A party of hunters left Bushkill a few days ago on a deer hunting expedition in the lower township, Pike county, Pa. Among the number was Abnerus Arnt, 21 years old, who was assigned to watch the camp fire while the rest of the party were out driving deer. While sitting by the fire Arnt saw a deer running directly toward him. He reached for his gun, which was lying on the ground, and while running to get near the deer he stumbled and fell, the gun was discharged, and its contents entered his side, producing death.

—We are glad to know that the Salt River Parades are ended for this campaign; the last one, at March Chunk, was a slim affair and not very successful. —L. L. Boylan, an old and respected citizen of this place, died on Friday afternoon, after a short illness. His death resulted, probably, from injuries received a few weeks ago while engaged in shifting some cars in the Packer's Yard; at the time he did not appreciate anything serious and continued work a few days after he felt a severe pain in the back, and upon examination by a physician, it was found that the spine was injured. Prompt remedies were applied, but there was but little to encourage him; vitality was nearly gone—and thus passed away one who was an upright citizen, an indulgent father and kind husband. Mr. Boylan was born in Ireland, in the year 1814; came to this country in 1835, resided at Slaten Island for a time, was engaged in building a railroad in South Carolina and Florida shortly before the Rebellion, same to Mauch Chunk in 1862, and secured employment with the L. V. R. Co., and has been with them since that time—a faithful efficient employee, enjoying the confidence of his employers. He leaves a wife and son to mourn their loss. The funeral services were held Sunday afternoon. Assoc.

A Train Wrecked. Train No. 21 on the Lehigh Valley railroad, due at Pittston at 10 a. m., Tuesday, was wrecked near Mill Creek by a locomotive and two passenger cars were destroyed by fire.

Another Account. The citizens of Wilkesbarre, says our dispatch, were greatly excited Tuesday morning over the report that an eastward bound passenger train, on the Lehigh Valley road, had been wrecked near that city, with great loss of life. The facts proved to be not quite so serious. A local train runs between that city and Pittston. Shortly after 10 o'clock it left the latter place with two coaches containing about twenty passengers in all. The regular crew, save the conductor, were detailed for duty Tuesday on a special excursion run to New York, their places being filled by substitutes. It takes about twenty-two minutes to run from Pittston to Wilkesbarre.

When the train crossed Mill Creek, two miles from here, the engine suddenly left the track and plunged down a steep embankment forty feet below. The tender and two coaches followed. A number of men working in the vicinity rushed to the scene of the disaster and aided the struggling passengers to escape from the first coach, which had caught fire and was wrapped in flames. The steam hissed around the engine and mingled with the smoke of the burning car. Some of those on hand to render assistance took to the locomotive to look out for the engineer and fireman.

The list of killed and wounded. The following list of casualties are reported: Thomas M. McShaw, brakeman, killed outright; John Sweeney, fireman, fatally scalded; Henry Murphy, engineer, terribly scalded and shoulder broken; Patrick McManagan, badly if not fatally scalded; Mrs. Margaret Tighe, of Pittston, hand smashed. Several of the passengers were slightly injured, but miraculously escaped serious injuries.

The cause of the accident is attributed either to a misplaced switch or an imperfect switch. The injured are all conveyed to the Wilkesbarre hospital.

It was a desired effect, and many turn from the broad to the narrow way. Joe.

Badly Burned. The Sumner Hill correspondent of the Carbon Herald furnishes the paper with the following: A boy named McCullion was seriously, and perhaps fatally burned at No. 4, on Tuesday last, 9th inst., by an explosion of fire damp. It appears that the boy's regular business was "turning fan," but the foreman being short of laborers requested him to go leading; the boy complied, going up into one of the shafts for the purpose. The shaft into which he went, it seems was full of fire-damp, of which he got no notion; that day, however, he was so badly burned that his finger nails dropped off immediately afterward. The fire was discharged. It is said that his successor, a greenhorn, is a much less competent man, having been recently "singled" pretty badly through his apparent ignorance of the elements with which he has to deal. The father intends to prosecute, should the boy die. We don't see why he shouldn't prosecute in any event.

—We were much pleased to learn a day or two ago that our friend John S. Lents, Esq., one of Lehigh's best and most highly respected citizens, had been appointed to the position of Master Mechanic at the Packer's Car Shop, the position made vacant by the death of E. Brown, Esq., two weeks ago. That Mr. Lents will be found to be the right man in the right place, there is not the slightest doubt. We extend to him our congratulations on his deserved promotion, and wish him a long life and health to enjoy it.

