THE CROSS.

Quant though the construction be of the following poem, yet never has the story of the Cross been told with more truthful simplicity:

Blest they who seek,
While in their youth,
With spirit meek,
The way of truth.

To them the sacred Scriptures now display
Christ as the only true and living way;
His precious blood on Calvary was given
To make them heirs of endless bliss in heaven,
And even on earth the child of God can trace
The glorious blessings of His Saviour's grace.

For them he bore
His Father's brow;
For them he wore
The thorny crown;
Sinner to the cross,
Endured his pain,
Till his life's loss
Might be their gain.
Then haste to choose
The better part,
Nor ever dare refuse
The Lord thy heart,
Lest He declare,
"I know you not."
And weep despair
Should be your lot.

Now look to Jesus who on Calvary died,
And trust in Him who there was crucified.

Fred Lawrence's Adventure.

Lucy, said merry Kate Myrtle, addressing her cousin, Fred Lawrence, "where do you think Fred?" she asked. "The lady addressed looked up somewhat surprised at Kate's question, but she answered,—"

"In his room, poring over those old volumes of ancient history."
"You are much mistaken, Miss Lucy," replied Kate, her eyes sparkling with mischievous humor. "He would not be studying these dusty, dusty old books while there is so pretty a young lady as the widow Marston's daughter in the village!"

"What has Fred to do with Annie Marston?" inquired Lucy, as she endeavored to read the puzzling expression that rested upon her cousin's good-humored face.

"It was some moments before she received an answer to her question, when Kate with a slight laugh, replied,—
"Why, cousin, he's in love with her!"

"In love with Annie Marston? I don't believe it," exclaimed Lucy, in a tone of surprise and curiosity.
"Well, I'll tell you something, and then you may believe it or not, just as you please," returned Kate, with a serio-comical air. "Night before last, it was rather late when we retired, and I was unable to rest in my room, and with the hope that the night air would cool my burning brow, I left the house by the back garden path. By some means I changed to turn my eyes in the direction of the widow Marston's dwelling, and as the moon shone brightly, I could plainly see two figures standing upon the steps. One, I was sure was Annie, and the other, a young gentleman, I was sure I didn't know. They stood there a few moments, when Annie entered the house, and her companion, whom I thought looked like Fred, walked down the street. As he came near I was sure it was Fred. He entered the garden, and as I contemplated myself behind the rosebushes he did not see me. He cautiously approached the window from which I had made my egress, stepped in, and then closed it. In a few moments more I returned to the house. I knew that the person I had seen on the steps with Annie, was your brother, and no one else, and I was sure, also, that the old volumes of history hadn't been disturbed that evening!"

"And do you really believe that Fred spends his evenings with Annie Marston?" asked Lucy, as Kate ceased speaking.
"Certainly I do. Last night I watched him as I left the room after tea, and I saw that he slipped out and was in a few moments at the widow Marston's. It was nearly midnight when he returned, for I heard the window open and shut before the clock struck that hour."

"What motive could he have in being so secret about his visits?"
"He knows we should be continually teasing him respecting Annie, and doubtless prefers to keep his secrets safe from us."
"There can be no other reason," returned Lucy, laughing in spite of herself.
"We must punish Fred for doing so," said Kate, as her cousin seemed to comprehend the affair, "and I think we can prevent him from staying so late with Annie, by wasting fire and lights for nothing, as Uncle Joe would say."

"How do you think we can punish him severely enough to keep him at home?"
"I do not think we can prevent him from visiting Annie, but we can, I think, prevent him from staying later than ten in the evening; indeed, I am quite sure we can."
"How?"
"Kate bent her head and whispered for a few moments in the ear of her cousin, and after a few more merry words, they both sprang up and left the room."

"That night, just as the clock struck twelve, Fred Lawrence parted with his 'lady-love' on the steps of her mother's dwelling, and with a light heart turned his steps in the direction of his own

SEASONABLE RECIPES.

FROM THE HOUSEKEEPER.

War Cake.—One heaped coffee cup of sugar; butter the size of an egg; two eggs; one teaspoon of milk; three teaspoons of flour, with one heaping teaspoonful of baking powder rubbed in; two teaspoonfuls of bitter almond; and one fourth teaspoonful of salt.

Spice Cake.—One coffee cup of sugar; two thirds cup of butter; two eggs; half cup of milk; half cup of molasses; one cup of raisins, chopped; two heaping cups of flour; one and a half teaspoonfuls of cinnamon; one teaspoonful of cloves; and one and a half teaspoonfuls of nutmeg; one and a half teaspoonfuls of salt; and one and a half teaspoonfuls of soda, wet in a little cold water. Bake in a slow oven.

