International Exhibition.

REDUCTION IN PRICES TO SCHOOLS.

A very important decision has been arrived at by the joint action of the Centennial Commission and the Board of Finance, by which from this date Schools are to be admitted at half rates, or TWENTY-FIVE CENTS each. The result of this action would certainly prove its desirability. While there can be no question but that the regular charge of half a dollar is quite reasonable, yet when it becomes necessary to account for bodies of one hundred or more, the reduction is of importance, and the result is more than likely to secure the attendance of those scholars for more than one day. There is one thing certain, that as an educator the Exhibition stands unrivalled. No boy or girl of average intelligence could make a visit without deriving permanent advantage. Every study in which they may be engaged is here presented in its most picturesque form, Geography, Chemistry, Mineralogy, Botany, etc., etc., may all be followed under the favorable circumstances; and, in addition, much additional information gained upon such subjects as the growth and manufacture of Silk from the cocoon to the ladies' dress; of Glass, from clay and sand to the beautiful specimens of mirrors, table ware, etc.; of Leather, from the undressed hide to the ladies' slipper. Indian Rubber is shown in the gum as it exudes from the tree, and then in all its various serviceable adaptations to the use of mankind.

At one point may be seen the entire process of producing Gold from the solid rock by crushing, disintegrating, etc., a subject with which few of our scholars are acquainted; at another, reams of Paper are turned out of the machine and then worked on the mammoth printing presses, sent as newspapers all over the world. The beautiful forms produced by high cultured art for domestic uses cannot but make a favorable impression on the youthful mind, leading to thought and reflection, and possible adoption in their homes in far-off western lands.

Thus may be seen the value to the scholar of a visit to the Exhibition. To the teacher it is no less important, for by this examination one's memory is refreshed, new ideas brought into play, and a store of knowledge secured for future use and illustration.

Sunday Schools should especially avail themselves of this privilege. What stronger proof can be given of the power of God than this wonderful exemplification of his handiwork through the labor of his creatures? The great school is now open to all comers; Protestant and Catholic, Jew and Gentile, all are invited, and the coming three months should secure the presence of every child in the United States, whose parents can procure the means to give them this opportunity for study and the acquirement of knowledge.

There is still another inducement, and that of no little importance, why our children should be present at this Exhibition. It is our National Anniversary, and its memories will be cherished for another century, and it is almost a national duty that we should secure for our children such priviledges as they will never again have placed before them. As time rolls on, every parent, teacher or guardian who has thus fulfilled his duty, will receive the greatest thanks of those who have been benefitted.

FOREIGN INTEREST IN THE EXHIBITION.

The Emperors of France and Austria sent personal invitations to all their Imperial neighbors and friends to visit the World's Fairs held in their respective cities. These invitation entailed heavy expenses upon the host, yet the large number of additional visitors attracted by the regal pomp and pageant were considered a full recompense for this expense. The Philadelphia Exhibition has offered no such invitation, and yet it has already been visited by many prominent representatives of foreign nations, and bids fair to have its full share ere the period of its close.

Early in its undertaking the Holy Father was represented by the Ab-Legate Signor Roncetti, who was so impressed by this great work of a Republic, incomplete as it was, that he held up his hands in astonishment, and could not sufficiently express his surprise. The result of this visit was the beautiful exhibit sent by the Pope, and now in the art collection.

The Imperial family of Brazil will ever be remembered with pleasure. It is doubtful if any visitor to the Exhibition has shown a greater interest or proved himself more conversant with the great variety of exhibits than the Emperor of Brazil. Sweden has been represented by her young Prince, and Spain by Don Carlos, and rumor has it that we are yet to see an heir to Britain's throne; the late Empress of France, and possibly the Shah of Persia. Thus the distance and dangers of the sea have not prevented Philadelphia receiving fair attention at the hands of royalty.

This, however, does not comprise all our guests from abroad. The man of science, the politician, the poet and the artizan are meeting together in the city of Brotherly Love. All nations are represented, and the greatest good must arise, both morally and commercially, from the exchange of opinions, the opportunities for information, and the friendly relations brought about by this Exhibition.

Perhaps the visit of no body of men will be as productive of good as that which is to take effect in August, of the members of the British Parliament, composed of some of its most prominent men, as follows: Joseph Gillis Bigger, Jacob Bright, Thomas Burt, Frederick Edward Blackett Beaumont, George Anderson, Charles Cameron, Joseph Cowen, Sir Charles, Dilke; baronet; Joseph Dodds, Charles Joseph Fay, Edward Temperly Gourlev, Sir Henry Marshman Havelock, baronet, C. B.; James Fortescue Harrison, Isaac Fletcher, F. R. S.; John Walter, James Lawson, George Leeman, Alexander McDonald, William Holmes, Anthony John Mandella, John O'Conor Power, Joseph Whitewell Pease, Mr. Rylands, Thomas Eustace Smith, Patrick James Smythe, James Cochrane Stevenson, John Whitewell and Benjamin Whitworth. It is to be hoped that the result of this special visit will be of practical service to the future interests of both nations.

A paper containing full information, will be sent upon application to CHARLES K. LANDIS, VINELAND, N. J. free of cost.

The following is an extract from a description of Vineland, published in the NEW YORK TRIBUNE, by the well known Agriculturist, Solon Robbins:

All the farmers were of the "wait to do" sort, and some of them, who have turned their attention to forms and market gardening, have grown rich. The soil is somewhat various from sandy to clayey, and surfaces gently undulating interspersed with small streams and occasional woodlands, in which deposits of peat or muck are stored, sufficient to fertilize the whole upland surface after it has become exhausted of its natural fertility.

It is certainly one of the most extensive fertile tracts, in an almost level position, and suitable condition for pleasant farming, that we know of this side of the Western prairies. We found some of the oldest farms apparently just as profitably productive as when first cleared of forest fifty or a hundred years ago.

The geologist would soon discover the cause of this continued fertility. The whole country is a marine deposit, and all through the soil we found evidences of calcareous substances, generally in the form of indurated calcareous marl, showing many distinct remains of ancient shells, of the tertiary formation; and this marly substance is scattered all through the soil, in a very comminuted form, and in the exact condition and most assimilated by such plants as the farmer desires to cultivate.
