The case of John McAllster, whom we mentioned in a former issue, settled that little case of fornication and seduction on Tuesday evening, by marrying the lady whom he "loved not wisely but too well."

In the case of D. Neff vs. Stephen Snyder, in assumpsit, before a board of Arbitrators held at the Broadway House, on Tuesday, an award rendered, no cause of action and plaintiff to pay costs. P. J. Meehan, Esq., for plaintiff, and Allen Craig, and Danl Kalbfus, Esqs., for defendant.

August Hartley, a resident of East Mauch Chunk, died on Saturday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, of dropsey. The funeral took place on Monday afternoon, and was attended by a large number of friends. Deceased was a mem-ber of the 28th Pa. volunteers, and in consequence many of the old soldiers accompanied his remains to their last resting place.

A remarkable case in slander was tried on Wednesday afternoon, before Arbitrators at the Broadway House. The case was a smutty one, and we are astonished that such cases are brought before the public. Yet when persons will insist in slandering others we believe they should be punished to the full extent of the law. In this case no verdict was rendered up to writing, but we believe the arbitrators will return a verdict of no cause of action.

Mr. Tropp, butcher, of Weissport, met with what might have been a serious accident on Friday last. The facts as near as we could learn them are as follows: Mr. T. had driven to the L. & S. depot for a friend, and while waiting for the train an engine came along which blew its whistle, thereby frightening the horse and causing it to The horse however did not run away. run far until it was stopped, but not until it had torn lose from the wagon and damaged the harness. Mr. T. sus-tained several injuries, but in no way

A tramp who gave his name as Mo-Donald, was arrested on Tuesday night for stealing an overcoat and scare from the residence of 'Spuire Frisbie, belonging to Mr. Frisbie's father. The tramp entered the house by the back way, secured his booty and was not disturbed till he got on High-st., when he was captured and lodged in jail. This was not forging a note or stealing several hundred dollars worth of goods and yet because he was a tramp he was put in prison, while those other gentlemen are as free as those who never committde a crime.

Mr. E. Harlan, who died at his nome on Race street, on Thursday of last week, was buried on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The funeral was a very large one, in fact the largest we ever saw in Mauch Chunk. Four orders to which Mr. Harlan belonged followed his remains to the grave, viz: Masons, Odd Fellows, American Mechanics and Knights of Honor. It seemed that every man in town was in file so long was the procession. The Masons performed the ceremonies at the grave, at the conclusion of which other orders followed in file and dropped green twigs into the grave. In the evening Rev. Mr. Wiggins, of the M. E. church preached the funeral sermon. The church was crowded.

Last Saturday the Commissioners met and resolved to put an end to a littie matter which has been in contempla-Mon for the last year, viz: to have the bar in the Court house remoddled, in order to give room to the lawyers em-ployed in the various cases. The change in the bar was greatly needed and will keep all outside who are not members and officers of the Court. Heretofore when a lawyer arose to address the jury or even get a few sheets of paper, some one with more brass than modesty, took his chair and left him to stand or do the best he could In other counties no one is admitted inside the bar unless a member or offi-cer, and we think it should be so here, It is like every one loafing in another's office.

"Murder will out," is an old and true saying. Our popular druggists, Hughes and MacCrea, for the last six weeks were missing various articles from their show case. They were positive some one was stealing their goods, but who the individual was, was a mystery to For more than five weeks, ever since the first missing of the goods, have they been on the lookout for the thief. It was not until Sunday night at one o'clock that the perpetrator was detected and followed to his office, where he was about to begin his day's work. The person who was so low in the scale of honesty as to indulge in such petty stealing was a Mr. Selbert, externally a gentleman. He was employed by the L. & S. railroad company and by profession an operator. He is married and he and his wife boarded at the American Hotel. When first broached on the subject of his stealing he was somewhat reluctant in confessing but finally sucumbed. The evidence was too strong against him. Articles were found and identified which he had already put up in pack-ages ready to ship off. In this way from time to time were all the articles sent way to friends and sold to differ-ent parties. Bughes and MacCrea settled the case with him on the condisettled the case with him on the condi-tions that he would give his gold watch as satisfaction and leave town as soon as he could pack his goods. We believe he has packed up and left town for his former home at Altoona, Pa. We have only to say that it is our impression that this individual should have been put in fail to await his trial at the bar put in jail to await his trial at the bar of Justice. There is too much settling of cases, which we are inclined to think tinges strongly of compounding of fel-

The anthracite coal trade is unusually quet, and has stood in the same inactive condition for the past two or three weeks. The large stock of coal on the n arket renders it quite certain that there will be no scarcity, even with severe weather for the remainder of the winter, now nearly half gone. The trouble just now beginning to be expressed is a scarcity of ice. season of production of that summer luxury is fast passing away, and, unlike flie winter neces. sity of fuel, it can be obtained only in its prop er season. There is time enough yet, however, for the manufacture of much see, and we have nearly or quiet passed the period of fear of a want of fuel. The Commonation Committee on rules for the regulation of the business of 1876 has not yet reported, a though it is said to have had numerous sessions. The outlook of the trade for the next year can as yet scarcely be divined, though the operators, as well as the carrying companies, are hopeful. The present stock of coal, it is expected, will be pretty well worked off before the period usual for the open ing of the next year's traffic, and as the annua reports of the carrying companies will probably embody a lesson of prudence in the future, the coal trade in all its branches the current year may considerably improve. - Ledger, 10th.

Lebighton Thieves. Under the above caption, the Morning Herald, of the 11th mst., says: About two weeks ag several licins appeared in the columns of the Herald, giving accounts of various robberies committed by some unknown parties in and about Lehighton, Weissport and Packerton. uspicion has rested on several parties, and Monday one of these was arrested, though not for any of these offences, but for another, that of stealing the keys of the systch-tender at the Lehigh Gap, Mr. Lewis P. Peters. On Mouday, Jan. 3rd, at 9 p. m., Mrs. Peters, who was at the time attending to some work on the second floor, heard the light footsteps of some one in the bar-room below. she immediately left her work and came down to see who it was, but on work and came down to see who it was, but on ontering the bar-room found no one there. Mr. Peters came in shortly after and having occasion to look for his keys which he carried in his overcost, discovered that both coat and keys were gone. It was immediately suspected that they were stolen, and as the keys in the hands of a dishonest person would enable hun to do considerable mischelf, giving him access to all the freight cars, careful search for the third was at once instituted. The facts were made known to that vicilant and caceful official, air, D. Frimmer, who has enarge of the cars of the Ledgh Valley railroad. He at once proceeded to investigate the matter, and after considerable trouble succeeded in tracing the goods into the possession of a young main named fearly behaved. Mr. Trummer swor not warrant before a usino fleyer, of south Bethiehen, look into the possession of a young main named fearly behaved, and caused the arreas of young Denhard. Denhard at first denied an knowledge of the three and told Mr. Trummer that he wasn't smart enough for him. Sut when he discovered that his gonings and comings for the last week were perfectly known to Mr. Trummer he continued them up to this gentleman. Young Denhard's stories are very contradictory. He insists now that the articles were stolen in charge until Huller would call for them, and that know were given tim to keep them in charge until Huller would call for them, and that they were given tim to keep them in charge until Huller would call for them, and that itself were given in the sought of the has before that he would steal he as any quantity of keys for freight cars on this road, the confesses also that he knew they were stolen and that isuler nad told nim two weeks before that he would steal them. We say the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and lass any quantity of keys for freight cars on this road, the confesses asso that he knew they were stolen and that isuler rad told and twe weeks before that he would steal inhem the weak broader as doods taken ther entering the bar-room found no one there.
