained with blood, bore evidence of the terrible use to which it had been put. Mr. Schneek had left his house, he stated, at eleven o'clock on Friday morning, and had been engaged all the afternoon at the sale of property of his late brother, John Schneek, which took place at Schneeksville. None of the neighbors had seen anyone around the house during the afternoon, and though there were vague stories of tramps about, no one could be found who had seen strangers at that immediate neighborhood that afternoon. The hired man Acker was away, and for a time suspicion rested upon him, but he has been able to clearly prove an alibi, and the bloody deed so far must be catalogued as a "mysterious crime." Dr. W. P. Kistler made a very careful examination of the wounds on the body, and on the arrival of Squire Peter Gross an inquest was held at the house of Mr. Daniel Semmel. The jury sat until the early morning of Saturday and then adjourned to meet again at eight o'clock, when they rendered a verdict that the deceased came to her death at the hands of some person or persons unknown to the jury.

The Pulpit.

To the Editor of THE CARBON ADVOCATE: The subject matter of a pulpit discourse last Sabbath evening, was certainly not very edifying to an intelligent church audience. It brought up to the lecturer's mind thoughts of most disagreeable, disgusting and defiling scenes that have been in reality played out and talked down in every bar-room and saloon during the year we hear that some bituminous coal has been taken to the anthracite. It is fortunate for the anthracite dealers that the increase of demand for domestic axes has enabled them to sell so much more axes and chestnut coal than has heretofore been disposed of. A vast amount of winter and the opening of the trade in the spring under the same regulations have heretofore been adopted by the associated companies.—Phila. Ledger, 23d.

The following table shows the quantity of coal shipped over the Lehigh Valley Railroad for the week ending Nov. 26th, 1875 and for the year compared with the same time last year:
