OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

WARRINGTON, D. C. Sept. 19, 1980. The pleasant season in Washington, which somes with fall weather and the return of summier absentees, has now commenced. It is the season, too, when visitors and sight seers at the capital are most numerous. From now on sheepish bridal couples wandering about seeking the attractions of the city will be as pleutiful as robins in spring-Just now the Smithsonion Institute seems to be the special attraction for visitors. It is estimated that for the past week th average of visiting strangers has aggregated two hundred daily. Many are disappointed because the new museum, which is to be filled with many familiar contributions from the centennial, and the many curiosities Uncle Sam has gathered in the past century is not open to the public. The building itself it completed save the floor, and the introduction of heating appliances. The 42 to 54-42,000 -payable at death or expira. appropriation having been exhausted, it is probable the flooring will not be laid until next spring, and the building will not be formally opened until that time. One of the features of the Smithsonian collection which is now attracting more than passing attention is the grouped photographic col lection of the eminent scientists of the world. Included herein are also the photographs of the correspondents of the institution. It is a study to analyze these faces. They differ as do the lights and shades of a picture, and yet in each face there is to be found some marked characteristic. It would seem for one thing that scentific men as a rule are blondes and have blue eyes. Two novels have appeared lately, both o which are based upon Washington life, and concerning one of them, written by Mr. Chas. T. Murray,a journalist, much unfavorable comment is current. The book is clever enough, but Washingtonians, feel that i alanders the city. The title of the novel is "Sub Rosa" and it appears to deal entirely with the underside of Capital life, the picture being even then overdrawn. In the nature of the case Washington is infeated with adventurers of both sexes, and they have their victims. Pernaps, too, there are, or may have been, senstors as corrupt, con ressmen as vile, women as designing, newspaper correspondents as dissiputed, heads of departments as ignorant and brutal, boarding houses as dreary, black mailers as im pudent as are depicted in this volume; but a narrative of their mutual relations and ortunes is a false and grotesque picture of Washington life. There has been so much of this kind of writing that some people have come to imagine that Washington is a city of abounding and extraordinary seduction to wickedness, imperiling the morals of every man who comes into it. On the con trary, Washington is like other cities. Those who are weak and corrupt find the oportunity waiting for them; but here, as elsewhere e man or woman of firm character and high purposes finds friends and helpers in bundance. That men and women who ome here begging for a chance to earn a liv ing as clerks, and waiting and hoping until they have not the means to get away, are likely to become desperate is true. Under like conditions men and women become der perate everywhere, and are everywhere

Politics is the chief concern of this now beautiful metropolis, and being the capital of the Nation it could not be otherwise. But gradually literature, art and science are find ng a home and congenial fostering. The Congressional Laterary, the Corcoran As Gallery, the Smithsonian Institute, and th National Museum are not by any means a l the centres of attraction to educated any cuitivated visitors. During the season Wash ngton offers social attractions as spiend, and free as are to be found anywhere, I is that society in Washinton has a ceremor ial and official s.de, which is quite us empt. and unsatisfactory and a great deal me But if any one judges from the reports the find their way into the press of the country that this ail, he is mustaken. While the s a circle into which admission depone chiefly upon official station, there are other where intelligence, accomplishment an-virtues are carefully regarded. Washington is a popular winter resort, no my for politicians, out for men of bearing, facinevement, of phriunthrophy. It is a only a chosen resort, but is becoming to chosen home of such people, as well as moof wealth and lessure. People was has no engrossing business that confines their to one city, but wish to have a residence where the climate is not too severe an where they may always be sure of congenia society when they care to enjoy it, are an overing that Washington is such a place Into le a movement which, once begun, sely to increase year by year

Some funny correspondence comes hand in the Various departments occasion ally. The Treasurer of the United Stars eceived one day this week a letter from a ld colored man "over 74 and full of years, iclosing $254 in confederate money, which se beld on a man in Wilmington, Del. A ie was "old and poor, he thought he woulrop a few lines to the Treasurer, that he night not starve in the reach of freterms ight. This is the kind of money that he oco instructed on me. Pieuse do me som ped. Please think on me in a fratern ight, as I am an old barber by trade, an u my life have shaved seven of our Press ents-the honored Andrew Jackson, Zachar, Paylor, James K. Polk, Millard Fillmore Wus. Henry Harrison, Franklin Pierce and John Tyler." The latter is signed by its S. G. Gelden, "an Ethiopean P. M. M. Not long ago the Treasurer and Jone men ding correspondence with a distractful in reasury note which he desired redocms But was loth to send it until he got the $2n new notes, fearing the Treasurer would cheat him out of it. Finally he was in luced to take the chances and wrote saying he hoped they would deal honestly with Politics are getting very hot here. The ongressional Committees of both parties are sending out tons of documents and all the signs are watched with eager interest. Work has been resumed on the Washington Monument, one hundred and seventy-five men being now employed. It is possible that the old concern may be finished some time within the next one bundred years.
