LEHIGHTON, PA.: SATURDAY, AUGUST 17, 1878.

Notice. The annual Democratic County Meeting will be held at the Court House, Mauch Chunk, on Tuesday, August 20, 1878, at one o'clock, p. m. As business of very great importance will be transacted, it is desired that a full representation of active Democrats from each district will respond to this call. By order of the County Committee. H. E. SCHWARTZ, Sec'y.

A greenback orator in West Virginia proposes that the General Government shall issue greenbacks to be lent to the States at 1 per cent; the States are to lend the money to the counties at 2 per cent, and the counties to the people at 3 per cent. By this simple and ingenious process the money originally costing the Government nothing more than the cost of production, the national, State and county governments will be able to carry themselves on without taxation, being supported by the profits of their loans. The New York World says it only remains for the people to lend it to each other at 4 per cent, and then the whole problem of prosperity will be solved, nobody will have any taxes to pay, and everybody will have an independent income without having to work for it.

The Washington, (D. C.) Star of last Friday evening published an interview with Representative Blackburn, Chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee. Mr. Blackburn reports his committee organized and at work. He attaches great importance to the fall elections, in the effect that they will have upon the Presidential election, and is reported as saying: "The coming election will be the first instance of a great pitched battle along the skirmishing lines. If we loose, our defeat in the fight for a President will follow." Mr. Blackburn said the National party would be a potent factor in the elections. "Their principles have become popular and their strength will extend; but, as a general thing, they will not bother us." He added: "Their movement is also assuming a communistic phase wherever it is strongest. That is the surest way of killing it. The sending of Kearney East as their apostle will also hurt them. In the ravings of this fanatic the people will see the dangerous proclivities of the party. In Kentucky their leader is Blanton Duncan, who never did a stroke of work in his life. Their final destiny will be, after creating a disturbance, to disappear." The interview concluded with the assertion of Mr. Blackburn that there had been no instance in the politics of this country when a party had gained control of both Houses of Congress that it did not elect the next President.

Tuesday night, Dennis Kearney addressed a mass meeting in Huntington Hall, Lowell, Mass., numbering about 3,000. He was escorted there by a procession of workmen, headed by a band. Thos. F. Byron presided. Kearney's speech was of the usual length and character. He defended his profanity by calling it less wicked than the thievery of Hathaway, Chase, Durant, and Docon Duncan. He claimed to be a Christian, and said: "If Bread and Water Beecher preached hell away from the next world, we'll give these infamous scoundrels and lecherous bond thieves a foretaste of it here." He advised the workmen to shun jealousy, pool their issues, and vote only for tolling mechanics; then they will legislate for their own interests, which will necessarily advance those of their fellow laborers. In an interview with Gov. Rice, at New York, the Governor said Kearney was ruling the politics of Massachusetts, and Gen. Butler's chances. "If that is so," said Kearney, "the newspapers and slimy politicians would let me die a natural death. Their bitter opposition proves that they fear otherwise. Women should go to the polls, peddle ballots, and urge their husbands and sweethearts to vote only the labor ticket. Men should organize, and drill if necessary. Never in the history of labor did the work-people gain a point except with the bayonet. Now, if they will, they can do it with the ballot, and must at all hazards drive the lazy gamblers and pious hypocrites into the country to work for a living." He said he should leave Massachusetts soon for Indiana, New York, Philadelphia, and Chicago; then return here and stump the State for Butler until after election. Resolutions embodying the sentiment that the "Chinese must go," were adopted, and Chas. H. Litchman of Marblehead, spoke an hour on greenback, labor, and convict contracts. The meeting adjourned with cheers for "Kearney and Butler."

At Saratoga, on Thursday of last week, in the American Bankers' Association meeting, J. D. Vermilye, of New York, presented an elaborate table, prepared at the Clearing House, showing the disastrous effects which had been produced and were still menacing the country with further mischief by reason of excessive taxation of banks. He showed how the capital and surplus of the banks had been depleted during the past few years, and asked the Executive Council to take action to bring the facts to the knowledge of Congress. The Executive Council, by G. S. Coe, of New York, and L. C. Murray, of Louisville, reported the following:

Resolved, That in the opinion of this Association, the near approach of the day appointed by law for the resumption of coin payments and values is to be hailed as an event of the highest significance to the prosperity and welfare of the whole nation, because it is the only means by which industry, trade and general tranquillity and contentment can be restored to the people. The American Bankers' Association therefore pledge aid and support to the Government in a return to a specie standard in the transaction of the financial affairs of the country.

