Meeting of the Second Conference of The Coal Trade. the Lutheran Synod of Pennsylvania.

Tuesday of last week the Lutheran body mot in semi-annual convention in Hen Salem Church East Pean township, Carbon county. This courch and charms, now under the care of Nev W. fz. Strauss, are situated in the beauti-ful Mahoning Valley lying immediately weat of Lebughton and north of the Blue Ridge. Most of the members of this contrience reads in the Leigh Valey, and the membership contains at present fifty elected names, with their lay egates. The church was beautifully and tastefully decorated with flowers and ever greens in honor of the occa-mm. Above the outpit, surmounting a floral cross, was the word whetener, in large letters, which expressed the cordual feelings with which the Conference was greeted on the part of the good people. The first session was opened at 21. Democratic County Convention. The attendance at Monday's County conven-tion, especially in view of the fact that but a surgle nomination was to be made, was a strong teminder of the more pro-perous days of Democracy, so large was the crowd congregated. Fruitless Interview.

A committee representing the mining engineers, pump runners and firemen employed in the collieries of the Delaware and Hudson canal company, at Carbondale, at the head of the Lackawanna valley, waited on the president of the company, Mr. Thomas Diekson, in Scranton, Monday, to ascertain if the company would make some compromise with the operatives, who have been idle two months. Mr. Diekson, who postponed a visit to New York for the purpose of granting the committee an audience, received them very kindly, but informed them that if work would be resumed it must be by the men themselves, as the company had no terms to offer. The mining machinery of the Delaware and Hudson company at Carbondale has been idle since the inauguration of the strike, and man of the mines have accumulated large quantities of water, so that it will take some time to place them in working order once more. The miners, although they had no control over the matter, being the work of a separate organiza tion, realize that the stoppage of the mine pumps at that and other points has materially injured their prospects. and they will doubtless be pleased to see the mine machinery at work once more. It is expected that the interview with President Dickson will be the means of starting the pumps, and pro-bably, hastening a resumption of active mining operations at the several collieries of the Delaware and Hudson com-pany. This corporation has a large quantity of coal on hand at Honesdale, and the general manager, Col. F. Young, states that notil that is disposed of there will be no auxiety to commence working the mines. The collieries of the Delaware, Lackawanna and West-ern railroad have not yet resumed, despite the strong military protection on hand. The men seem strongly united and the odium which attaches to the name of a blackleg still holds them back. It would seem as if starvation has less terrors for them than resumption under the existing state of affairs.
