

Gentlemen's Fashions.

Justice shall be done to the gentlemen. Yes, it shall. That is, with your kind permission. You devote much space to the fashions of the fair sex, and none to those of the lords of creation. So I'm resolved to give you the very latest autumn of fashions for gentlemen. Here goes.

The newest thing in hats is scarlet opera fannel high soft hats, for tender brains, with bright yellowish plume standing erect in front.

The fustian dress coat, trimmed with Henri Trois tudou folds and plush reverse with tight-fitting coat sleeves and plush buttons is very sweet.

Greenish vests are double-breasted, and button up as usual. Trimmed with narrow plaiting of velvet.

Pants are made long, with gored fronts fitting smoothly over the foot, with pockets buttoned closely up.

Striped stockings laced up on one side, and fasten with chenille tassels at the top.

Patent leather boots are as usual, with the addition of a blue satin rosette on the instep, trimmed with narrow ruffe edged with pique. The buttons are hemstitched on the bias, with gilt braid and gilt plaiting.

Ties are scarf shape, fringed to the depth of a quarter of a yard, and arranged to hang down the back and fasten by soutache braid.

Suspenders are of blue satin, chain stitched, with plush silk.

Handkerchiefs are of honeycomb canvas, quarter of a yard square, with lace centers, hemstitched and trimmed with Brussels boucles, twelve inches deep.

Gloves are worn on the hands, buttoned around the wrist.

Scarfs are folded on the bias, and worn around the neck, under the coat collar, which is trimmed with a black gauze ruff.

Cart wheels and drum heads are worn for cuff buttons.

Ox chaise watch guards are en vogue. Dancing pump, are a yard long, to match the fashionable fash, with square sail and Lotta bustle.

Cigars are of the "G. S." brand are crescent-shaped, trimmed with floss boucles, and worn to the left of the mouth.

Among the novelties is a diamond-pointed cigar case of striped percale, with blue gray metal or diamond buckle.

A youth's fancy is a pocket pistol of railroad canvas, surmounted by a chataigne overskirt, sloping upward to the stopper.

Some Modern Sayings.

'Honesty is the best policy,' unless you can get at about $50,000, and effect a settlement at fifty per cent.

Honor thy father and thy mother, particularly about circus time, when you don't know where to raise fifty cents.

Never run in debt when you can avoid. It is much better to get stubbing around in a broadcloth coat than to be in debt for a suit of Scotch mixed.

Let your motto be, "Liberty or death," and if it comes to the pluck take the most of it in liberty.

Remember the poor. If you know of a family who are out of provisions and fuel, keep them in your thoughts until you meet Smith or Brown, and then tell them that "He who giveth to the poor lendeth to the Lord." It is very easy to remember the poor. I can remember cases twenty years ago.

Respect old age. If you have a maiden aunt forty years old, and she is passing herself off for a girl of twenty-three, there is no call for you to expose her. The more you respect her age and keep still about it, the more she will respect you.

Never marry for wealth, but remember that it is just as easy to love a girl who has a brick house with a mansard roof and silver-plated door-bell as one who hasn't anything but an auburn head and an amiable disposition.

Love thy neighbor as thyself. Borrow his plow, hoe, or horses whenever you can; but if he wants to borrow yours tell him that you're very sorry but you were just going to use them yourself.

Be guarded in your conversations. There are times when you may freely express your opinion of a political candidate, but you had better wait until his friends are over in the next county visiting.

Remember that appearances are often deceiving. Mary a pale, thin young lady will eat more corned beef than a carpenter. Because you find her playing the piano in the parlor, it is no sign that her mother is not at the corner grocery running in debt for a peck of potatoes.

Restrain your temper, particularly if a policeman is in sight. Fits of anger hasten death. If a man should call you a horse-thief and you should get highly indignant, it would cut your life short by several days; and if it was in Texas, and there was a vigilance committee handy, it might cut it short altogether.

A Race for $3,000 in Gold.

Adams & Co., bankers, of California, had failed. They had a branch office at a mining town about seventy miles distant, and no telegraph from Sacramento to this town. When Adams & Co.'s doors closed a rusty-looking miner, with a gray shirt on, stood in the crowd. "By Jeeze, that hits me!" he said, and started on a dead run for a lively stable next block.

"Say, Mister, put a Mexican saddle on to the best mustang you've got."

"Where for, sih?"

"No matter, hitch up."

"But your stranger, and—and—"

"Hitch up, old feller. How much is that hoss and saddle worth?"

"One hundred dollars."

