HERE IS THE PROOF Of its Superior Excellence.

Bead this Home Certificate testified to by Edward B. Garrigues, one of the most competent Drugs six and Cu-mists in Philadelpha, a man whose veracity none can doubt:

I am happy to add my testimony to the great value of the "Landon Hair Color Restorer," which restored my har to its original dark color, and the hue appears to be permanent. I am satisfied that this preparation is nothing like a dve, but operates upon the secretions. It is also a besultful inter dressing, and promotes the growth. I purchased the first bottle from Ed. B. Garrignes, druggest. Tenth and Costes-ats who can also testify my hair was very gray when I commenced its use.

THE GENTLE ART. Probably one of the worst businesses under the sun is that of a printer. His every deed seeks the light of day. Those of the lawyer lie in dark boxes and between musty shelves; the doctor places his indifferent handiwork in the earth the tradesman has but his customers to plea-e, and in satisfying him his work is ended But the printer, every ignoramus spells over the work of the printer. Fellows who would find it impossible to put twenty letters together grammatically will point out with give a fault in his work—indeed it is usually this class of individuals who make it a point of finding out every little discrep-ancy. Did the public know the thousands of different characters, and atoms comprised in a printer's everyday lifedid they but know the variety of altogether foreign subjects he has to set up, rend, correct, and revise day after day -they vou'd wonder how he kept out of a lunatic asylum. But practice makes perfect, and constant friction has rubbed off all the rough edges from the character of the man of letters -nothing takes effect upon him-he can view errors of the most frightful description with calmness. After all, what is an error, grammatical or otherwise? Simply so many types out of place, that's all, and quite enough—but not enough to upset the equanimity of the printer. After this dissertation on the man our readers would perhaps forgive us for introducing a line or two on the matter, or on printing generally. Printing may be divided into four FIRST.-The customer brings in his order in a quiet, gentlemanly sort of way, with "good morning." or "after-noon" and "kindly print this in your best style." He does not ask for a price-requires no proof, his copy is very good, and he gives no trouble. His order claims immediate attention it is set up in the best style, and print-ed on the best paper. There are no errors, for the printer has confidence in himself and his customer-the work gives great satisfaction, and when the bill is sent be is perfectly satisfied and pays the money with pleasure. He believes in his printer and his printer believes in him. This is first-class printing 1 SECOND .- The customer stalks into the office with an uphappy cast of countenance. "Could such and such a job be printed at once ?" "What would it cost?" 'How long would it take to print?—kindly send a proof." The copy is average ba'l, the customer has evidently little confidence in himself, and none in his printer. The proof is There are two or three blunders ent. due to the printer and a dozen altera-tions due to himself. He personally returns the proof, and would wait while the alterations were made-"of course it would not take long." The corrections are made, the customer believes in second-rate paper, and the ob is executed in altogether a secondrate manner. The bill is sent and in and paid with dissatisfaction, and a de duction of five per cent. This is sec-or-d-class printing !

THIRD .- "You don't mean to say you are going to charge me 7s. 6d. for this job—why, I had a thousand print-ed in Bristol for that sum!" The printer then knows he has a shrewd su-tomer in his office, and at once inquires how many thousand. He finds it is ten thousand for £2 10s., the work too was done in a very indifferent manner. The customer agrees to have the job printed-it gives satisfaction. The bill is sent in and in quarter after quarter, and paid at the end of two years.

This is third-class printing? FOURTH-CLASS printing is never naid -the printer gets nothing beyond a bad debt.-Claverdon, Eng., Mercury and Courier.
