HUMOROUS.

An inebrate recently fell and struck his nose against a down town barber pole. On being raised from the ground he asked : "What'n thunder 'zat wo man wi' striped stock'ns on got agin me?"

Reporters are often unconsciously satirical. A morning paper says in an obituary : "Mr. —— was an estimable citizen. He lived uprightly ; he died with perfect resignation—he had been recently married."

A gentleman was examining an umbrella and commenting upon its fine quality. "Yes," said a person present, "he fancies everything he sees." "And," added a third person, "is inclined to seize everything he fancies."

"How did you like my sermon?" said a vain clergyman to a distinguished chance listener. "Ah, sir, there was one beautiful passage." "Yes, yes," said the dominie delighted, rubbing his hands ; "and what was that?" "The passage from the pulpit to the vestry."

A Judge is credited with the following decision : "The fact is, Jones, the jail is an old, rickety affair, as cold as an iron wedge. You applied to this court for a release on bail, giving it as your opinion that you would freeze to death there. The weather has not moderated, and to keep you from freezing, I will direct the sheriff to hang you at 4 o'clock this afternoon."

A witness was asked by a county court judge, recently : "Did you go to the party yourself?" Witness : "Yes, sir." Judge : "And what did he say to you?" Witness : "He told me to go to the devil, sir." "And so," said the Judge, quietly taking a pinch of snuff, with a roguish smile, "You came to the county court!" Many a true word spoken in jest.

Guy, the founder of the noble hospital in London which bears his name, was a bookseller. He was so complete a pattern of parsimony that the famous miser, Vulture Hopkins, once called on him to crave a lesson on the art of saving. Being introduced into the parlor, Guy, as it was in the evening, and dark, lighted a candle. Hopkins said, "Sir, I always thought myself perfect in the art of husbanding money. But as I am informed you far exceed me, I have taken the liberty of waiting upon you, to be satisfied upon that subject." "Oh, sir," said Guy, "if that be all your business, we can as well talk the matter over in the dark." Having thus said, he put out the candle. This was enough for the Vulture. He took his leave at once.
