The official count of the vote of Arkansas, completed on Saturday, shows a Democratic majority of 33,392.

On a Delaware, Lackawanna & Western train Wednesday afternoon, between Stroudsburg and Belvidere, a vote on the Presidential candidates was taken, with the following result: Tilden, 79; Hayes, 43. "Straws," &c., you know!

Considerable of a sensation was created throughout the country Monday morning by what appeared to be an authoritative announcement of the death of Commodore Vanderbilt. The morning bulletin of the vet-ran railroad king's health had been unusually favorable. He had passed the previous day as comfortably as any day of the past week, and the evening was spent in a front parlor adjoining his bed room, where members of his family, at his request, sang some of his favorite hymns. Yet the report of his death at ten minutes after ten o'clock Monday morning was sufficiently credited to affect the stock market in a perceptible degree. Before noon, however, came the official announcement that the Commodore was still alive, and matters gradually resumed their normal condition. About noon Monday, the following despatch, signed by the Commodore, was sent to a Wall Street firm: "I am alive and well; better than I have been in many months."

The Congressional Nomination.

The Congressional caucuses of this district assembled at Stroudsburg, Monroe county, on Tuesday afternoon last, as per adjournment at Milford. After the preliminary business the members proceeded to ballot for a candidate for Congress, and after a number of ballots had been taken without any choice, the Convention adjourned until Wednesday morning, when having taken several ballots and no choice of candidate being made, they adjourned till 2 o'clock p. m. Upon reassembling at that hour, the 135th ballot was taken as follows: Collins, 41; Luzerne 2, Pike 2, Montour 2, Monroe 2, Klotz 4—Carbon 2, Monroe 1, Berksway, 2—Quinn.

The Elections.

Elections for State officers and members of Congress were held in Ohio, Indiana and West Virginia on Tuesday, the 10th inst. The result in Ohio was the election of the Republican State officers by an average majority of about 9,000. The Congressional delegation consists of thirteen Republicans and seven Democrats, a Republican gain of five members. In Indiana the Democratic majority for Governor is 5,500. The Congressional delegation will consist of nine Republicans and four Democrats, a Republican gain of four members. In West Virginia the Democratic majority is about 12,000.

Table with 2 columns: State and Electors. Lists states and their respective electoral votes.

The Democrats expect to carry the twenty-one States first named, giving 204 votes, making a majority of nineteen. The Republicans expect to carry the last nineteen States, together with New York, (200 votes in all) making a majority of 15 at least. According to the calculations of either party, great importance attaches to the vote of the State of New York. Supporting all the States to vote as they did at the last election, the Democratic candidates would be elected. If the Republicans carry Indiana (15 votes) and New York, (35 votes) with the other States conceded with them, they will have 215 electoral votes, being a clear majority of 30 votes. The recent elections in Ohio, Indiana and West Virginia appear to be satisfactory to all parties. The Democrats say that Indiana, Ohio and West Virginia, in every Presidential election heretofore, have cast their votes for the Republican party; twice for Lincoln, twice for Grant, and Ohio once for Fremont besides. Now Indiana and West Virginia have in their State elections gone the other way, but the Republicans hope to see them back, as usual, in November.

Our Philadelphia Letter.

DEAR ADVOCATE:— Mosquito nets and palm-leaf fans are seen no more. The ice men are disconsolate and their fates deplore, for winter has given us an early blast and cooler weather is coming fast. Distress and overcoats will soon be all the go, so get ready for the ice and "the beautiful snow."

On Tuesday last, Mr. E. C. Ball was acquitted of the felony of a portmanteau box, valued at 25 cents, from the Moorish bazaar, on the Centennial grounds. The prosecutor was a Moor, and the oath and testimony had to be translated into the French and then into the Arabic language, in order to make him understand it, and his testimony from Arabic into French and then into English for the jury. The defendant is a resident of Vermont, and it was testified that he had paid one of the Moorish attendants for the box. A Judge of the Supreme Court of Vermont, and others testified to defendant's good character. It is hoped the Moors will be more particular in future when they charge anyone with theft.

