THE LUNGS! CONSUMPTION!

This distressing and dangerous complaint and its precursory symptoms, neglected or coughed at, soon fastens, tenaciously, its fangs in the vitals, and is commonly cured by Dr. Swayne's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry.

HOARSENESS—A premonition of Pulmonary Consumption is frequently heard in the hoarseness or tremulousness of the human voice in the commencement of the fatal changes, with cough and expectoration, short breath, pressure, pain or fullness of the vessels, sore throat, sense of dryness or of the voice suppressed or cessation, obstruction of the nasal ear or hearing, &c.

DR. SWAYNE'S COMPOUND
Syrup of Wild Cherry
IS A SOVEREIGN REMEDY.

Hemorrhage, or spitting blood, may proceed from the lungs, bronchia or bronchi, and requires prompt measures to arrest the disease, patient, or fullness of the vessels, sore throat, sense of dryness or of the voice suppressed or cessation, obstruction of the nasal ear or hearing, &c.

Dr. Swayne's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry strikes at the root of disease by purifying the blood, and thereby eradicating the disease from the system.

The only standard remedy for hoarseness, bronchitis and all pulmonary complaints. Consumptive and other sufferers should not delay, but should not fail to use this great vegetable remedy.

Its marvelous power, both safe and certain, has not over every remedy ever known. Such a prompt, effective relief is sought. Under its use the cough is loosened, the night sweats decrease, the pain subsides, the cure proceeds to its perfect end, the stomach is improved in its power to digest and assimilate the food, and every organ is restored to healthy vigor. Many hundreds of cases given to the public, of which new testimonials are constantly coming to hand, are the most reliable proof of its virtues.

FOR RESTORING
GRAY HAIR
To its Natural Vitality and Color.

Of its Superior Excellence.

Read this Home Certificate, testified to by Edward B. Garriques, one of the most competent Druggists and Chemists in Philadelphia, a man whose veracity none can doubt:

I am happy to add my testimony to the great value of the "London Hair Color Restorer" which restored my hair to its original dark color, and the line appears to be permanent. I am satisfied that this preparation is nothing like a dye, but operates upon the secretions. It is also a beautiful hair dressing, and promotes the growth. I purchased the first bottle from Dr. B. Garriques, chemist, Tenth and Cedar sts., who can also testify my hair was very gray when I commenced its use.

E. S. MILLER,
No. 730 N. Ninth st., Philadelphia.

DR. SWAYNE & SON—Respected Friends: I have the pleasure to inform you that a lady of my acquaintance, Mrs. Miller, is delighted with the effects of your "London Color Hair Restorer." Her hair was falling rapidly and quite gray. The color has been restored, and the falling out entirely stopped by its use.

E. B. GARRIQUES,
Druggist, Cor. Tenth and Cedar sts., Phila.

All that art can accomplish in beautifying strong locks, thickening and clothing the hair is effected by using "London Hair Color Restorer." It stimulates and forces a new growth; if gray restores its natural color, and renders it silky and beautiful; cures dandruff; keeps the scalp clean, cool and healthy. All druggists sell it. VARIETIES.

—Under the provisions of the hotel act, a man convicted in a Selinsgrove county of receiving his tax license in a hotel without settling the board bill, was sentenced to jail for six months. A warning to boarders.

—One of the members of the grand jury in Bloomsburg was recently discharged on account of intoxication, and the court instructed the prothonotary not to allow him either per diem or mileage.

—Hon. Charles A. Miner, republican representative elect from Luzerne county, withdraws his pretensions to the speakership in favor of Hon. Harry Hinkle, of Philadelphia. It is said the price of this withdrawal is to be the choice of a sergeant-at-arms from Luzerne.

—On Thursday afternoon last, in Johnstown, a young man named James McNichol met with a horrible death. He jumped upon what is known as the steel dump train while in motion in failing between two of the trucks in order to ride on one of the cars. He was thrown down on the track, and the wheels passed over his body and mangled him in a shocking manner.

—The Queen of Madagascar is not well versed in some of the important elements of modern civilization. She has recently passed a law by which liquor dealers are held responsible for what they sell, their customers while under the influence of what has been sold to them. Now how would such a law suit the ideas of a class of workers suffering for want of American patronage? We guess the people have the right to rush in and punish the man who owns and runs a rum saloon. We should say a man ought to, and in consequence of the law, he never does. Consequently, we have no other alternative, but to let the people do the punishing, and so the matter is made to pay at both ends. The Queen of Madagascar is very far behind the times.

—John Smith died on Saturday in Philadelphia at 1230 Vine Street, aged 90 years. He was born in the village of Thurmaston, county of Leicester, England, January 24 1792.

—The President's veto of the bill reducing his salary to $25,000 per year has been sustained in the senate, the requisite two thirds to carry the bill over the veto not having obtainable.

