The Drift of It.

Greatly as the present financial condition of our country, the paralytic state of our industries, and general administrative corruption are to be deplored, we must look to them as the causes most likely to effect that change for the better, so earnestly desired by all. For singly or collectively these causes, equally affecting all-the laborer and the capitalist as much financially as they must be repugnant to him who measures things morely by a moral standard - must eventuate in the overthrow of the present REGIME. It is in the nature of things, and to reason otherwise would be absurd. Indeed the popular verdict has siready gone forth-Grant and corruption are doomed! But yesterday and his word might have stood against the world; now, "none so poor to do him reverence."

Now, upon precisely what party the accomplishment of the much-needed reforms may devolve, is as difficult to redict as it should be immaterial to him who has the welfare of the country at heart. Of this, however, all may rest assured-Grant's successor, whoever it may be, will be a better, a purer man than Grant, as none other would be countenanced by the PEOPLE, who want a man of moral excellence, one in whom they can implicitly confide, to occupy the Executive chair. Of politicians and generals they have had their fill. They now want A MAN, and which party shall put forth the best candidate and offer such other guarantees for an honest administration of our national affairs as the people may deem sufficient, will be sure of their support-be he a Republican or Democrat, Such, at least, appears to be the sentiment, and, so far as we can discern, a sentiment worthy of the approval and encouragement of all the good.

-Sundry reports, says the Philadelphia Ledger, have come down from Harrisburg about the "Boom bill" in vestigation which have turned out to be untrue; sundry others are coming down from day to day upon which it will do no harm for the public to "suspend opinion," and therefore we say if -if it is true that Colonel Embich who was the active outside agent of the friends of the Boom bill, and Mr. Peter Herdic, who was the active outside agent of the opponents of the bill, have departed for parts unknown, and cannot be found by the search warrants of the Speaker of the House, they are giving the general public very strong reasons to believe that both the friends of the bill and the opponents of the bill were using corrupt measures to inflaence legislation. But perhaps these two active gentlemen, whose business outside of the State of Pennsylvania is reported to be so pressing just now that they cannot return home, may have gene off "in a joke," just as sundry members of the Legislature instructed their fellow members in a jocular way and just for the fun of the thing that a vote on the Boom bill was worth $400, and a "dodge" worth $200. And, by the way, one of these funny men seems to have carried $300 worth of joke in his pocket for two or three weeks before he let any one else see where the laugh came in, and even then did'nt seem to think he had carried the joke any too far.

-The steamship Helvetius, with the Brazilian Emperor on board, arrived at New York on Saturday afternoon. As the vessel steamed up the bay she fired a salute in honor of the United States flag, and was saluted in turn by the United States vessels lying off the Battery. The United States steamer Alert, having on board General Hancock and staff and Secretaries Fish, Taft and Robeson, met the Helvetius at quarantine, and the Secretaries were introduced to the Emperor and welcomed him to our snores. The committee of arrangements to receive the Emperor, of which General Dix is chairman, decided not to meet the Imperial visitor at the wharf, but a Brazilian merchant was on hand with a number of carriages, and there was also a force of one hundred police and a large crowd. The Emperor, however, landed at a pier some two miles distant, and escaped to the Fifth Avenue Hotel in a hired cab. Late at night he was serenaded by the tull band of the Seventh Regiment, and when he and the Empress appeared at the windows of the hotel "they were cheered lustily by the vast crowd be low, and the Emperor was called on for a specch." He bowed repeatedly, but past midnight, was allowed to remain in quiet. was speechless, and the time being then -The President on Wednesday sent a measage to the U. S. Senate vetoing the bill fixing the Presidential salary at $25,000 per annum.

-Says the Daily Graphic : It looks as if the country were striking bottom. During the three months just ended there were 2 806 business failures in the United States, against 1,438 in 1875, and the aggregate liabilities are $64,-644,156, as compared with $38,873,222 to 1875-a large and nearly equal increase of failures and liabilities. During the last quarter of last year the failures were 2,405. This is rather a disheartening showing, but it indicates at least that things are as bad as they can be ; and the reflection that it is darkest just before day affords reasonable ground for hope.

From the National Capital.

PROM OUR CORRESPONDENT. WASHINGTON, April, 17, 1876. It seems that there is never to be an end of the blackening developments which follow in rapid succession and rath one after another men high in the councils of a party that once a sumed to comprise within itselfall the intelligence and moranty of the country If the Repub-lican party was ever a party of "great moral deas," its deciples certainly have not maintain deas. "Its decipes certainly have not maintained themselves men of "great moral" practice. The leading sensation at this moment is the report concerning Mr. Blaine. "Jim" Bisine as he is most trequently called, just now made all his Republican competitors in the Presidential race. The reason for it is his superior tact for confidence of a class who sre not in sympathy with the White House ring. Blaine has been just outside the inner circle, and is generally regarded in his own party as a Representative Republican. Not that he is classed as a strictly pure man, even by his friends, for his associates in Co. gress concede that he is both tricky and usincere. But he possesses in an unusual de-gree that useful and happy faculty of being all things to all men, and uniting all factions in his interest. In the last Congress he made friends with the Conservative element of his party, and at the beginning of the present session he rever sed his tactics and started out to make himse f solid" with the u tra south having element. "solar" with the fitts south haing element, it is by such artifices us these that Blaine has not himself forward as the "popular" candidate it is interesting to see him when housing one of his lavees on the floor of the House. It a corner at the rear of the row of seats he stands the centre of sometimes a group of twenty persons, mostly cuitsiders, whom he has admitted and he passes from one to the other in his role of great American hand shaker. In that the router he has to superfor.

sons, mostly outsiders, whom he has admitted and he passerfor one to the other in his role of great American hand shake. In that character he has no apperior.

The story of Mr. Rhime's recoving $64,000 from the Union Pacific Railroad Campany is of course promptly dealed by m. but it contains inherent evidences of truth and is bebeved by politicians generally. Bialice would have hard work to pass for an houset man. His court into for 'smartness' shall for truding is too well established and too incompatible with any such theory. There is not a nore unscriptions and instinctive trader in politics to day, and if he should finally susceed in acting the moniton—which he won't—it will be by means of some of the shabibest trades and burshis ever mare. At least had his workers in various parts of the country are ton fini because they have been made to believe that there is something in it for them personnally. Thus is notorious. If elected Fresident his administration would only be approached in rottenne's by his immediate predecessor. He has been out of the Grant linner circle, not because he is too home, at because he con d not get in. The sel of few who manage things cound not true lindar.
