

The Carbon Advocate.

H. V. NORTIMER, EDITOR

LEHIGHTON, PA. SATURDAY MORNING, MARCH 24, 1877.

Hon. Emory Washburne, ex-Governor of Massachusetts, died in Cambridge on Sunday, of pneumonia, aged 77 years. He was Governor of Massachusetts in 1854.

In the suit of Mary E. Oliver against ex-Senator Simon Cameron for $50,000 damages for breach of promise, the venerable defendant has filed a plea that he "never promised, as alleged."

J. Donald Comeran was elected U. S. Senator by the State Legislature Tuesday. In the Senate he received 31 votes, to 18 for Dill and 1 for Clymer. In the house he received 116 votes, Dill 74, Curtin 1 and Jackson 1.

Judge Read, of the Circuit Court for Charleston, S. C., rendered a decision Tuesday, declaring that Chamberlain had no lawful authority as Governor, and that Wade Hampton was duly and legally elected and qualified as Governor of South Carolina.

Postmaster General Key has resolved that fitness to discharge the duties of the office and good standing among their neighbors shall be the main qualifications for appointment to the Post-offices in the Southern States. These should be the rules for all offices everywhere.

A Republican Congressman having called on Secretary Schurz to inquire whether, under the new civil service system, recommendations for office coming from members of Congress would be considered, was informed that information, not importunity, was desired from them, and with this view they would be consulted in filling vacant offices.

Secretary McCrary has issued a circular to the employes of the War Department, informing them that hereafter removals will be made for cause only, and promotions made solely on account of merit. No political test will be required beyond an earnest support of the Constitution and its amendments. Industry and faithfulness in the discharge of duty, a good moral character and strictly temperate habit will be required and enforced.

There is no doubt that an extra session of Congress will have to be called, on account of the failure of the Army Appropriation bill. It is claimed that subsistence and clothing for the army could be furnished under existing law until the regular session of Congress, but the officers and men cannot be paid after June 30th, the end of the fiscal year, without an appropriation by Congress for the purpose. The total amount required to pay the army is $12,635,075. Although the men might be fed and clothed until December, the failure to pay them would cause great dissatisfaction and much privation, as they are forbidden by law to hypothecate their pay.

Says the Public Ledger of Wednesday: If there should be no further change in the programme, the current session of the Pennsylvania Legislature will come to an end in a few days—a consummation most devoutly to be wished, for so far as the House is concerned, it is a sheer waste of the public money to continue that body in session. It is doing as much mischief as good in a legislative way, and is bringing discredit to the State, just as its predecessor did. The last House (under the party control of Democrats) was noted for the gross irregularity, confusion and turbulence of its proceedings; and the present House (under control of Republicans) is making long strides towards earning a like reputation. The two of them have caused a strong revival of the old-time feelings of apprehension when a session of the Legislature begins, of disgust while it continues, and of glad relief when it adjourns "without a day."

Washington Letter. From our special Correspondent. Washington, D. C., March 23, 1877. The Senate adjourned last Saturday, its two last acts being to confirm the President's appointment of Hon. Fred Douglass to the office of Marshal for the District of Columbia, and to authorize a committee to investigate the legality of Grover's election to the Senate. The Committee was appointed, money for its expenses appropriated, and it is to sit during the recess. There is much talk about an extra session, but nothing definite is known in regard to it. The chief interests of the political world are now concentrated upon the South Carolina and Louisiana Governments. Delegations and petitions are continually pouring in upon President Hayes, but that gentleman does not in the least commit himself, although listening patiently and respectfully to all complaints and grievances. He simply replies that he shall give the matters referred to his most serious attention, and that it is his intention to have the affairs settled as soon as practicable.

The question is to be considered by the Cabinet to-day and it is very generally believed that a commission in an unofficial capacity, consisting of Vice President Wheeler, Mr. Foster, of Ohio, possibly Stanley Mathews and probably some others, will go to New Orleans to try to bring about a compromise based on the reorganization of the Legislature and of the vote of Governor by it. Pending the efforts of the loyal claimants to settle the controversy, it is thought by many that the extra session of Congress will be called late in May or the very first of June.