Resolved, That the resources of the country, arising from abundant crops in several successive years, extraordinary mineral wealth, large credit balances of trade with other nations, and from the rapid development of mechanical inventions and appliances, by which productive industry has been facilitated and increased, all happily concur in supplying necessary means for resumption.

Mr. Fallis, of Cincinnati, and one or two other Western men opposed the resolutions on grounds of inexpediency, although approving their character. L. C. Murray, Louisville; Mr. Henry, Mobile; J. W. Lockwood, Richmond; Mr. Root, Arkansas; Mr. Atkins, Michigan; Mr. Hays, Detroit; A. H. Moss, Sandusky; George S. Coe and Mr. Fry, New York, and Mr. McMichael advocated the resolutions, and they were finally adopted unanimously.

The Potter Committee is again at work, but the witnesses perversely insist that President Hayes made no pledges to them except that he would treat the South with fairness and justice. That meant to the Democrats of Louisiana, who had polled a majority of the votes, that their candidate for Governor, having been elected, should be recognized by President Hayes, but it will be hard to convict the President of having made a "corrupt bargain" if any dependence is to be placed upon the witnesses who have thus far testified to having had personal interviews with him.

Points in Politics. Ex-Governor Joel Parker declines to be a candidate for Congress.

The temperance republicans are preparing for an active campaign in Massachusetts.

Butler stock is at a premium in South Boston; the three wards are thoroughly organized.

Harrisburg Patriot—"Sam Cary gets $20 a speech from the nationals of Michigan."

There will be about 800 regular nominations in the field for the 293 seats in the forty-sixth congress.

Robert Lincoln, son of President Lincoln, is a Congressional candidate in the First Illinois district.

Zach Chandler having been chosen chairman of the Michigan Republican State Committee has gone to work with his coat off.

Boston Traveller—"Stolen oratory may satisfy and astonish the San Francisco hoodlums, but New England workmen read the newspapers."

Several republican papers throw out a hint to Mr. Potter that "the people would like to hear from Mr. Tilden," while others insist that they have heard from him already enough about Mr. Tilden and that "Oregon business."

General Butler was one of the two members in the House of Representatives who opposed the bill compelling the Pacific Railroad companies to make provision for the payment of the bonds which the United States guaranteed.

Boston Herald—"The Boston Managers of political 'machines' say that all the dead beats, tramps and idlers without churches within twenty miles of the city are boring them for jobs as political organizers, speakers and secret emissaries."

Boston Journal—"It is whispered in democratic circles that at the dinner of the friends of Mr. Speaker Randall, at Taft's, on Tuesday last, when he was present, the democratic candidate for the Presidency was decided upon. It would be strange if the political horoscope should be realized, for it was in a private parlor of the Rockingham House at Portsmouth, N. H., that a few leading politicians decided that General Frank Pierce should be the coming man."

Our Paris Letter.

The Exhibition, its Progress, its Restaurants and its Music—the Captive Balloon—Awards—The Telephone and Phonograph—Comments for Newspaper Men—Marble Exhibitions—The Canada Trophy—The great Elevator in Proceidero.

Paris, July 31st, 1878. In spite of the tropical heat of the past week, the number of visitors to the Exhibition has not materially diminished; and yet is intolerably hot in the galleries of the Champ de Mars, and the sun burns down mercilessly on the promenades out of doors. Still, there are shady nooks here and there. If there is the least breeze stirring, it is to be felt on the Proceidero terraces, where the flowers and grass are kept fresh by a system of incessant watering, and where the fountains and cascade help to cool the air.

Since it has been found impossible to install a military band in the Exhibition grounds, several of the restaurants have set up music of their own. One band plays at the British bar, and another at the Spanish cafe. Several small buffets for the sale of cakes and iced drinks are newly opened, and the visitors, including ladies and children, are now well supplied in this respect; they may also buy Turkish sweetmeats, Algerian fruit, Russian kames, English buns, Parisian gauds, and Persian scraps in various places.

