MAUGH CHUNK. Oct. 4, 1877.
The die is cast. The case of Thomas P. Fisher has been non prossed. Soon the Governor will issue his writ, and then-we shall again be shocked with an execution. True, there is one chance for the doomed man, the Board of Pardons, but will they dare to interfere? There are thousands who doubt it, and its action in the cases of Campbell, Doyle, Kelley and Donahoe is not at all encouraging. Indeed I've yet to meet the first man who entertained hopes of a better fate for Fisher. The prevailing idea is, that in six weeks at most, poor Thomas P. will have ceased to Respecting the fate of O'Donnell, a more hopeful feeling exists, and there are many who doubt the possibility of a conviction, provided a fair average jury should be secured for him. In short, public sympathy is with the prisoper; it will be felt at his coming trial, and may yet prompt his acquittal, For say what you will, 'tis public opinion that rules the hour. It is more potent than courts even, and wee to him who dare to disregard it.

Touching the Fritz homicide nothing is said. It may or may not come to trial, but on the whole a lively time may be expected during next week's ses-sions, as O'Donnell's case will surely be the most hotly contested Mollie Ma-guire trial we've yet had.

With the exception of coal shipments, which are active, business continues excessively dull. Our foundries and machine shops are still idle, and at the machine shops are still idle, and at the wire mill top work was stopped about two weeks ago for want of orders. This stoppage, however, is not expected to last long, as a general resumption of mining operations must bring orders. Another subject, and I have done. Our several sociable, musical and literary organizations are actively prepar-ing for the fall and winter campaign. The Athenaum held their first meeting on Tuesday evening, and will bereafter hold regular fortnightly meeting as of yore. In military circles there is noth-ing new, except that on Friday evening, while a soldier was walking over the trestle-work, or railroad bridge, in rear of the old wire-mill, one of the sills broke, precipitating the man some 20 feet among the rocks below, the fall resulting in the dislocation of one of resulting in soldier's arms. The Coal Trade. The principal feature of the trade for the past week, and, the one which has altracted a great deal of stiention in coal and financial croles, is the circuits of the sales department the Lehigh and Wilkesberre Coal Company, is-smed from New York on September 27th, offer, leg the coal of that company a prices varying from 25 to 70 cents below the circui the Reading Coal and Iron Company, and also less than the circular prices of the Lehigh Valley coal operators. As it is well known that the Bessing Coal and Iron Company were sold absod for some weeks' delivery, and were not pressing coal upon the market, the men of the Delaware Lackswanna and Western Baltroad Delaware Leckawanna and Western Raitroad Company, the Delaware and Hadson Casal Company and the Pennsylvania Coal Company remaining stid on a strike, with no immediate prespect of resumbton, this andden reduction in the price of coal by the company that had the unrack pre-steady to themselves has caused a great deal of comment among business men. It has been suggested that needs by the novement among the men of the Wooming region now upon a strice, and of unducing them to believe that coal cannot be sold except at low brices, but the publicity which has been given to the circular throughout the country where antifractio is used, and the fact that is munitaneous with its issue the circu are of some stock browsers have been issued calling stiention to the fact that the markets for oo; I were overstocked by the shipments of the Realing itsilization in stocks, and feeding of the sold of the belief which is entertained in sind of some specialton in atocks, and feeding of the sold Company, the Delaware and Hudson Canal Company and the Pennsylvania Coal Company

Up to Saturday evening we wated for some definite information as to coal maters in a general resumption of work the coal maters in a goneral resumption of white the miles. To-day is a likely there will be a general resumption of work there, or the few at work will cave the mises and the sarkes continue indefinitely. As yet we see nothing in the aspect of the coal trade at all discouraging. The season for the active movement in coal is steadily shortening, and there is nothing in the amount of stock on hand, or in the amount his process and the sarkes on winter, that threstens any material reduction in prices. Those who may lay is their winter's supply of coal at present prices are not likely to repeat their schon. Ledger, Monday.

the track of the Fair grounds, and after- The Late Mr. Tweedle. On Friday morning, Sept. 28, 1877, the people of Beaver Meadow were both surprised and grieved to hear that Mr.

Samuel B. Tweedle was no more. We feel certain the same sentiments will be felt by all who had the pleasure of forming his acquaintance. Mr. Tweedle was a young man aged thirty years and eleven month. His appearance prom-ised a long life, but Death, who spares not the young nor the old, cut him down in the bloom of manhood, leaving in the family circle a void that never can be filled. The funeral took place on Sunday afternoon, Sept. 30, at 2 o'-clock, and was largely lattended by a mul-titude of friend and acquaintance. Mr. ed out in a body to attend the funeral. The procession moved slowly along un-til it reached the church, where the til it reached the chuich, where the Rev. Mr. Wilson, of the Presbyterian Church, preached a very touching sermon. After the services of the church were over, the casket containing the body of Mr. Tweedle, was borne to the cemetary by members of the the societies of which he had been a member. After the minister concluded the services at the grave, the different societies paid their last tribute of honor over the body. This concluded the last rites for the dead. Dust was committed to dust, and the earthly career of Samuel B. Tweedle was forever ended. He leaves behind him to mourn their loss his parents, four brothers, one of whom is the well-known Dr. J. B. Tweedle, of Weatherly, and one sister, besides his many friends and acquaintance,-Haz-