The public of our city were treated last week to a very enjoyable entertainment by the Jews of Washington. They gave a fair and festival for the benefit of the Adas Israel congregation, and the perfection of its arrangements and execution has been seldom, if ever, equalled here. There were many ways and means devised to attract patronage, but not the least effective were the handsome faces to be seen in their hall. There were large numbers of children in attendance upon the booths and tables, and such beautiful children I think none but Jewish children have such lovely faces. I have never seen an ugly Hebrew child. The first thing I observed upon entering the hall was a group of dolls—all dressed in deep mourning, the largest in widow's weeds, the others as children, and just before them was a little basket labeled "Help the widow and orphans." The different lodges of Israelites had booths ranged about the sides of the hall, which were filled with every conceivable variety of fancy articles for sale. At one end was a cake table, the center piece on which was a huge pyramidal cake, frosted and ornamented lavishly, containing a gold ring. This cake was raffled for and tickets to the number of 150 sold for it. Another table was loaded down with choice fruit, temptingly arranged and tended by a sweet faced, bright-eyed girl whom no one could pass by. In the center of the room was the flower-stand, a very bower of beauty,—mosses, plants, nose gays, baskets, bouquets of every size and style, singing birds in cages, and all such sweet and lovely things. But the centre of attraction was the telegraph and post office, the windows and doors of which were surrounded by an eager crowd the whole time. Real wires were in connection and a telegram received from the Executive Mansion one evening from President Hayes to the effect that he and his family would attend the fair next evening, was exhibited on the exterior of the office, and insured a full attendance for the following night. Their net gain was $1800.

The Sabbath is going to be, it seems, a sober, quiet day at the White House. The President makes it a point to do no business on Sunday that can be transacted as well on other days. Mrs. Hayes is a devout member of the M. E. Church and her husband attends with her. She kneels in prayer, joins in congregational singing, attends class-meeting and conscientiously performs all the acts of a faithful church-member. The Foundry Church has been decided upon as the place of worship of the Presidential family, instead of the Metropolitan, which was Grant's church, as being nearer, and Mrs. Hayes prefers walking to church, there by relieving her servants and horses from Sunday duty. Considering that nearly two weeks' reman in which cases may be returned for trial, it wouldn't at all be surprising if we were to be able to present as full and interesting a trial list, before the opening of the Sessions, as we have yet had. If the Mertz-Wenzel matter should be suffered to go before a jury, persons fond of scandal will certainly be gratified to their heart's content. We pity the parties to the case, but as they evidently seek to acquire notoriety, we should regret it very much were the cross-suits now pending to be compromised, as they promise to furnish much which is not witnessed at every session.

The following extract is taken from a letter dated Pittston, March 14, and written to the N. Y. Daily Graphic, by Susan E. Dickson: "It is definitely and strongly alleged that the 'Molly Maguires' are secretly re-organizing themselves throughout Schuylkill, Carbon and Luzerne counties. The majority of those who belong to them are, of course, men over whom the Church lost control before they connected themselves with such an organization. They belong wholly to that class from which come the desperate criminals of all communities, metropolitan or rural. There is no class that stands in more bitter opposition to them than the true, honest laboring class, the great bulk of the miners and laborers. But they are kept in countenance by two different sets of people. First, a certain class of local politicians who are willing to affiliate with even known criminals, if these can control votes. There is now before the Pennsylvania legislature a bill to take away their charter from the Ancient Order of Liberians, and it is openly charged that a number of these manipulators are in Harrisburg, working diligently for the defeat of the bill; also to secure pardon, if possible, for the convicted 'Molly Maguires,' none of whom have as yet been executed. The other set of people who are keeping the organization in heart and hope, are scattered all over the country—people who choose to look on the contest in Pennsylvania between law and order on one side, and this desperate criminal Order, the worst enemy of the laborer, on the other, as a contest between capital and labor, between the coal corporations and the miners. As already stated, nothing could be more false. But there are papers—some of them published in New York, notably the Irish World—devoted to sustaining these false views. And the District Attorney of Carbon County, residing in Mauch Chunk, is overwhelmed with letters from humanitarian societies, far and near, protesting against the execution of the 'convicted' 'Mollies,' as victims of the 'conspiracy of capital.' If there are further outrages in the coal regions, before the Church and the Law together have put an end to the infamous organization, the heavy responsibility will chiefly rest on the maudlin humanitarians, whose sympathies always go out to crime and criminals, instead of their innocent victims. But forewarned is forearmed, and the great mass of the laboring community in the coal regions will fight to the bitter end against any revival of the influence of 'Molly Maguireism.'
