A good suggestion is made by a San Francisco gentleman, as a means of precaution and certainty, and to prevent the too frequent practice of repeating at elections, and fraudulent registration. It is that of photographing each voter, and on the back at each portrait to write so much of the individual's history as relates to his birth, etc. The cost would be no greater than the present system of registration. Voters could be arranged alphabetically and wiren a vote has been deposited, the voters photograph can be taken down, numbered to correspond with the number on his ticket, and laid away in a box prepared for that purpose.

With all the above hats and bonnets, except the Gainsborough beaver, strings can be worn; these are almost exclusively made of twilled ailk or plush, sherried at the ends and fringed, and scarlet is the color the most popular.

Furs are more considered this winter, and will be more worn than for two seasons past. This will be accounted for of course by the severe and early winter. Muffs are much smaller even than last year, and boas are discarded entirely for square fur collars. It was amusing during the last cold snap to behold all the strange and wonderful varieties of fure that were exhibited here in Moore's "American Art brought to light, from the $1000 mbles to and of a nameless class, that many ancient spinsters always sport.
