It does not appear, however, that there was any uniformity in the period of observing the nativity among the early churches; some held the festival in the month of May or April, others in January. It is, nevertheless, almost certain that the 25th of Desem ber cusnot be the nativity of the Saviour, for it is then the height of the rainy season in Judea, and shepherds could hardly be watching their flocks by night in the plains.

selebrated the season with the greatest festivities. At the winter-solutioe, the Germans held their great Yule-feast, in commendation of the return of the flery sunsprang the so called "Manger-Songs," and a multitude of Christmas carols, as well as Christmas dramas, which, at certain times and places, degenerated into farces or Fools' Feasts. Hence also originated, at a later period, the Christ-trees, or Christmas-trees, adorned with lights and gifts, the custom of reciprocal presents, and of special Christmas meats and dishes, such as Christmas roils, cakes, currant loaves, dumpling, &c. Thus, Christmas because a universal social feasies.

Christmas became a universal social festival for young and old, high and low, as no oth-er Christma festival could have become, In the Roman Catholic Church, three masses are performed at Christinas—one at midnight, one at daybreak, and one in the morning. The day is also celebrated by the Anglo-Catholic Church—special psalms are sung, a special preface is unide in the Com-munion Service and the Athanasian Creed is said or sung. Christmas not only became the parent of many later festivals, such as those of the many later festivals, such as those of the Virgin, but especially from the 5th to the 8th century, gathered round it, as it were, several other festivals, partly old and part-ly new so that what may be termed a Christ-mas Cycle sprang up, which surpassed all other groupe of Christian holidays in the manifold richness of its festal usuages, and furthered, more than any other, the comple-tion of the orderly and systematic distribu-tion of church festivals over the whole year. Not casually or arbitrarily was the festival tion of church festivals over the whole year. Not casually or arbitrarily was the festival of the Nativity celebrated on the 25th of December. Among the causes that co-operated in fixing this period as she proper one, perhaps the most powerful was, that almost all the heathen nations regarded the wintersolatice as a most important point of the year, as the beginning of the renewed life and activity of the powers of nature, and of the gods, who were originally marely the symbolical personifications of these. In more northerly countries, this fact must have made itself peculiarly palpable—hence the Celte and Germans, from the oldest times, celebrated the season with the greatest fes memoration of the return of the fery sun-wheel; and believed that, during the twelve nights reaching from the 25th December to the 6th January, they could trace the per-sonal movements and interferences on earth of their great detices, Odin, Berchta, &c. Many of the beliefs and usages of the old Germans, and also of the Romans, relating to this matter, passed over from heathenism to Christianity, and have partly survived to to Christianity, and have partly survived to the present day. But the church also sought to combat and bunish—and it was to a large extent successful—the deep-rooted heathen teeling, by adding—for the purification of the heathen customs and feasts which it re-tained—its grandly devised liturgy, besides dramatic representations of the birth of Christ and the first events of his life. Hence sprang the so called "Maniger-Songs," and a multitude of Christians carols, as well as and the whole of the English dissenters, reject it, in its religious aspect, as a "human invention," and as "eavoring of papsical will worship," although in England, dissenters as well as churchmen keep it as a social holiday, on which there is a complete cessation from all business. But within the last hundred years, the festivities once appropriate to Christmas have allen off. These at one time lasted with more or less brilliancy till Candlennes, and with great apiritill Twelfth-day; but now a meeting in the evening, composed, when possible, of the various branches and members of a family, is all that distinguishes the day above others.