The captive balloon in the Place du Carrousel is now visible from all parts of Paris, its huge bulk towering over the buildings of Louvre and Tuileries. The public is to be permitted to make ascents next week, the price being fixed for 20 fr. each person. In the meantime the balloon has been up twice, to a height of 1300 feet; the second time Mme. Goddard and Mme. Darros were of the party.

The exciting moment for the exhibitors is arrived, the jurors are finishing their work, and the question of prizes, and especially of the grand prizes of honor, is a burning one. Of course nobody knows anything of what is going on in the jury room, nor in the jurymen's lives; but there are certain rumors, and some not of a pleasant kind. These do not however refer to any of the American exhibitors. Yesterday some very interesting experiments, with the telephonic and phonographic combined were made in the telegraphic section, before the jury. The mouths of the two instruments were placed together, and the words engraved upon the phonographic cylinders were soon heard distinctly in the telephone reception room at Versailles, and vice versa. After this the interlocutor at Versailles sang an original song through the telegraph, which was taken down in the photograph at the Champ de Mars, and it was sung and repeated by this instrument, and general applause. These are among the first experiments which have been made with the two instruments together, and it is evident that they may be very usefully applied.

If you have duly obtained a press pass to the Exhibition adorned with your photograph, and with official signatures, which render it doubly valuable to posterity, then you have the right to claim admittance to the Press Pavilion. It is situated near the post-office, and has a telegraph office of its own; but this has practically broken down; and the journalists use now the same wires and letter-boxes as other men. The value of the pavilion is in affording a cool and quiet retreat to write, and one supplied with all the newspapers. Have all the principal papers in the world, and through the care of some Polish gentleman connected with the Parisian press, the pavilion is especially rich in Slavonic papers. The pavilion has many studies and boudoirs, in addition to the great reading-room; and ladies and music are, it is said, not to be excluded from it. It is hoped however, that some rooms will be preserved for solitude and quiet, to the benefit of all its other advantages which will be lost to the working bees of journalism, for whom it was designed.

France, Italy, and Belgium contain the chief seats of production of marble-work. In consequence of the increased facilities for transport, and the decrease in customs duties, this branch of industry has flourished and increased considerably in France since 1870. Paris in this, as in so many other industries, is the chief seat of the trade, also from Marcellus, the Pyrenees, the West, and from Java. The great works at the Louvre, the Tuileries, and the New Opera House have brought the employment of marble decorations in luxurious habitations into general favour. Working in marble is divided into four distinct branches—namely, buildings, decorations, clockmaking, and monuments. Each of these branches is well represented in class 18; but the merit of the French manufacture is especially noticeable in the marble decorations, the execution of which will bear comparison with the work of the Renaissance, or the time of Louis XIV. The art of ornamental sculpture employs a comparatively large staff of artists and workmen. Thus, the models executed in potter's clay are cast by the moulder, and the ornaments are stamped either in statuary, pasteboard, millboard, or plaster.

The bands of many studies and boudoirs, in addition to the great reading-room; and ladies and music are, it is said, not to be excluded from it. It is hoped however, that some rooms will be preserved for solitude and quiet, to the benefit of all its other advantages which will be lost to the working bees of journalism, for whom it was designed.

The elevator in the Proceidero is at last finished, and will be placed at the disposal of the visitors within two or three days. Even those who know the building well and have watched the progress of the elevator are astounded by its enormous proportions. The tower in which it is erected rises to the height of 283 feet above the surface of the bill on which it stands, and to 350 feet above the level of the Seine. The piston by which it is worked descends into a well, which passes through the old quarry below to the depth of 10 feet below the level of the sea. The counterpoise, each of which is composed of a mass of iron 65 feet long and weighs ten tons, work in two other wells. The triple wire cable is eight inches wide, and one and one-half inches thick, and is formed of 888 wires four-fifths of an inch in diameter. The resistance of each cable is calculated at two hundred tons. The cage of the elevator is about 14 feet in diameter. The flight upwards is performed in two minutes. The view from the summit is grand, embracing not only the city, the Bois de Boulogne and St. Germain, but a view of the Seine, with all its curiosities, as far as Mantes. A few of a franc will be charged for the ride.
