In its comments on men and affairs, The Sox believes that the only guide of policy should be comman sense lespired by genuine American principles and backed by honesty of purpose. For this reason it is, and will continue to be absolutely independent of party, class, clique, organization, or interest. It is for all, but of none. It will continue to be absolutely independent of party, class, clique, organization, or interest. It is for all, but of none. It will continue to praise what is good and reprobate what is evil, taking care that its inapitage is to the point and pisan beyond the possibility of being misunderstood. It is unmittened by motives that do not supear on the surface: it has no opinions to seit, save those which may be had to any purchaser with two seats. It haves insustee and raiseality even more than it hates sunnecessary words. It aboves frauds, plies tools, and nincompoops of every species. It will continue throughout the year 1880 to chastise the first class instruct the second, and discountenance the third. All honest men, with honest convictions, whether sound or mistaken, are its friends.
