tracks and great masses of rock and coal. The roof of the fan house at the top of the air shaft was torn to pieces, and other damages, amounting to thousands of dollars in the aggregate wrought; but there were twenty-five men below, and the many miners who stood near the breaker hastened with all speed to relieve their distress. The main shaft was very badly damaged, but an entrance was effected. It was a dangerous business to hunt for those below in the uncertain condition of the mines, filled as they were with fire damp and with most of the pure air drawn out; but the volunteers prosecuted their work for three hours, and had sent to the surface 12 men, four of whom were dead, and the others more or less burned or mangled. The report of the explosion had spread among the hundreds of idle miners, and in a short time after the disaster crowds were gathered about the breaker. There were a few women present and some of them were kept in a state of agonized suspense pending the rescue of those below. When at last the bodies of the dead and the blackened forms of the mangled were brought up great distress and sorrow was manifested by all. The men were returned to the surface at intervals and as the dead and injured followed each other the agony of those who had friends still below was increased by the terrible uncertainty resulting in the unavoidable delay of the sorrowful business of bringing the bodies up; but the work was finally completed, when it was ascertained that four men had been killed outright and six or eight badly injured. The names of those killed are D. Smalley, Edward Allen, Thomas Harris and Alex Jones.

More of the "Mollies."

The following account of the hearing on the writ of habeas corpus in the case of the Molde Maguire murderers at Pottsville on Saturday last, we take from the columns of an extra published by the Mauch Chunk Democrat on Monday morning last:

On the 9th inst., Hon. Cyrus L. Pershing, President Judge of Schuylkill county, allowed a writ of habeas corpus ad testificandum to issue, directing Sheriff Brenneiser of this county to convey the body of James Kerrigan to Pottsville on the 11th instant in order that he might give evidence in the case of James Carroll and others charged with being principals and accessories in the murder of Policeman Frank in Yost, of Tamaqua, on the night of the 5th of July last, and who had made application for release on bail. In accordance with this mandate Kerrigan was taken from our jail on Saturday morning at 7:30, o'clock. Capt. Lesser making the return of the writ.

General Albright, whose efforts in the prosecution of Doyle for the murder of Jones (and of which Kerrigan is indicted as accessory) were so eminently successful, had made the necessary arrangements for having the "leaker" conveyed to Pottsville on a special train, and under the charge of Capt. Foster of the Coal and Iron Police, assisted by a sufficient number of officers to make the prisoner secure, the noted individual was whirled by the scenes of his presumed manifold crimes, until the train reached Palo Alto, where, for prudential reasons he was taken and conveyed from thence in a close carriage to the court house.

Ten o'clock, the hour assigned for the hearing arrived, and the audience was called to order by his Honor, Judge Pershing—law Judges Green and Walker, and Associate Justice Seltzinger being on the bench with him, when announcement was made that the hearing would be private, and that no persons would be admitted but the court, the counsel, prisoners and others connected with the case. A strong feeling of disappointment pervaded the anxious throng but there was no help for it—they had to retire.

The prisoners were brought in and Carroll was the only one perceptibly affected by the peculiar situation. They were seated near their counsel, Hons. J. W. Ryon and Lin Barthole mew.

The Commonwealth was represented by Gen. Charles Albright, of this borough, Hon. E. W. Hughes and District Attorney Koecher of Schuylkill. Also present were Hons. Wm. M. Randall, O. P. Bechtel and James Ellis, Gen. Siegfried, and Messrs. C. F. Shindle, W. Ramsay Potts, R. C. Green and Wm. Fox.

Through the courtesy of the Court the Democrat's reporter and others were allowed to remain, but an imperative injunction was laid upon publication. Consequently we can not publish anything but what has been supervised by the counsel for the prosecution.

James Kerrigan was the first witness placed on the stand, and the prisoners gazed on him anxiously and eagerly, paying strict attention to every word he said. When the witness commenced perfect silence prevailed and continued throughout the whole examination. Gen. Albright commenced the interrogatories, but once started the witness did not be state much, and little prompting was required to get his statement.

