The Man of Nerve. As they saw the bees passing round familiarly the lady uttered a timid "Good gracious! We can't go there,"
"Pshaw!" ejaculated her lord and mas-"don't be foolish. Bees never molest any one that does not molest them. They are perfectly harmless if you will let them slone. All you need is a little nerve; when they come buzzing about you walk right along, and don't so much as make a motion towards them, Come on, now; if you haven't nerve just look at me and see how simple it is." With a pardonable feeling of pride in her noble husband, the wife watched him as he moved steadily up to the tree where moved. even if they should light on your face. to the tree where most of the insects were having a rehersal a 'a Gilmore's band, while a number were doing the Skidmore guard on the fence and still others were sliding around in the air him, but took the precaution to throw a light shawl over her head and shoulders, leaving only a peep hole for one eye. Running up to her husband who was walking along looking at a bee which had just lit on his nose, and wendering whether the cussed little creature was going to give him one just for luck, and thinking how sweet he would look with a proboscis resembling a quarter section of a lobster, she in-quired: "John, ain't you afraid?" not thinking of anything else appropriate to the occasion. He curied up his lip and the tip of his nose in disdain at the thought, and just then he got it from the bee upon the upper deck. His wife will never forget the exclamation he gave utterance to and the bystanders generally remarked that it was exuaus-tive, and fully did Justice to the oc-casion. He struck at the bee viciously, and in a second the whole Skidmore guard, Jerusalem warbiers and Gilmore band were upon him. They took him in the face, and crawled up his nose and sank more shafts on the top of his buld head than there are on the Comstock tode. If he had been possessed of a thousand hands be could not have kept the enemy off, and if his name had been Job he could not have helped calling down maledletions upon the women as he heard his wife advising under her shawl: "Don't hit at them, John! Don't fight 'hem!" There was a general roar of laughter as the "man of nerve" took to his heels, his arms working like an old fashioned windmitt during a gale, while his wife waiked along secure in her bee proof.-San Franiesco Record.

The Wrong Man.

One of the members of the Methodist conference, recently held here, was out for a walk at an early hour one morn-ing, and while on Howard street he encountered a strapping big fellow, who was drawing a wagon to the blacksmith shop.

"Catch hold here and help me down to the shop with this wagon and I'll buy the whisky!" called the big fellow. "I never drink," solemnly replied

the good man. "Well, you can take a cigar,"

"I never smoke," The man dropped the wagon tongue, looked hard at the member, and asked:

"Don't you chew?"
"No, sir," was the decided reply. "You must get mighty lonesome," mused the teamster.

"I guess I'm all right-I feel first "I'll bet you even that I can lay you on your back," remarked the teamster, "Come, now, let's warm up a little."

"I never bet."

"Well, let's take each other down for fun, then. You are as big as I am, and I'll give you the under hold."
"I never have fun," solemuly answered the member.

"Well, I,m going to tackle you any-ay. Here we go!"

The teamster slid up and endeavored to get a neck hold, but he had only just commenced to fool about when he lifted clear off the grass and slammed against a tree-box with such force that he gasped half a dozen times before he could get his breath.

"Now you keep away from me!" exclaimed the minister, picking up his

"Bust me if I don't!" replied the teamster as he edged off. "What's the use in lying and saying that you didn't have any fun in you, when you're chuck full of it! Blame it! You wanted to break my back, didn't you! You just hang around here about five minutes, you old Texan, you, and I'll bring on a fellow who'll cave in your head?'

"I never hang," said the minister, as he sandered on, and the teamster leaned on the wagon and mused .- Free Press.

as though the sands of life had nearly run to seed, entered a popular Main street saloon recently. He looked sad and careworn, and there was a far-away now sell is kan guter principal, ech look in his left eye-which was the only eye visible, as his hat was jamed closely down over his organs of vision-and his air and appearance were those of wetter bumba wo as will. Now ass a man who wished to avoid the ociable, not withstanding appearances. Approaching the bar, he remarked to the bar-keeper that he guessed he would take "a nice whiskey cocktail, with a little wine into it." While the barkeeper was erecting the cocktail the stranger's uncovered eye fell on a group of gentlemen who were standing at the end of the bar-counter, discussing Tilden's anancial views as opposing to Red Frank Wheeler's method of running quartz mills, and he observed: "Gentlemen, I hope I don't interrupt; but won't ye take somethin'?" Tilden and Wheeler were dropped instantaneously, and seven voices simultaneously exclaimed " Cer-tainly !" and seven gentlemen ranged themselves in front or the bar and gave their orders. The drinks were all mixed and each man stood at rest, with wista dos dar P. Shin house war far en his hand on his class; the barkeeper said "All set, gentlemen," and one of the gentlemen was just about to remark "Here's luck," when the straner observed. "So they've got a case of small-pox here at last." "No," said the barkeeper, "have they, though?" "Weil, returned the stranger, "I don't know whether it's a case of genuine small-pox or not; you see this disease is hard to determine in the first stages. Now a doctor up to the upper end of town expressed the opinion that I've got the small-pox; but I don't believe it's anything more'n a variolidal erup-tion, so to speak, a mild case of variola, as it were " Then he shoved up his hat and displayed a fearfully biotched forehead, and the bar-keeper jumped over the bar at one jump and went up town to see what time the ten o'clock train