—Now is the time for careful in cooking ranges in consequence of the freezing of the water in supply pipes. Mr. Joseph A. Bennett, of Erie, on Monday morning found his range blown to pieces in consequence of no water in the boiler, and his wife narrowly escaped very serious injuries.

—The Vermont Legislature has accepted a law providing that every saloon, restaurant, grocery, cellar, shop, hotel or boarding house, and every dwelling place or room used as a place of public resort, where intoxicating drink is unlawfully sold or kept for sale, shall be declared a public nuisance.

—A man named Murphy has secured 3,000 signatures to a petition to pardon Pomeroy.

—Justice Elwell, of Columbia county, with the Danville gas savings bank cases at Pottsville.

—Thirty persons from the vicinity of Tamaqua emigrated to Texas last week. They were mostly farmers.

—The grand jury of Bucks county has found a true bill against the county commissioners for malfeasance in office.

—There has been a co-operative movement inaugurated by the tenants and mechanics of Allentown to secure a reduction in rents. They ask for a reduction of thirty per cent.

—The employees of the Pennsylvania railroad machine shops in Pittsburg commenced on Tuesday to work ten hours per day.

—The report that the Jersey Shore and Pine Creek railroad has been purchased by the Reading railroad company has created great rejoicing in Potter and McKean counties which would be greatly benefitted by the completion of the Pine Creek railroad.

—Mrs. Daniel Moyer has had her chronic rheumatism cured. A tramp called at her residence near Womelsdorf and said he was sick. She invited him and fed him and sent him to bed between clean sheets with a full stomach. In the morning he was gone, but in place of a check on the corner cupboard was a bottle containing a powerful liniment, and on the label was written directions how to use it. The good woman had sought to warm the ungrateful carcass.

—The Washington, Pa., Examiner, Dec. 20, says: Ten inmates of the Pennsylvania Reform school, formerly House of Refuge, were removed from Allegheny county on Tuesday of last week to the new building at Morganza, in Washington county. A formal opening of the new building will take place some time in January, when will be attended by the Governor, members of both Legislatures and other distinguished gentlemen from different sections of the state.

—Mary Scarfoss brought an action for damages against the Pennsylvania railroad company for the killing of her husband. It was shown that the whistle of the locomotive was blown and the train slowed down. From the position of the only witness believed the man was walking in the direction the train was going. The place where the accident occurred was about 300 yards south of Holmesburg station and at least 100 yards from a crossing of any character. The plaintiff was non-suited because the testimony showed the deceased to have been a trespasser on the track, which except at public crossings, is the private property of the company.

—It is now said that the murder of Wild Bill, in the Black Hills by Jack McCall was paid for by John Varnes, who has been arrested. Bill and Varnes had quarrelled over a game of poker.

—By Mr. Horsmann's death the English House of Commons loses one of the very few members who had seats at Queen Victoria's accession to the throne. The deceased entered Parliament in 1806.

—Buffalo Bill, in his travels with his new play, "The Red Right Hand," exhibits a scalp which he says was taken by him from the head of an Indian chief named Yellow Hand. The company forms a scene in the drama. Buffalo Bill's sense of propriety is not nice.

—The office of Sheriff is a responsible one in Texas, as is shown by frequent accounts of feuds between sheriffs and outlaws in that State. Recently a party of horse thieves were overtaken in Travis county by a sheriff and his deputies. Firing began instantly, and six men, equally divided between the two forces, were killed.

—Robert O'Hara went into a San Francisco police station and said that he had swallowed poison, and asked for a piece to die. He was not believed, whereupon he offered to bet ten dollars that he would be dead within an hour, the money to be given to his family if he won. The wager was not made, but O'Hara died before the end of the hour.

—English papers tell of a sea captain recently arrived from Bombay, who saved his vessel during a hurricane of two days duration by filling two canvas bags with oil, puncturing each slightly, and towing them astern. The oil spread slowly over the water. The high waves spent their force at some distance, and around the ship was a large space of calm water.

—In order to prevent the introduction of the Colorado potato beetle among potatoes or other merchandise imported from the United States and Canada the British Government has given the ridiculous instruction to Customs officers at all ports to keep a sharp lookout for beetles in sacks and packages, and—when found—instantly to destroy them. For identification little pamphlets, notes and descriptions of the insect have been forwarded.

—Had President Grant from the commencement of the present contest remained entirely neutral, and not only refrained from taking a side himself but compelled the members of his Cabinet to do so too, he would have earned the gratitude of the nation instead of blame. But he seemed disposed to play the partisan from the beginning and to play it to the end.—Toronto Globe.

—Out of seventy teachers employed in the city of Erie, Pa., sixty-six are women.

—Washington, Vt., comes to the fore, and produces out of a cheese-pail full man, one Henry Mason, standing six feet, seven and a half in his stockings.

—Moliere was asked the reason why in certain countries the king marries as the crown at fourteen years of age, and cannot marry before eighteen? "It is," suggested Moliere, "because it is more difficult to rule a wife than a kingdom."