On his cross-examination the following statement was made:

I came from Mauch Chunk jail. I made a confession of the murder of Jones at the same time I related the facts of the Yost murder. No one asked me to confess, but I told it of my own accord. I do not expect to clear myself by telling this, and I expect to be punished for my share in the killing of Jones. I was with the men that did the deed, and I don't deny it. They wanted me to help them, but I wouldn't do it. Ollie is Peeler and Shepp and Mr. Hughes were present when I made the confession. I to Mr. Shepp and Mr. Hughes. Alexander Campbell handed me a pistol and wanted me to go alone and help kill Jones. Medeerman is the man that cleaned the pistols and gave them to Kelly and Doyle. Michael Doyle and the pistol (this pistol was the one in question of Dr. DeYoung's having been the fatal instrument.) I was not expected to take charge of them.

Objection was here made by the Commonwealth that anything concerning the Jones murder was irrelevant, but after some crossfiring between counsel, Kerrigan remained:

McGeehan gave Doyle the pistol at his saloon, Alexander Campbell, Doyle, Kelly and myself were present. I was about half-past ten o'clock at night. Alexander Campbell put me on my knees and made me promise I would never say anything about it drunk or sober. He wanted Doyle to shoot Jones at his own door. The pistol did not belong to me; I never owned it. There were two or three other persons in McGeechan's saloon at the same time I took the oath.

Some of the secrets of the association known as the "Molly Maguires" were exposed in which he acknowledged himself a member of the order, and also acknowledged a rule of the society requiring its members to commit murder when directed by its authorities.

Among the other witnesses examined was Dr. Soliday, who heard Yost's ante-mortem statement in which he stated that he saw the men who shot him; that one was tall and the other a shorter man; and the description given tallies with the personal appearance of McGeechan and Doyle. A man named Rincker, also testified that he saw these men at Carroll's saloon on the afternoon of the 5th of July, and other evidence was given which clearly fixes the guilt on those parties if it is perfectly damning. The Court was so clearly convinced of this, that they would not listen to any argument, but remanded the prisoners to jail to await further action on the part of the authorities.

B. Franklin Yost was assassinated some time during the night of July 5th 1875, while putting out the last lamp on the route. Yost was concerned that night about his partner, Barney McCarron. It was not his turn to put the lights out, but he did it to save McCarron from exposure to the assassins, who he thought were living in wait for him. They had deceived Yost completely, and he was the man they were after. But the suspected parties were shadowed by the police and detectives ever since, and the connection it is said, was traced long ago between the Yost murder, and that of John P. Jones. It is said that it can be proven that Kerrigan and Duffy demanded the death of Yost, that Medeerman and Boyle did the work, that Carroll loaned the pistol that had been loaned to him by Berry to do the shooting, that after the murder was committed, he, assisted by Duffy, hid the principals in the crime, and Kerrigan acted as the pilot. Although it is averred the murderers were paid for the deed in green backs, yet they made the demand on Duffy and Kerrigan for the murder of John P. Jones, and were compelled to furnish parties to slaughter him. Doyle and another man, an old man it is stated, were drawn. Kelley took pay on the latter and volunteered to go in his place; the rest is well known to our readers. We do not say that all this is true, but the truth will be known when the statement of Kerrigan is made public and other evidence is submitted.

As we before stated we are allowed to publish only a small portion of the testimony, but such extraordinary developments having been made the blows will strike like lightening, and men heretofore above suspicion but now inculpated will have the law's vengeance meted out to them that they so richly deserve.

The statements made go to show that Alexander Campbell, now incarcerated in our county jail is a notable villian, he being implicated in something like a dozen murders. Apparently he is one of the leaders, being a man of intelligence. It would seem that he was the chief planner of these horrible murders, the demand being made on him and he furnishing the instruments. The recital of this testimony is terrible and such a burden of guilt resting on one man we should think would be more than could be borne.

After the close of the proceedings Kerrigan was taken to the depot and brought back to Mauch Chunk by way of Allentown.

The feeling against Kerrigan is very bitter, and denunciatory exclamations such as he "ought to be shot" he ought to be hanged," were quite common.

Doyle and Kelly have separate cells, are not cognizant of the traitorous part that Kerrigan has performed, and they will probably not be made aware of it until the time arrives for arguing the motion for a new trial in behalf of Doyle.

The Coal Trade.

