We have taken in hand the work of civilizing the Chinaman, and are making fair progress, though some may think that the results are not perma-Boiled Ham, . . . . 10 nent enough. Two years ago one Mougolian who has lived here for some time was naturalized, and cast his vote for the ticket of his choice, Since then he Hot Coffee and Cakes . 10 has made progress in the ways of the Hard Boil'd Eggs 3 for . 10 Americans, discrading his pigtail and Ham Bologne . . . . 10 donning a stovepipe hat. Still further forgetful of the land of his nativity, and its almond eyed, small-footed daughters, he fell in love with a girl of American birth, named Celia, and after a long courtship was able to win her promise that she would marry him. All the arrangements were made for the wedding day. He bought her a watch and wedding ring, and she had all ber clothes in readiness. A day before the one set for the ceremony she disappeared, but not alone, the ring the watch and rainest were with ring the watch and raiment went with Poached . . . . 10 was wont to have long talks—she speak-ling German and he broken English— could have done any better under the circumstances, and that here is—or was -at least one Chinamen who had be come thoroughly Americanized. As for his countrymen, of whom there are a number in the city, they looked up-on him as a traitor, who had sacrificed his pig tail and deserted the manners and customs of the Flowery Kingdom for the ways of the foreign devils. So he was not sent back to his native land, but buried here by his employer, Bob Ingersoll has just ended his vindication of the character of the late Tom Paine, concerning which he got into a row with the New York Observer, which had republished the statement that Paine died a drunkard and in despair. So Ingersoll delivered a lecture of several columns last week, in which he collected all the testimony on his side of the case, and wound up with a fervid caingy of the ability and patriotism of Thomas. There is so little interest taken in the dead man that the long array of evidence has created no sensa-tion. Here the only persons who swear by Paine are a few Scandinavians, who celebrate the day of his death speech and song, winding up the per-formences with a supper and a dance. Germans and Americans slike disregard the author of the Age of Reason, but Swedes and Norweglans for some inexplicable reason have made a pro-phet out of him. Ingersoll originally offered $1,000 in gold to the editor of the Observer if he would make good his charges, but the parties were never able to come to a square issue, so that no money will change hands. The farmers of Illinois have had the most extraordinary harvest known for years. Neither drought nor frost has interfered with their happiness. Moreover, there is an Europeau war, and a market for all that they can produce, and yet they are not happy. They are worrying themselves over the recent action of the railroad companies, in putting up rates to the East, and fear that there will be another increase the moment that the lake navigation is at an end. This is altogether likely. So since they apprehend that their expected profits are going into the pockets of the railroad companies, they are talking of beginning another Granger war, and seeing if they cannot get the better of the monopolies. There are on the statute books laws to regulate railroad charges, and there are commissioners to see that they are executed. But they move too slowly to suit the agri-culturists, some of whom are now talking gloomly of tearing up tracks in case the rates are put up. They admit case the rates are put up. They admit that such a policy would not help them any, but then it would hurt the rail-roads, which is the main thing they are after. So it is not unlikely that the railroad troubles of last summer may break out again in a fresh place.

The criminal folly of man was beau-tifully illustrated Wednesday. An ex-press messenger named Price, who runs between here and Pitisburg, was arrest ed for stealing money packages, and the property was found upon him. Nearly three years ago this same man, while on his run to the East, killed an ex-conductor who had sought to rob the car. Price had a desperate fight with the man, and received a bullet wound in his shoulder which invalided him for some time. The Express Company was grateful, and showed it by giving him $1,000 in gold, and a leave of absence until he was cured. He has been in the Company's employ ever since, an bonest an trusted servant. But the man in spite of his bravery must have been absolutely dishonest, and have deemed his name valuable chiefly because it secured him immunity from suspicion. For some time back packages have been missing on the route be-tween here and Pittsburg, but nobody thought of suspecting Price. Marked packages were resorted to, and were Prices as low as elsowhere, and goods war ranted as represented. Tuly 11, 1972-m tried, and was caught in the act of robbery. The discovery was a very painful one to the officers of the Company, who had put such absolute confidence who had put such absorbte confidence in his honesty. It appears from his statement that the money given him led him into temptation. He bought real estate with it and took to stealing to make up the remainder of the pur-chasd money.

Politics here are gradually assuming definite shape. The Republicans will run a straight ticket, and if they nominate the best men, will probably elect it. The Democrats and Workingmen have very nearly fused, the former to take three profitable offices, and, the latter seven which are of secondary importance so far as salary and patronage go. The Judges are, it is pretty generally agreed, to be non-partizans. The Greenbackers were at one time on the point of uniting with the Workingmen, but have finally decided to retain their individuality. The Socialists cannot, individuality. The Socialists cannot, at the outside, cast more than 2,000 votes, and the chances are that they vill sell out to one or the other party before election day. If men of equal capacity are nominated, the fusion ticket of Workingmen and Democrats will doubtless be successful. The job of gathering up the relics of the broken banks goes slowly onward. A receiver is, of all creatures, the one who goes slow and sure. He is so on his guard against an imprudence, that he would rather postpone a dividend a year, than allow five cents of the assets to be sacrificed. He is careful to give no information, lest it may be slightly out of the way, and mislead the expectant creditor; and he is, if anything, more careful to draw his allowance every month, even if it takes the last cent in the treasury. From present appearances one of the banks will pay 50 per cent, another than 200 50 per cent , another about 90, and another about 20. There are beginning to be fears that the trouble is not yet over here, and that in a short time some of the National Banks, will go to the Such fears are apt to cause the mischief that is apprehended, and so another smash is by no means unlikely.