"Noed their Daddy!"

After we wus married, we'll say about a year, wun mornin' thar was a terrible commoshun in our house—old wimmin a runnin in an out, and finally the Doctor he cum. I was in a great hurry myself, waitin to heer, I hardly noed what, but arter a while, an ole granny of a woman, as had been very busy about that, poked her head into the room whar I was walkin' about and sed:

Ses she, "Mr. Sporum, hit's a gal."

"What," ses I.

"A gal," ses she, an with that pops her head back again

Well, thinks I, I'm the daddy uv a gal, and begin to feel my keepin' mitely—had rather it was a boy tho', thinks I, fur then he'd feel nearur to me, as how he'd bare my name and there be less chance fur the Sporums to run out, but considerin' everything, a gal will do mity well. Jist then the ole mus pokes her head out agin and ses,

Ses she, "Anuther wun, Mr. Sporum; a fine boy."

"Another," ses I, "that's rather crowdin' things on to a feller."

She laffed and poked her head back. Well, thinks I, this is no joke sure, at this lick I'll have family enuff to do me in a few years.

Jis then the ole she devil (always shall hate her) pokes her he'd in an i see.

Ses she, "Anuther gal, Mr. Sporum."

"Anuther whot," ses I.

"Anuther gal," ses she.

"Well, ses I, "go rite strate and tell Sal I won't stand it, I don't want 'em, and I ain't goin' to have 'em; dus she think I'm a Turk? or a Mormon? or Brigham Young? that she go fur to have tribbles?—three at a pop! Dus she think I'm wurth a hundred thousand dollars? that I'm Jo'n Jacob Aster, or Mr. Roschile? that I kin afford tribbles, an clothe an feed an school three children at a time? I ain't goin' to stand it no how, I didn't want 'em, I don't want em, and ain't a going to want 'em now, nur no uther time. Hain't I bin a good and dootiful husband to Sal? Hain't I kep' in doors uv a nite, an quit chawn tobacker and smokin segars just to please her? Hain't I attended devine worship reg'lar? Hain't I bought her all the bonnets and frocks she wanted? an then for her to go an have tribbles. She noed better and hadn't orter dun it. I didn't think Sal wud serve me such a trick now. Have I ever stole a horse? Have I ever done enny mean trick, that she should serve me in this way?" An with that I laid down on the settee, and felt orful bad, and the more I tho't about it, the wus I felt.

Presently Sal's mammy, ole Miss Jones, cums in an ses,

Ses she, "Peter, cum in and see what purty chilluns you've got."

"Chilluns!" ses I, "you'd better say a 'hole litter. Now Miss Jones, I inv Sal you no, an have tried to make a a good husban', but I call this a scaly trick, an ef thar's any law in this country, I'm goin' to see ef a woman kin have tribbles, and make a man take keer uv 'em. I ain't goin' to begin to do it," ses I.

With that she laffed fit to kill herself, and made all sorts of fun of me, an sed enny uther man would be proud to be in my shoes. I told her I'd sell out mity cheap ef enny body wanted to take my place. Well, the upshot uv it wus, that she pursuaded me that I wus 'rong, an got me to go into the room whar they all wus.

When I got in, Sal looked so lovin' at me, an reached out her little hands so much like a poor, dear little helpless child, that I forgot everything but my luv for her, and folded her gently up tu my h'art like a precious treasure, and felt like I didn't keer if she had too and forty uv em. Jist then number wun set up a whine like a young pup, an all the ballance follered, Them thribbles need their daddy.

Well, everything wus made up, an Sal promised she wud never do it agin, an sense then I have bin at work sertin, workin all day to make bred for them thribs; an bissy nus'n uv 'em at nite. The fact is, ef I didn't have a mity good constitushun, I'd had to giv' in long ago. Number wun has the collick an wakes up number too an he wakes up number three, an so it goes, an me a flying about all the time a tryin' to keep 'em quiet.

—In pursuance of a published call, a meeting was held in Kelly's hall, Eighth and Christian streets, Philadelphia, on Tuesday evening of last week, at which all present, except a few reporters, were born and bred "in the sod." At the appointed time Mr. Thos. G. O'Hara presented himself to the audience and unfolded his plan of colonizing one million of Irishmen in the fertile regions of the western country. He said that ever since he was two years old he has been striving to better the condition of the Irish people, and at last he has thought of a novel, though feasible, plan to consumate the cherished object of his earnest solicitations. It is to purchase ten million acres of land from the government and to colonize therron one million of Irishmen. This would allow each man ten acres of virgin soil to be cultivated by him. By effecting this arrangement there would be a happy Irish family on a large scale. He also proposed a grand celebration on next St. Patrick's day. It was to have one million Irishmen on parade. In the line there should be a large wagon drawn by twenty-five white horses, each representing a county in Ireland, the wagon to be called the "Pride of Ireland."