Blaine, of Maine, spoke to the Republicans of our city on Saturday evening last. Parker, of New Jersey, orated to the Democrats last evening. Both saved the country. "Let us have peace."

Thursday, Oct. 20th, will be Merchants' Day at the Centennial. "Cent per cent" will be dropped on that occasion and it is hoped the day will be "from fair to middling."

Political discussions, bruised noses, eyes in mourning and smashed hats are now in season. "We may be happy yet."

2000 scholars from the public schools of Pittsburgh and vicinity arrived in our city on Tuesday morning last, for a three days visit to the Centennial. The Governor and myself were on hand to welcome them, as also were delegations of scholars from our public schools, the big guns of the Board of Education and the thousands of our citizens. The Governor delivered an address I—well, I took notes.

Talking about distinguished persons, I noticed many Carbon Countians in the city during the present week. They seemed to be busily engaged in seeing the sights of the city and doing the Centennial.

Three well dressed and apparently respectable men attempted to kidnap a valuable dog in the vicinity of the Centennial grounds, on Friday afternoon last. Considerable excitement was created for a while; but the canine was too sharp for his would-be capturers, and made his escape.

The question is now, "Do you intend visiting the Paris Exposition of 1878?" Of course the ADVOCATE will be represented!

The fifty cent takers at the Centennial gates will soon cease singing the beautiful ballad, "I'm sitting at the stile Mary," for it will be quite unfaithful after November 10th, and rather discordant the week after.

The Exhibition closes on the 10th of November officially, but visitors can hand in their money and see what remains of the show until the 17th. So says the Centennial Commissioners, who have "possibly" resolved to close the Centennial on Nov. 10th, and to keep it open until one week after and possibly longer, for though the exhibition will be formally closed on the 10th proximo, all exhibitors can sell and deliver their goods for a week later or for such a time as the director general may think best for the interest of the exhibition. It was also determined to admit visitors during this continuance at the regular rates of admission.

Robert De Armer, of Ohio, was promenading in the vicinity of the Reading Railroad depot the other day when he was met by two very polite gentlemen who asked his acquaintance, and shortly after asked the loan of fifty dollars, as they had some freight to pay and would refund his stamps just as went for their goods? But Mr. Armer will never look upon their faces again. Poor Armer should grid on his armor for there are many such rascals in Philadelphia at present.

An enterprising furniture man calls his make of cradle "The sweet bye and bye." "Bring me a bushel of handkerchiefs," he said, "for I've a bad cold in my head, my nose is red and I think I'd better go to bed." "Let us dabble in the festive pool," said the pay gambler as he leatheth his victim into the pool room, or what should be aptly called the fool room, for fools mostly there do congregate. They should be called scorch-light parades, for coats and hats are often scorched in torch light parading. PEPPER SAUCE.—OLD GENT.—"How is business?" YOUNG GENT.—"That's none of your business."

OLD GENT.—"My business was to help your business." YOUNG GENT.—"What is your business?" OLD GENT.—"That's none of your business." Yours, and why not? MARCUS.

A European War Probable. London, October 17.—The correspondent of the Times at Belgrade, discussing the situation, says: "Every diplomatic agent here believes we are on the eve of a great eastern war. The only difference of opinion among them is as to whether it will commence in the spring or almost immediately."

"All outward indications seem to favor the latter idea, which would give Russia and Serbia great advantage. Strange rumors are current concerning the intended action of Austria. On Sunday semi-official intelligence reached Belgrade that the emperor of Austria had informed the czar that Austria would remain neutral, and would make no objection to certain limited occupation of one of the Christian provinces of Turkey."

The St. Petersburg Journal, a semi-official paper, says: "There are indications that the people of Constantinople regard war as unavoidable, and welcome Russia's decision to fix the matter without delay."

"The meeting of Russian statesmen at Livadia indicates a crisis in our politics. This meeting represents official Russia assembled in view of the Bosphorus as the seat of war."