Baked Indian Pudding.—Three tablespoonfuls Indian meal; one qt. milk—keeping out one coffee cup of cold. Seal the remainder and pour upon the meal; scald teacup of molasses; two teaspoonfuls of butter; one and a half teaspoonfuls of salt. Put in the oven and add the cold milk without stirring.

Boiled Indian Suet Pudding.—To be eaten with roast beef.—Two coffee cups Indian meal; one and a half coffee cups molasses; one coffee cup chopped suet; one and a half teaspoonfuls salt; half teaspoon soda, put in dry. Seal all the above with two cups of water; add half cup of milk; steam four hours or five, if convenient. The longer it steams the better it is. To warm this dish up, put into siles and fry slowly in butter; to be kept covered while cooking.

Bread Pudding.—One qt. of milk; one and half coffee cups of fine bread crumbs; two eggs; one teaspoonful of butter; half teaspoonful of salt; four teaspoonfuls of sugar; about half a nutmeg. Soak the bread in half the milk until soft, then mash it well and add the rest of the milk, etc.

Cracker Pudding.—One qt. milk; four soda crackers; two eggs, well beaten; one fourth teaspoonful of salt. Roll the crackers fine and soak in half the milk. Then add the rest of the milk, etc. To be eaten hot with cold sauce.

Tapioca Pudding.—One qt. of milk, three tablespoonfuls of tapioca, two eggs; four tablespoonfuls, heaped, of sugar; one good teaspoonful of butter; half teaspoonful of salt; little nutmeg; soak the tapioca in half the milk before adding the rest of the above. After it has become heated in the oven stir up the butter. To be eaten hot.

Cottage Pudding.—Two and a half tablespoonfuls of butter, melted; two thirds coffee cup of sugar stirred together; two eggs, little salt and nutmeg, one pint of flour, with two teaspoonfuls of cream tartar stirred in; one teaspoonful of soda dissolved in a little cold water, and added last. Serve hot with hot sauce.

Boiled Custard.—Two tablespoonfuls of Duryea's corn starch to one qt. of milk; mix the corn with a little of the milk, scald the remainder, and add two eggs well beaten, the mixed corn, four tablespoonfuls of sugar, half teaspoonful of salt, and a half teaspoonful of vanilla flavoring; then boil about five minutes, stirring briskly. Served in lemonade glasses with cake, this makes a very delicate dessert.

Sally Lunn.—Into one quart of flour stir three tablespoonfuls sugar, half teaspoonful of salt, two teaspoonfuls cream tartar, then add two eggs, not beaten, a piece of butter the size of an egg, melted, and one teacupful of milk; dissolve one teaspoonful of soda in another teacupful of milk, and add last. This needs to be well beaten, and baked in a round pan. To be eaten hot with butter.

Graham Rolls.—Half teacup of lard and butter, on which pour hot water to fill the cup; one teacup of molasses, one teacup of yeast, one pint lukewarm water, one full quart of Graham flour, teaspoonful of salt. Make up at night for morning rolls, and bake in gem pans.

Muffins.—One quart of flour with three teaspoonfuls of baking powder rubbed in; one heaping teaspoonful of light brown sugar, one scant teaspoonful salt, one heaping teaspoonful of butter, melted; one egg, beaten; one pint of milk; bake in muffin rings. This recipe makes fifteen.

Peculiar.—One pint of flour sifted with one teaspoonful royal baking powder, a little salt, one egg. Mix with one pint milk; beat well, and bake quick in buttered gem pans.

Doughnuts.—Take one pound flour, mixed dry, with two heaping teaspoonfuls royal baking powder; then rub into the mixture one fourth pound of butter. Then add five ounces sugar, two eggs, and sufficient sweet milk to make it into a soft dough. Then roll it out and cut it into shapes with a paste cutter and boil them in lard till they are of a nice brown color.

Rice Batter Cakes.—Mix one fourth wheat flour to three fourths of rice flour; add a little salt; raise and bake as buckwheat cakes.

Rice Custard.—Into a quart of boiling milk stir two tablespoonfuls of rice flour, dissolved in a little cold milk; add two well beaten eggs to boiling mixture; sweeten and favor to taste.

Infants' Food.—Mix the rice flour with cold milk and stir it into the boiling milk until of the proper thickness; sweeten with loaf sugar.
