LEHIGHTON, PA. SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 1878.

-The vote for Congress in this county was-Brockway, D., 117; Klotz, D., 2051 Albright, R., 2319, and for Orvis, G., 784.

-Can the editor of the Greenbacker tell where to find Ben. Butler next? and where all those greenback Cougressmen are who were to "plug" up the bleeding wounds

-The best news that has come from Washingion for many days is the report of the Cabinet's determination to advise either the raising of the value of the silver dollar or the diminution of its coinage.

-New York Herald: "The most satisfactory aspect of Gen. Butler's overwhelming discomfiture in Massachusetts is not the mortification which has overtaken the man, but the demonstration it affords of the powerlessness of the greenback party, of which he was the most conspicuous representative.

-The Washington Star says, "on good nuthority," that when the United States Treasury resumes specie payments it will begin with gold, not silver. Should the run for gold in exchange for United States notes come close to the amount of that coin on hand," a retreat may be made on silver."

-In a paper read before the American Medical Association, by John Morris, M. D., of Baltimore, the writer says: "We have been for years past gradually lessening the dozes of medicine that we administer to our patients. Many of us who have studied the effects of remedies in different doses have discovered that very small quantities will produce very striking results. The experitried in nearly all the cases of disease which we are called on to treat."

-The following is a comparison of the condition of the Treasury November 1, 1877. and November 1, 1878, as furnished by the Pennsylvania was first carried by the republicans in 1858, and was carried by them every year up to and including 1873, excepting 1862 and 1867. In 1869, Lincoln's majority was 59,618, which was the largest ever received by a republican candidate in the State except in 1s72, when the democrats permitted the election to go by default, and Grant received a regiority of 136,118. In 1864 Lincoln had 5,712 majority, and in 1868 Grant received 28,808 majority. The democratic majority for Auditor General in 1862 was 3,522 and for Judge of the Supreme Court in 1867 it was 922. In 1874 the demo crate again carried to State, their caudida to for Lieutenant Governor, being elected by a plansity of 4.679, but his clear majority over all was 39 only. In 1875 Hartranft was elected Governor by a plurality of 12, 636, but the temperance vote of that year reached 13,244 and threw the republicans into a minority of 1,214 on the total vote. In 1876 the republicans again carried the State, the vote for President standing :-Hayes, 354,122; Tilden, 366,158; Cooper, 7,187, and Smith, 1,319 - a republican plurality of 17,964, and a republican majority of 9,458. In 1877 the democrats were victorious, the vote for Auditor General standing 242,288 republicau, 251,246 democratic, 52,-854 greenback and 2,997 temperance-s peratic plurality of 8,968, but leaving the democrats in a minority of 46,883 on the

A Universal Exhibition does not promote for the trouble than this same super-abundance of bey-printers. It is difficult to specify in every detail just how all the mischief is occasioned; but one thing is certain—the cheapness with which small work is turned but by these nondescript contrivances large by effects the patronage of legitimate printing-houses. The great majority of persons who require dedgers, cards, etc., do not discriminate about the quality of paper, ink, or style. If their advertisements can be read they are satisfied, and "it helps the boys." It is notorious that this boys' work is the worst "blacksmithing," in every way, that has been worked off from a printing-press since the goodly times of John of Mentz. The price-lists of reputable houses, by this means, become demoralized and great harm is wrought.

Another crying evil of amateur typegraphy is the fearfal and wonderful "journey" men" that are "sent into this breathing world scarce half made up." Of all the nuisances about a printing-effice commend us to a "matural, self-made" printer. It is the habit of our people to make devont and public confession of their content and public confession of their contents and public confession of their contents and proposed in the box of the drama. The powerful but repulsive drama Joseph I Balows did not long keep the stage of the Odeon. The good taste of Paris revolted against its brutality which the excellence of the capacity of men. It would seem indisputable that juvenite printing, in all its varied influences, is capable of working incalculable influences, is capable of working incalculable injury to the notices are earth, and it is encouraging to see that the craft are walking up to the fact that the evil must be strangled in its cradle.

The Result in this State.

The returns from forty-one counties in Pennsylvania give Heyt a net plurality of 30,636. In the remaining counties there was a set democratic plurality of 470 in 1877, so that Hoyt will probably have at least 20,000 plurality for Governor. In the oil regions some of the republican hominees were scratched, but not enough to endanger the election of any of the candidates. The successful candidates in the Sinte, therefore, are the following —. The powerful but repulsive drama Joseph

M. Gambetta reached Paris early on Sun-day morning. He was enthustically cheered on leaving Grenohle and at various stations on his way back. At Varien a little gird dressed in white presented him with a tri-colour bouquet, and M. Gambetta thanked her with a kies. At Grand-Lemps the old dag of 1789 was brought out, and M. Gam-betta halled it as the flag of the first com-mune freed by the Revolution. At Trour du Pin cannons were fred as the train stopped. At Bourgain a crowd collected at night and Pin cannons were fired as the train stopped. At hourgain a crowd collected at night and loudly cheered him. The full text of M. Gambetta's second speech at Grenoble has been published, from which I extract the following peroration:—"I is there not something prodigious in this appearance of a country formerly so frivolous, so capricious, so excited after having fallen beneath the strokes of adverse fortune, becoming so wise, so moderate, so settled, and at the same time the mest meral and the least agitated of all countries at present reserving the attention of men? And why should not the Republic, imposed by necessity on adversaries, hora imposed by necessity on adversaries, horn amid the sufferings of our mutilated coun-try, have the sympathics of all at borne, and the elsem and respect it has successful in regnining abroad? The country which has regaining abroad? The country which has so courageously borne the heavy burden laid on its shoulders, if it has not won back its former grandeur, has at least won back, with the direction of itself, the esteem and respect of others. Having introduced equality, that French passion, in the most precious necessity, and glories of public services—the military service—there is no reason for delaying its manifestation and triumph in all branches of national activity. Expresfor delaying its manifestation and triumph in all branches of national activity. France, conscious of her right, respectful of all neccessities, having abandoned the spirit of vanity and of agression, confident in her children, all ranged under the same colors, is able to give herself up to labor and production, and thoroughly devotes herself to the education of all her children. We seek nothing but the triumph of our principles by persuasion; we expect nothing but from the education of all her children. We seek nothing but the triumph of our principles by persuasion; we expect nothing but from the force of reason. We wish for nothing but through the law—the wish of the majority. We have henceforth tranquil. As to the future of the Republic, we have raised up and at length taken it out of the hunds of its enemies. Founded by the adherance of the humble middle classes, with its roots in the soil, not being an improvised structure the outlines of which merely are distinguishable in the storm, it will be a slowly and patiently raised edifice, the foundations of which are spread out over the whole surface of our territory and which will be big enough to contain, as it were in a national temple, all who are truly worthy of being the children of France."

I have before me the first proofs of a goodly volume containing the list of awards made to American and Camadian exhibitors. It is expressly published, subject to reversion when the general official list of the international jury shall appear; but it may safely be assumed that there are but few errors. The secret, confidied necessarily to many hundred persons, has of essure been imperfectly kept, and doubtless most of the awards are already known to some of your readers. If not, let the lucky ones make themselves known through your advertising columns.
