Too Late For The Train.

A DOMESTIC EXPERIENCE.

When I reached the depot, Mr. Man and his wife gazed with unspeakable disappointment at the receding train, which was just rolling away from the bridge switch at the rate of a thousand miles a minute. The first impulse was to run after it, but as the train was out of sight and whistling for Sagestown before they could act upon the impulse, they remained in the carriage and disconsolately turned the horses heads homeward. homeward. "It all somes of having to wait for a woman to get ready," Mr. Man broke the silence with, very grimiy. "I was ready before you were," replied his wife.

" Great Heavens !" cried Mr. Man, in irrepressible impatience, jerking the horses' jaws out of place, " just listen to that ! And I sat in the buggy ten minutes, yelling at you to come along until the whole neighborhood heard me." "Yes," acquiesced Mrs. Man, with "Yes," acquiesced Mrs. Man, with the provoking placidity which no one can assume but a woman, " and every time I started down stairs you sent me back for something you had forgotten." Mr. Man groaned. " This is too much to bear, when everybody knows that if I was going to Europe, I would just rush into the house, put on a clean shirt, erab un my grip-sack, and fly.

shirt, grab up my grip-sack, and fly, while you would want at least six months for preliminary preparations, and then dwndle around the whole day of starting until every train had left town town

Well, the upshot of the matter was, that the Mans should put off their visit to Aurora until the next week, and it was agreed that each one should get him or herself ready and go down to the train and go, and the one who failed to get ready should be left. The day of the match came round in due time. The train was to go at 10.30 and Mr. Man after attending to his business, went home at 9 45. "Now, then," he shouted, " only three quaiters of an hour to train time. Fiy around ; a fair field and no favors, you know." And away they flew. Mr. Man bugled into that room and rushed through that one, and dived into one closet after another with inconceivable rapidity, chuckling under his breath all the tim to think how cheap Mrs. Man would feel when he started off alone. He stopped on his way up stairs to pull off his heavy boots to save time. For the same reason he pulled off his coat as he ran through the dining-room and hung it on a corner of a sliver closet. Then he pulled off his vest as he rushed through the ball and tossedit on a hook in the hat-rack, and by the time he reached his own room he was ready to plunge into his clean clothes. He pulled out a bureau drawer and began to paw at the things like a Scotch terrier after

" Because," said Mrs. Man, sweetly, "Because," said Mrs. Man, sweetly, after a deliberate stare at the fidgeting, impatient man, during which she but-toned her dress and put eleven pins where they would do the most good, "because you have got the shirt on wrong side out."

When Mr. Man slid out of the shirt he began to sweat. He dropped the shirt three times before he got it on, and while it was over his head he heard the clock strike ten. When his head rame through he saw Mrs. Man coax-ing the end and bows of her necktie. "Where's my shift studs ?" he crled:

Mrs. Man went out into another room and presently came back with her gloves and hat and saw Mr. Man emptying all the boxes he could find in and about the bureau. They she said : "In the shirt you took off."

Mrs. Man put on her gloves while Mr. Man haunted up and down the room for his cuff-buttons. "Eleanor," he snarled at last, "I believe you must know where the but-" I haven't seen them," said the lady settling her hat ; " didn't you lay them down on the window-sill in the sitting room last night ?" Mr. Man remembered, and went down stairs on the run. He stepped on one of his boots and was immediately landed in the hall at the foot of the stairs with neatness and dispatch.

"Are you nearly ready; Algernon?" asked the wife of the family, sweetly, leaning over the banisters. The unhappy man groaned. " Can't you throw me down that other boot ?" he asked.

Mrs. Man pityingly kicked it down to him. "My valise ?" he inquired, as he tugged away at his boot. "Up in your dressing-room," she an-

"Packed ?" " l don't know ; unless you packed It yourself, probably not ;" she replied, with her hand on the door nob ; "I had hardly time to pack my own." She was reaching out the rate when She was passing out the gate, when the door opened and he should : "Where in the name of goodness did you put my yest? It has all the money in it."

" You threw it on the hat-rack, "she called back ; "good bye, dear." Before she got to the corner of the street she was hailed again. " Eleanor ! Eleanor ! Eleanor Man | Did you ware off my coat ?"

She paused and turned, after signal-ing the street car to stop, and cried : "You threw it on the silver-closet."

And the streat car engulted her grace-ful figure and the was seen no more.

But the neighbors say that they heard Mr. Man chasing up and down the house, rushing out at the front door every now and then, and shricking up the deserted streets after the uncon-scious Mrs. Man, to know where his hat was, and where she put the valise-key, and if he had any clean socks and undershirts, and that there wasn't a linen collar in the house. And when he went away at last, he left the kitchen he went away at last, he fert the known door, side door and front door, all the downstair windows, and the front gate wide open. And the loungers about the depot yesterday were somewhat amused, just as the train was pulling out of sight down in the yard, to see a flushed perspiring man, with his hat on sideways, his vest buttoned two buttons too high, bis cuffs unbuttoned and necktie flying, and his grip-sack flying open and shut like a demented shutter on a March night, and a door-key in his hand, dash wildly across the track, giaring in dejected, impotent, wrathful mortification, at the departing trial, and shaking his trembling fist at a pretty woman who was throwing bisses at him from the rear platform of the last car.

A Curlous Calen'ation. It is asserted by scientific writers, says an Irish newspaper, that the num-ber of persons who have existed on our globe since the beginning of time amounts to 00,027,843,237,075,250. These figures, when divided by 3,095,-000 - the number of square leagues on the globe-leaves 11,320,689,703 square miles of land, which, being divided as before, gives 1.424,620.075 persons to each square tails. If we reduce these miles to square roo's, the number will be 1,853,174,600,000, which, divided in life manner, will give 2.373 inhabitants to each square rood, and these being to each square tood, and these being reduced to ten feet will give about five perions to each square foot of terra firms. It will thus be perceived that our earth is a vist connectory. On each rood of it 1,285 human beings he buried, each rood being scatcely suffi-clent for ten graves, with each grave containing 129 human. The whole containing 128 persons. The whole surface of our globe, therefore, has been dug over 128 times to bury its dead,