The Coal Trade. The anthracite coal trade is fairly active generally, though for some sizes of coal a dullness is observed. The coal just now in demand are not more numerous than can be supplied from the present product of coal. All the several large companies are kept busy in supplying demands on present and past orders, and at prices generally satisfactory. We hear of no considerable stocking of coal by dealers and another favorable outlook of the trade in manufacturers and others are not laying in supplies for future consumption, showing that there is no discounting of the future of the business; thus all the trade properly belonging to 1881 will be reserved until that date. This augurs well for the business of 1881, which for the current year has worked a little unfavorably, but it is not to be despaired of, as it has been over 1879 until 1880. The prospect in this regard is reference to the future, as compared with the past and present, is quite encouraging. All the indications point to a good trade, and prices are not complained of by either producers or consumers. The only thing that we hear complained of in all the departments of the coal trade is that the managers of the trade do not make their future of supply a little more explicit as to their future workings. There has been no definite announcement as to what, if any, suspensions of production are to be made during the current year. The producers of coal do not desire 1879 so long as they have orders at satisfactory prices, and consumers are disinclined to hold out for the market so long as the companies hold their future policy in the dark. From all that we can gather on this point, however, there will be no stoppage this year, until December, when, about Christmas time, there will probably be a halt of a week or ten days. When work resumes thereafter its continuance will depend very much on the character of the winter; if the weather is so average severity it is believed that all the coal that can be mined with steady market will find prompt sale. If the winter shall prove mild, as was the last, an over-supply of coal may force occasional stoppages. It does not at present seem probable that the trade for the coming year will be less than a full average one. Indeed, most persons are of opinion that it must be much larger, as, in the nature of things, little, if any, coal will be carried over; and if there should be remains the steadily growing Western demand for coal, which every succeeding year is larger to make the difference fully up. Navigation is expected to close about the middle of December, when the coal trade halts until after the New Year. Last year production continued until the 24th of December, and was followed by a suspension of work at the mines until the 31st of January. The amount of coal sent to market during 1879 was about 26,000,000 tons while for the year previous the amount marketed was 17,500,000 tons. The supply of coal now is considered as close to the demand as it was at the end of 1878. If this conclusion is correct, and looking to the greatly improved condition of the business of the country, it is quite safe to estimate that the demand for coal in all 1880 will be quite as large as in either of the past two years. The present year's tonnage is already over 23,000,000 tons, which aggregate may be increased 3,000,000 tons to the end of the year. Starting as 1881 promises to, with a bare market and a healthy outlook in all the industrial pursuits requiring large consumption of fuel, with the prospect of a yearly tonnage of at least 25,000,000 tons, an aggregate that will tax pretty fully the entire tonnage capacity of all the companies, and enable the trade to charge living prices without becoming oppressive to consumers in their charges. Hence we say there is a healthy outlook for the coal year of 1881. —Lodge, Monday.

—For the week ending on the 13th inst, there were 103,823 tons of coal transported over the L. & S. R. R., making a total of 3,211,322 tons for the season, a decrease in shipments, as compared with same date last year, of 262,358 tons.

Big Creek Items. —A child of Mr. Mangold, of Walcksville, was interred at Westport on Thursday last week. His death was caused by the dread disease diphtheria. —D. S. Lovett, had attained the age of 67 years, 4 months and 3 days. —The Franklin Literary Society was re-organized Friday evening last. The next meeting will be held this (Saturday) evening; thereafter every Friday evening. The subject for debate is, "Resolved, That Christianity is to be abolished." Affirmative, W. E. Kemmer and C. A. Buck; negative, J. F. Snyder and A. Campbell; orator, F. J. Fenner, of Westport.

—The teacher of the school has 44 pupils on roll. —Rev. G. W. Gross, of Parryville, started a protracted meeting at Shoenberger's on Monday evening last. —Gored by a Bull. Jonas Shaffer, aged seventy years, died October 30th in Blooming Grove, Pike county. He was a famous bear hunter. He was the father of Jonas, Gil, and Brock Shaffer, all hunters and guides in the Pike woods. The old gentleman's death was the result of injuries by the attack of a vicious bull two weeks previous. Mr. Shaffer was walking through a lot where the bull was kept. The animal rushed upon him before he could get beyond its reach. The bull caught the hunter on its horns and tossed him over an stone wall. The animal jumped over the wall and tossed the old gentleman back again into the lot. He was found by one of his sons. Several ribs were broken and his body was terribly torn by the bull's horns.—Ex.

