PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD.

GREAT TRUNK LINE

United States Mail Route.

The attention of the traveling public is respectfully invited to some of the merits of this great highway. In the confidence of the public, we believe that no other line can offer equal inducements as a route of through travel. In

Construction & Equipment

THE Pennsylvania Railroad

stands pre-eminently at the head of American railways. The track is double the entire length of the line, of steel rails laid on heavy oak ties which are embedded in a foundation of rock ballast eight to ten inches in depth. All bridges are of iron or steel, and built upon the most approved plans. Its passenger cars, while ornate and substantial, are at the same time made of comfort and elegance.

The Safety Appliances

A use on this line well illustrate the far-reaching and liberal policy of its management, in accordance with which the only safety appliances used are not its cost has been the question of consideration. Among many may be noticed the

Block System of Safety Signals,

Janney Coupler, Buffer & Platform,

THE WHEATON PATENT SWITCH,

AND THE

Westinghouse Air-Brake, forming in conjunction with a perfect double track road a combination of safety appliances that accidents which have rendered them practically impossible.

Pullman Palace Cars

Are run on all Express Trains FROM NEW YORK, PHILADELPHIA, BALTIMORE AND WASHINGTON. TO CHICAGO, CINCINNATI, LOUISVILLE, INDIANAPOLIS AND ST. LOUIS.

WITHOUT CHANGE,

and to all principal points in the far West and South with but one change of cars. Connections are made in Union Depots, and are assured to all important.

THE SCENERY

Of the Pennsylvania Route

is admitted to be unsurpassed in the world for grandeur, beauty and variety. Superior hotel and refreshment facilities are provided. Employees are courteous and attentive, and it is an inevitable result that a trip by the Pennsylvania Railroad is a pleasure.

Pleasant and Memorable Experience.

In Memory of Henry Gelsel.

BY WM. F. MORAN.

Friends are sitting here to-day,

Friends of one that's gone before us;

Friends have all to pass that way—

Friends in song and friends in chorus.

Friends, we've all lived here so fondly,

Friendly ate and drank our fill;

Friends still linger sad and lonely,

Friends at heart and loving still.

Friend departed, how we miss thee,

Friendship's sad without thy face;

Friends there are would fondly kiss thee,

Friend, within thy resting place.

Peletiah Perritt's Cider.

Our misfortunes are sometimes angels in disguise, but they are not always thus appeared. Tranquility under affliction cannot be commanded in every event of life, however necessary it may be on all occasions to strive after that equanimity which becomes a man or woman, no matter how severe the present trial of patience or fortitude. Listen to the unhappy story of Peletiah, son of Orrin K. Perritt, of South Littleton, as related by himself.

In the remembrance of some sorrows, whatever the duration of life, we never outgrow ourselves. Whenever I attempt to recall the incidents in my somewhat exceptional career, one particular day of my existence rises up before me, and will not be forgotten, or even lightened of its burden of pain. With shame and confusion I look back upon the past, for that one terrible day of gloom overshadowed my career and obscures the sunny hours which, in the course of nature, come at intervals to every male and female descendant of Adam. I can think with calmness of many sad circumstances that have befallen my lot—circumstances full of peril and horror; but that particular disaster to which I refer has blotted out all feeling with regard to other scenes that might, disconnected from my grand catastrophe, have darkened a lifetime. Oh, that I had died young, while yet a stranger to public mortification; a mortification to "unbrace the strongest nerves and make the stoutest courage quail."

The day of my calamity, forty years ago, dawned like many another day in ripe October. The morning that ushered in the Sunday on which I was to suffer was one of radiant loveliness, and, as I walked along alone to our modest little house of worship in the country, all the trees seemed hanging out their banners of beauty. How well do I recall the scene of surpassing brilliancy on that gorgeous autumn morning! I had started early, that I might move slowly over the road, and, allured by the splendid lights and shadows, I made a detour of over a mile beyond the church, in the direction of a beautiful hillside, on one of whose slopes resided my father's lifelong friend, Colonel Bijah Peabody, as he was universally denominated in that part of the country.

The colonel was standing by his garden gate, enjoying the still security of that peaceful Sunday morning. His pipe rested between his lips and emitted only at intervals a gentle puff of smoke. Seeing me approach from the woody roadside, he looked a hearty welcome, and exclaimed: "Glad to see you, Peletiah. How's your father and all the folks at home?"

I answered this kind inquiry, and declined his earnest invitation to "walk in," as I was hurrying to the meeting-house for the morning service.