A St. Petersburg letter to the Times, dated October 11, says: "Doubtless the general impression here is that Russia is on the eve of the long-wished-for struggle with Turkey."

A special to the Times from Vienna states that "the English and French governments, especially the former, have decidedly pronounced for the acceptance of the six months' armistice. Austria is inclined to do likewise, and has asked Germany's opinion, which, however, has not yet been given."

Italy, on being pressed by England to give a definite reply, says it does not want in any way to anticipate Serbia's decision, as it regards an armistice as disadvantageous to Servia.

A Reuter telegram from Bucharest announces that a convention has been concluded between the Roumanian and Russian companies, by which the former undertake to hold in readiness at the disposal of Russia sufficient trains to transport four thousand troops daily.

Another dispatch of the same date continues, the scene of the interest in the eastern question has suddenly drifted from the valleys of the Moravia and Orina to London.

"The interest of all Europe centres today in the Times' leader of yesterday, a full abstract of which was forwarded by cable. The universal query is regarding the sources of the inspiration under which that remarkable article was written. How far does the Times speak the feelings, the hopes, and the fears of the government? The managers of rival journals, who have been accustomed to sneer, refer to 'the waning power' of 'the Thunderer' have seen to-day their statement completely nullified. The sad, even abject position in which that one column of type puts England in the eyes of all Europe makes every man in the metropolis to-night duly sensible of the majesty and power of the press in printing house square. The language of the article is unmistakable. It is not bravado or gush. It is the language of a pauper, of uncertainty and fear. The press of London condemn and repudiate the feelings which their great conditor has expressed. More humiliating yet, the journals of the German capital tell England's newspaper that it must not expect Germany to fight the battles of any other nation while it has its own welfare to consult. If Bismarck holds the fortune of England's eastern interest in his hand he eventually intends to play the cards as he sees fit, and for Germany's best interests. Germany first, England afterward."

Wednesday afternoon's (London) Globe, in its financial article, says a complete panic prevails on the stock exchange. The news of Russia's apparent determination to make war upon Turkey has confirmed the fear which for several days has depressed the market, and culminated to-day in an indiscriminate pressure of sales of all descriptions of stock, not only by speculators stimulating panic fears, but by bona fide holders of securities, especially foreign. There was at the opening a further serious decline in quotations, and it was difficult to obtain prices at which bargains could be effected, the fluctuations being so great and frequent. The changes include of a reduction of 5 in Hungarian, 1 1/2 in Turkish, 2 in Egyptian, 3 in Italian, and also a considerable decline in all stocks.

London, Oct. 18.—A special despatch to the Daily News from Pesth says: "Intelligence received here from Vienna states that England considers all diplomatic action at Constantinople at an end. This statement has produced a very gloomy feeling here, and war is considered unavoidable."

During the 140 years of existence, the Franklin & Co. jewelry store has had 6000 six minutes and has been detected substituting imitation diamonds for real ones left with him for setting.

Imitation diamond jewelry has been manufactured so successfully in Wisconsin that many imitations were being sold in the city. The store was raided and the imitations were destroyed.

Mr. Wood, of Lewistown, owns the trunk in which the prominent copy of the Record of the Steamship was brought to this country in March, 1847. It is but 18 inches long and 8 wide.

At 10 o'clock on Tuesday morning, a fire broke out in the building of the Record, and the fire spread rapidly, and in a few minutes the building was in flames. The fire was extinguished by the fire department, and the building was saved.

At Rockport, Me., on Friday night, the bones of an owl were found in the house of a man named Tom, occupied by him and his daughter. The owl, he says, was seen on the roof of the house with the adjacent buildings. The charcoal remains of the owl were found in the chimney, and those of Mrs. Thayer in the barn with evidence that a desperate struggle had taken place. The bones of the owl were found in the house, and those of the owl were found in the barn.

An old and observing democrat has a sure opinion that Tilden will be elected. The history that crop this year will be a fine one. The harvest has not been so good since 1855, when Buchanan was a victor. History will be a fine one. A democratic administration, good times and a form will be a great improvement on bank notes, bare floors and starry sky.