BOSTON, Oct. 22, 1877. Our lecture courses, which usually opens in September, are quite late this season, but they are just out with their programmes, which commences early in November and continues into January. The announcements are quite attractive, especially when the low price of $3 and $4 for the best seats for twelve lectures is considered.

We have had one thing in the way of a " show" the past week which I must not pass by unnoticed and that is Dr. S. M. Laudis, who was announced to appear at Beethoven Hall in "Hamlet" and "Richard III.," supported by an "imaginary company." This man, who we are very much inclined to think is a trife "loony," did not meet with suc-cess, and discontinued his "performan-ces" after two nights. As he has been well advertised, one of our little variety theatres has picked him up, and will bring him out to night as a "star." As I believe the "Doctor" is somewhat known in your region. I append a brief correspondence between him and the last surmounted all financial difficulties, manager of the variety theatre, which I believe is absurd enough to deserve contractor of this city, for a term of ten

The Grand National Baby Show opens to-night at Horticultural one of the papers remarked the other day, it will open and close with a bawl. The managers of this affair have stepped in just ahead of Mr. Peck, of the Music Hall, who was planning to give a similar exhibition, and who comes out with a card stating that in consequence of the season he has, by advice, post-poned his baby show until a more fa-vorable time in the year. #### Our Montreal Letter.

MONTREAL, Oct. 19.

In leading social circles of this city the busy tongue of scandal has run rife about a scandolous affaire de cœur which occurred upwards of a year ago, and which also stirred to its innermost depths the "uppertendom" of Boston society. It will be necessary, by way of preinde, to refer to the events which culminated the other day in a divorce being obtained in Chicago, and the celebration of a marriage ceremony in Boston on the 13th last.

When Montreal awoke out of its slumbers one Sabbath morning the news spread like wild fire that the wife of William Mackenzie, Esq., the daughter of Andrew Allen, Esq., the well known millionaire, had taken the evening train for New York with Frederick Brydges, son of C. J. Brydges. The lek Brydges, son of C. J. Brydges. The runaway couple put up at a leading hotel in New York, and the press of that city, the next day, vied with each other in describing the social standing of the truants and the furore created in Montreal society. It subsequently leaked out that Mrs. Mackenzie had been deeply wronged by her dissipated husband, whose career since their nuptials had been a downward one. It appears that Frederick Brydges was a "first love" of Mrs. Mackenzie, and had visited her at her residence during her husband's absence on the most intimate husband's absence on the most intimate terms. One evening she accompanied him to a theatre, where a drama was enacted that depicted the sufferings of a wronged wife who as a last extremity determined to run away from her liege lord.

The play so deeply moved Mrs. Mac-kenzie that she resolved to follow the example of the wronged wife depicted in the drama, and that night she deserted her husband and two children, and took the midnight train for New York, in company with Fred. Brydges. The father of the latter pursued the fugitive couple in a special train, and succeeded in stifling scandal and arranging mat-ters to the satisfaction of both families.

About a week ago Mr. Mackensie succeeded in obtaining a divorce in Chicago. The barrier being removed, Mr. Brydges lost no time in arranging for his marriage with Mrs. Mackenzie, which took place on the 13th inst., in Park street church, Boston.

A melancholy accident occurred on Saturday night in the St. John, N. B., River through a collision between the steamer "Soulanges" and a wood boat "Gold finder." The first intimation received by the passengers of the oc-currence was a terrible crash, which appeared as if it had rent the steamer in twain. Twenty feet of the "Soulanges" starboard was carried away by the col-lision. Two gentlemen and two ladies, cabin passengers, on deck at the time, were carried overboard. The two ladies were drowned, while the two gentlemen were rescued. Thedeceased ladies were a Mrs. Trecanture, leaving a husband and nine children, and a Mrs. J. Carter, of Long Branch. Mr. Carter had hold of his wife, but was made to let go his hold by coming in contact with fragments of the debris.

contractor of this city, for a term of ten years. The completion of Mount Roy-al Park, and the erection of the Windsor Hotel, undertaken by Montreal's "moneyed" men, at a cost of haif a million dollars, is an allurement to secure the immense American patronage during the tourist season. Heretofore the "City of Churches" had the reputation of being the worst provided, as re-regards to hotel accommodation, of any city on the continent.

The relentless fire-fiend visited the town of Whitby and destroyed its primeval beauty. The loss is estimated at $100,000.

Two fisherman captured a huge devil-fish, known as the St. Logie specimen, in Calcutta Harbor, New Brunswick, last month, which measured forty feet in length. The huge monster, "terrible even in death," was washed to shore during a terrific gale, and at the ebb of tide expired. At the approach of the simple fishermen the monster lashed the water into fury in value forty to care. water into fury in vain efforts to escape. They placed the "big squid," as they termed it, in their craft, and conveyed it to St. John, where it was exhibited for three days, until an American captain bought it for exhibition purpo
