Our Philadelphia Letter. PHILA., PR., Nov. 29, 1578.

DEAR ADVOCATE : I have had to take the old card - "No Political Discussion Allowed," from its hiding place and put it once more in service on the wall of my sanctum, where it did duty so long and so well, and where, from the look of things, it may remain forever ! To be sure much porgress has been made as regards the settlement of the complications in the political world, and I'm sure your readers will agree with me that matters are now just as much in the mud as they are in the mire. Can I say more ? Would you have me do what the man who cut the cherry tree with his little hatchet never did ? No sir, never ! With one hand on my pocketbook and the other on Several years ago an under employee of the Mint managed to rob Uncle Sam (not S. J. T.) in a most remarkable and ingenious manner and it was some time before he was detected. This is the way he used to do it : He would set a trap for rats and if he managed to catch one or more of them -- the rodents, he would cram or stuff them with gold pieces and then carefully throw them out of the window into the street, where he would pick them up after he had left his work for the day, and taking them home would disgorge them of their golden contents.

Shakspeare says in one of his plays

"Dead for a ducat " But I could not apply the quotation from "the immortal bard" with pro-priety as regards a letter I received the other day from the dead letter office at Washington, for my correspondent had mailed his letter from New York but used a two cent stamp instead of a three, therefore his letter was dead, and "Dead for a -cent."

A gentleman was counting some money in one of our banks the other day when a polite spoken and good loooking fellow came up and said to him : "Beg pardon, sir, you've drop-ped some of your money." When the gentleman raised his head after looking upon the floor, fruitlessly, for an instant, he discovered that the polite spoken and good looking gentleman had decamped and taken $580 of his money. weather of late has been about The as unreliable as a Louisiana Returning Board.

The times must be sadly out of joint when Supreme Courts can be treated with supreme contempt. Some few days since a drunken beg gar woman with a baby in her arms was found reeling about the streets of New York. The police took her to the station house and when her infant was handed over to the matron, it was found to be nothing but a bundle of rags. Jokes about "the rag baby" are no v in order and I hope this incident will be utilized by some of the politi-cians. "There's millions in it."

It is reported that one of our wealthy families had a turkey with all the nec-essary trimmings for dinner on Thanksgiving Day. I have this on good authority and yet we speak of hard times. DIED.

CENTENNIAL.-On Friday afternoon November 10th, 1876, U. S. Centennial, aged 6 months. Relatives and friends of the family are respectfully invited to meet at the Paris Exposition in 1878.

We had a big Centennial once, It was our only pride. I opened on the 16th of May, But on Nov. 10th it died."

Yours, sorrowfully, MARCUTIO.