—"And Don't You Forget It." At there are quite a number of persons who are in the habit of mutilating hand bills when posted up, and tearing them down, we would point out, for their benefit, the penalty attached to such misdemeanors. The law reads thus: "That any person caught mutilating, destroying, tearing down or removing any show bill, poster or advertisement, posted on any wall, fence, bill board or other structure, shall be fined not less than twenty five or more than one hundred dollars for the first offence, and for the second offence, the penalty shall be imprisonment in the county jail not less than three nor more than six months."

—One day recently a number of gows belonging to Messrs. James and Daniel Kistler, of Kistler's Valley, in Iron top, broke into a corn field in which were being a large quantity of apples, and upon which they gored themselves to such an extent that three of the number died from the effects during the coming night, and five more were found very ill in the morning. The latter however had remedies administered and a speedy recovery was at last accomplished.

In Memoriam. "Life's curtain rises upon a cradle. In rapid succession, old, young, youth, maturity, and old age, have their part to play, withdrawing us from human eyes; but, if we acted well our part, introducing us into glories."

PRELABLE: Sorrow's mournful arch must again be raised, and under it must we bend low our heads, in paying tribute to another deceased brother, Alfred Traylor, of Franklin, Houten Lodge, No. 686, I. O. O. F. Our deceased brother was an honorable member of our Lodge. On the 2d of November, 1880, he died of a sudden, at the residence of his wife, with a sudden attack of apoplexy, and all was over. Therefore, be it

Resolved, That while we bow to the Divine will, believing that all His judgments are just and His ways merciful, we feel that we have lost a faithful member and his family a devoted husband. Resolved, That we tender our warmest sympathies to the bereaved family.

Resolved, That the members wear the badge of mourning and our Charter be draped in mourning for thirty days. Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be presented to the family of our deceased brother, published in the Carbon Advocate, and spread on the journal of the Lodge. HENRY KOSTENBAKER, W. L. PETER, N. B. REBER, Committees. Lehigh, Nov. 17, 1880.

The Janitor Interviewed. The following is a conversation between the Janitor of our Public School Building and a personal friend, a day or two ago: FRIEND.—Janitor, what is the matter here? I will tell you all about it. They started one more school on the 1st of the month, and I asked the Secretary if the Board intended to pay me extra for taking charge of that room or not? He said that he would see the other directors about it. So I waited a day or two, and then called again, but he the Secretary said all I could tell me was, "I would not ask about the room without extra pay, they would send a man up to attend it, and pay him a dollar a week, and I would not ask about it."

—Who is the man they were going to appoint? —I understood it to be Joe DeFrehn. —I understand the cost of this building, that cost forty thousand dollars, out of the hands of a sober and experienced man into the charge of an untried one? Who are your directors? —J. They are: Daniel Olmeyer, Rev. A. Bartholomew, Reuben Fenstermacher, E. W. Kistler, Daniel Graver and John Peter. Nov. 17, 1880.—v.

STATE NEWS. The Standard Oil Company controls 400 tanks, holding 11,000,000 barrels of oil. An unknown woman, a tramp, was terribly burned near Meadville on Saturday. The E. & G. Brooke Iron Company at Birkshire paid nearly $200,000 in wages on Saturday.

August Wentzel of Adams township, Berks county, has put up 400 gallons of tomato catsup this year. The Lehigh and Tyrone Railroad from Tyrone to Lehigh, Pa., has been built by the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Alexander Seaman, one of the oldest business men of Washington, died suddenly on Thursday, 11th inst., at 68th year. John Kemp was acquitted at Reading on Saturday of the murder of John J. Kistler in that city on the 1st of May last.

Charles Leek, a conductor on the Philadelphia and West Chester Railroad, had his foot cut off while coupling cars on Saturday. A proposition has been made to the West Chester Council to dig an artesian well that will supply 15,000 gallons of water per hour.

On Monday afternoon the residence of Rev. Benjamin F. Brown, in George's township, Westmoreland county, was burned down. Loss, $4,000, no insurance. Catherine Miller, who is to be hanged for the murder of the farmer's husband, is almost crazed with fear.

Mary Coughley, an inmate of the aged poorhouse, near Pittsburg, Pa., committed suicide on Saturday by jumping from a fourth story window. Mr. Fred Seaman, of Mount Pleasant, Allegheny county, was badly wounded and subsequently killed by highwaymen at West Newton in the same county on Thursday night.

The Westport Herald says that the Standard Oil Company has bought up the entire production of a number of operators in the lower field at $3.50 per barrel. In consequence of this, it says, heavy oil has advanced to $4.50 per barrel.