The shipment of coal from the mines is now literally nothing and the amount being distributed from the coal centres is quite light. The numerous mills west have shortened the demand for domestic uses very materially, and as winter is well nigh over there is every probability of an unusual large stock of coal being carried over into the current season's active trade. The principal subject of inquiry in the trade is the adjustment of some rates for the production and carrying of coal by the great producing companies for the current year similar to those intended to be in operation for the past three years, but which, it is to be regretted, were not as faithfully observed by all parties in the associated companies as could have been desired. To correct certain lapses in the past in this regard and to make all parts of the agreement more certainly binding has tended thus far to delay final action. There have been three or four meetings of representatives of the seven principal carrying companies (for the Pennsylvania Railroad Company is now to be included as one) but as yet no definite conclusion is announced. On Thursday of the past week there was another meeting, this time in this city, full, with a single unavoidable exception of those representatives, and a very good feeling was evinced, promising, more fairly than at any previous meeting, united action in producing and fully supplying the market with coal at coverel living prices. On Thursday of the present week another meeting of the representatives of the companies will be held, when, it is hoped, a satisfactory conclusion may be reached and be made public. The long unsettled condition of this important matter is causing considerable anxiety among all the interests involved and within the last few days has begun to tell on the prices of the stocks of the carrying companies.—Ledger, 14th.

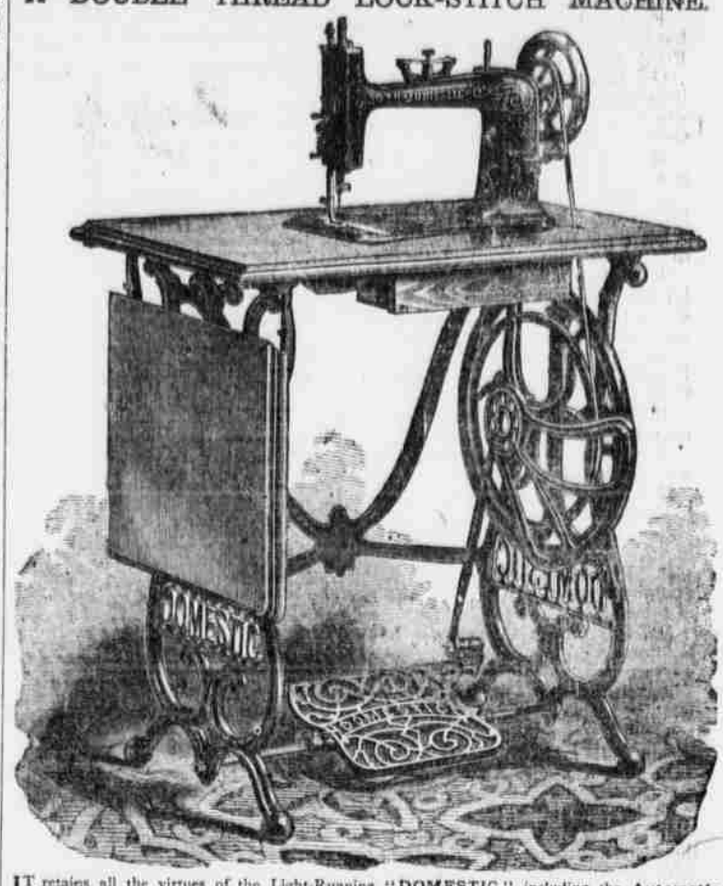
THE NEW "DOMESTIC,"

A DOUBLE THREAD LOCK-STITCH MACHINE.



IT retains all the virtues of the Light-Running "DOMESTIC," including the Automatic Tension, which was and is the best in use.

☞ Please notice our PATENT HARDENED CONICAL BEARINGS on both the Machine and Stand.

Our new and old ideas, worked out with brand new Machinery and Tools at our own new works, in the busy city of Newark, New Jersey, have given us a standard of MECHANICAL EXCELLENCE, Minimum of Friction, Maximum of Durability, and range of work, never heretofore reached in the Sewing Machine world.

TO THIS STATEMENT AND THE MACHINE ITSELF

We invite the attention of all, especially those having high mechanical skill or observation. N. B.—All Machines fully warranted.