"All right; here's your ducats. My name's Ben F—"

And when he could not be seen for dust. Just outside the city he overtook a young man on horseback, who hailed him as he came up alongside.

"Say, Mister," said the young man, "can you direct me to—"

"An you a stranger this way, Mister?"

"Well, yes; you see Adams & Co. have suspended, and I am one of their agents, and am sent to carry the news to their branch bank at—, and close it up before the depositors hear our trouble."

"All right; you follow me" and on they went, with the gold-hunter only one length ahead.

On, on, on, to the half-way house, he gold hunter widening the space between them.

Here the gold hunter leaps from his snoring, frothing steed. "Ho! Ho! get me the best hoss in the stable just as quick as G—d will let you. Here's one hundred dollars for any damages."

In a few minutes he was on a fresh mustang, and just as he started up, up came his companion.

"Hallo! Say, Mister, hold on one minute; I change here."

"Well, I've changed; can't stop; good by."

In about two hours the gold-hunter bled his jagged, foaming steed at the edge of the dropping off his riding rig, walked leisurely up to the bank, pulled out a certificate of deposits for $3,000, and presented it at the counter.

"Do you want all of this now?"

"Well, yes; I'm going away, and have got to take it along."

"But won't you drait on our Sacramento bank?"

"No; I'm going the other way."

"Oh, well; it'll take all the coin we've got, for our Sacramento bank has drawn very heavy lately."

"Well, I can't help it; I must have it."

It was paid over the counter. Just as the gold-hunter stepped to the door, with his treasure in bags, the agent dismounted, and running up the steps was about to pass him, as he stood apparently waiting, and then, turning around, called out to the banker: "You'd better shut your doors; your old bank is busted, and this man comes to tell you."

It is unnecessary to add that Adams & Co. never resumed, but remained "busted."—Labor Tribune.

—One who has practically tested and studied the value and science of advertising, gives the following sensible advice: In the first place, advertise in those papers which will bring your business to the knowledge of the largest number of those whom you wish to reach.

If you are a local trade, or limited to a community, advertise in newspapers which circulate and are read among your people. Outside the limits of your business you can have no competition, and beyond it advertising becomes an expense and not a profit. Select such journals as will reach the largest number of persons residing in your community, then, according to your means, advertise your goods and wares attractively, and with as much freshness and variety as you can command.

Do not pursue this a month and then abandon it convinced that advertising is a humbug. Try it steadily for a year and note the result. If you do there is no danger that you will ever quit it again as long as you are in business. If we were to list that The Guide is the particular journal indirectly referred to, perhaps it might be said that "blowing one's own horn" makes poor music. This, however, we leave to those who care not to enjoy the advantages of an advertising medium that has never been excelled in this community for local trade. By no means do we mean to disparage any other legitimate means of advertising. Our advice to the live business man and woman is—use them all! We are simply stating a fact, that is based on a subscription list which, we believe, has never been exceeded in any community by a thoroughly independent journal.

—Many a Dollar formerly spent on expensive Sulphur Baths is now saved by substituting therefore GLENN'S SULPHUR SOAP, which is just as beneficial but infinitely cheaper. Local diseases of the skin, rheumatism and gout are all relieved by this standard remedy. Complexion blemishes are eradicated by it, and it imparts to the outside a pearly whiteness and velvet softness which greatly enhance the effect of female charms. Its soothing, antipruritic action constitutes its prime remedy for sores, ulcers, cuts, sprains, scalds, bruises, and in fact every abnormal condition of the cuticle attended by inflammation, swelling or itching. Ladies moving in our best society speak of its beautifying properties in enthusiastic terms, and give it decided preference to cosmetics which merely conceal but do not like GLENN'S SULPHUR SOAP, eradicate defects of the complexion. The use of ointments for eruptive complaints is to be deprecated because of their having a tendency to clog the pores and in some cases to aggravate rather than remedy the disease. They are, besides, seldom thorough enough in their effects to prevent the recurrence of eruptions of an inveterate type, and have the disadvantage of soiling the linen of persons who use them. GLENN'S SULPHUR SOAP, on the contrary, radically cures the diseases to which it is adapted and still further recommends itself on account of its cleanliness. It is besides, an admirable disinfectant of clothing which has been worn by persons afflicted with diseases of a contagious nature. As a specific preventive and promoter of the general health it presents advantages of the most unexcelled description. Sold by Druggists. Price 25c. per cake. 1 Box (2 cakes) 75c., sent by mail, prepaid, on receipt of price. C. N. CRITTENTON, Prop'r, 7 Sixth Avenue, New York.
