About 4 o'clock on Monday morning a man was run over by a train near the water tank at Hazleton, on the Lehigh Valley Railroad, severing the head from the body and otherwise mangleing the limbs. Death must have been instantaneous.

Coroner Lantz held an inquest upon the body, and killed while walking upon the L. V. Railroad. The only thing pointing to his probable identity is the fact that he had the name "J. Curney" printed in India ink on his arm. He was dressed better than the general run of tramps. The body was brought here and interred in the Lehigh Valley cemetery, by our Poor Board. We learn that Curney came from Bales's Eddy, Delaware, and that he was in search of employment.
