FARM NOTES.

-Autumn is the season most favorable for the felling of timber, where the object to be CENTRAL DRUG STORE, attained is strength and darability.

Never overload a team nor discourage it by a too heavy pull at first starting; not start from a bad place if possible to avoid it--Piewls seldom tire of milk. They may est too much grain or mest, for health, but milk in any form is both palatable and Texas is importing large numbers of Meritio sheep. It is said that she has imported more the last year than during any one of the fust ten years.

-Almost all show animals which are exhibited at our argricultural fairs are overfed. Many are the defects in form which are covered up by a heavy coating of fat. -A langer plant common in the Missouri valley, seems likely to become a substitute for bark. The Polygonum amphibium yields about half as much taunin again as bark, and the leather produced from it is said to be in every way superior, while the process is exactly the same. The Polygonum is an annual, but can be gathered exactly

-The introduction of a pure bronze gob bler among a flock of mongrel turkey hens will add from three to five pounds extra weight per head to the turkeys raised the

- Ewes in lamb should, as far as practicable, be fed and sheltered separately from the non-breeding animals, as the crowding and more rapid movements of the latter are apt to result injuriously. -When cotton weste or shavings are saturated with oil, a large surface is exposed to the action of the air, and if the oil has the property of absorbing oxygen, it may absorb the gas so rapidly as to take fire.

-When feeding turnips or any kind of roots for cowe in milk no diminution should be made in the rations of hay. Since the roots increase digestion and the flow of milk more hay might be judiciously fed in place of lessening the quantity.

-Dr. McMurtie, of the Agricultural Department, thinks the best localities for beet go market alone from the work of this pest. Clover is a very strongly tap rooted plant and strikes its toolers deep into the earth, finding untriment where the finer roots of cereals would not go. The propertion which the roots bear to the top is very large, and on the removal of the crop these are left to rot and add their elements to eu--A letter from Still Pond, Kent county, Maryland, says that the snow fall this winter in that locality has been greatly in excert of any winter for thirty or thirty-five years, and the temperature unusually low. There is a prospect of a crop of peaches in that district equal to say one third of last year's crop, and a large proportion of the fruit will be evaporated.

There are a great many farms and fields which can never be cultivated at a profit.

-Some of the advantages of the co-opo rative factory system of batter making are thus enumerated by Henry F. Alvord, of Easthampton: 1. The expense of manufac turing the butter, including maintenance of impliments and apparatus as well as labor, is much less in proportion when conducted at one place and for large quantities than for small lots at a bundred different places. 2. The advantage is disposing of the product to large quantities and by an expert agent, whose special duty is to watch the markets said scenare the highest price. 2.
