

THE SITUATION.

The political situation remains unchanged. Ex-Senators Conkling and Platt, as far from the realization of their hopes of return to the Senate, as they were at the commencement of the struggle.

What he said and the way he said it, directed on the opponents of Conkling like a red rag on a maul bull. It put them in a towering passion and intensified the bitterness existing between the two factions of the party.

The truth is, that Grant like Conkling, has lost his head. He is a bitterly disappointed man, vindictively disposed toward the man who captured his ambition for Presidential projects, and he lacks the good sense to see that every hateful fling at his opponent adds fuel to the flame of dissension and damages the chances of himself and his friends.

WASHINGTON. OUR SPECIAL LETTER. WASHINGTON, D. C., JUNE 15, 1881. The country in the neighborhood of Washington never looked more beautiful than it appears at the present time. This is appreciated by all who are fortunate enough to be able to get outside the city limits occasionally.

NEW YORK.

FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT. NEW YORK, JUNE 16, 1881. The death of matters of special interest outside of politics is nowhere more apparent at present than in the columns of our daily newspapers.

THE "STAR ROUTE."

Pretty much all the excitement we have in Washington now, writes our special correspondent, has its central focus in "Room 59" of the Post Office Department. It is in this room that the case against the "star route" thieves is being made up, and the daily secret sessions of the attorneys, detectives, and agents are the object of no small degree of interest.

That indefatigable and ever-zealous friend of dumb animals, Mr. Henry Berg, President of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, is just now making himself rather ridiculous in connection with pig-sticking.

posed to be implicated in these mail frauds are innocent. Perhaps it may turn out, as some claim, that there has been no fraud at all, but that the case now under investigation there are circumstances which also a very strong presumption, and give rise to opinions which even failure to convict will never remove.

WASHINGTON. OUR SPECIAL LETTER. WASHINGTON, D. C., JUNE 15, 1881. The country in the neighborhood of Washington never looked more beautiful than it appears at the present time.

NEW YORK.

FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT. NEW YORK, JUNE 16, 1881. The death of matters of special interest outside of politics is nowhere more apparent at present than in the columns of our daily newspapers.

THE "STAR ROUTE."

Pretty much all the excitement we have in Washington now, writes our special correspondent, has its central focus in "Room 59" of the Post Office Department. It is in this room that the case against the "star route" thieves is being made up, and the daily secret sessions of the attorneys, detectives, and agents are the object of no small degree of interest.

That indefatigable and ever-zealous friend of dumb animals, Mr. Henry Berg, President of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, is just now making himself rather ridiculous in connection with pig-sticking.

George Dennis, a hotel keeper of Manhattan, Coxsack county, has disappeared. He owed large sums of money in Philadelphia, New York, Reading and Lancaster, and had no less than $2000 raised on notes endorsed by his friends.

The Pennsylvania State Equal Rights League will hold its seventeenth annual meeting on the 18th of August next at New Castle, Lawrence county, Pa. The League suggests that the colored people of the State celebrate the recent passage of the act giving equal rights in the public schools on the 4th of July, as the act goes into effect on that date.

WASHINGTON. OUR SPECIAL LETTER. WASHINGTON, D. C., JUNE 15, 1881. The country in the neighborhood of Washington never looked more beautiful than it appears at the present time.

NEW YORK.

FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT. NEW YORK, JUNE 16, 1881. The death of matters of special interest outside of politics is nowhere more apparent at present than in the columns of our daily newspapers.

THE "STAR ROUTE."

Pretty much all the excitement we have in Washington now, writes our special correspondent, has its central focus in "Room 59" of the Post Office Department. It is in this room that the case against the "star route" thieves is being made up, and the daily secret sessions of the attorneys, detectives, and agents are the object of no small degree of interest.

That indefatigable and ever-zealous friend of dumb animals, Mr. Henry Berg, President of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, is just now making himself rather ridiculous in connection with pig-sticking.

George Dennis, a hotel keeper of Manhattan, Coxsack county, has disappeared. He owed large sums of money in Philadelphia, New York, Reading and Lancaster, and had no less than $2000 raised on notes endorsed by his friends.

The Pennsylvania State Equal Rights League will hold its seventeenth annual meeting on the 18th of August next at New Castle, Lawrence county, Pa. The League suggests that the colored people of the State celebrate the recent passage of the act giving equal rights in the public schools on the 4th of July, as the act goes into effect on that date.

WASHINGTON. OUR SPECIAL LETTER. WASHINGTON, D. C., JUNE 15, 1881. The country in the neighborhood of Washington never looked more beautiful than it appears at the present time.

NEW YORK.

FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT. NEW YORK, JUNE 16, 1881. The death of matters of special interest outside of politics is nowhere more apparent at present than in the columns of our daily newspapers.

THE "STAR ROUTE."

Pretty much all the excitement we have in Washington now, writes our special correspondent, has its central focus in "Room 59" of the Post Office Department. It is in this room that the case against the "star route" thieves is being made up, and the daily secret sessions of the attorneys, detectives, and agents are the object of no small degree of interest.

That indefatigable and ever-zealous friend of dumb animals, Mr. Henry Berg, President of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, is just now making himself rather ridiculous in connection with pig-sticking.

George Dennis, a hotel keeper of Manhattan, Coxsack county, has disappeared. He owed large sums of money in Philadelphia, New York, Reading and Lancaster, and had no less than $2000 raised on notes endorsed by his friends.

The Pennsylvania State Equal Rights League will hold its seventeenth annual meeting on the 18th of August next at New Castle, Lawrence county, Pa. The League suggests that the colored people of the State celebrate the recent passage of the act giving equal rights in the public schools on the 4th of July, as the act goes into effect on that date.

WASHINGTON. OUR SPECIAL LETTER. WASHINGTON, D. C., JUNE 15, 1881. The country in the neighborhood of Washington never looked more beautiful than it appears at the present time.

NEW YORK.

FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT. NEW YORK, JUNE 16, 1881. The death of matters of special interest outside of politics is nowhere more apparent at present than in the columns of our daily newspapers.

THE "STAR ROUTE."

Pretty much all the excitement we have in Washington now, writes our special correspondent, has its central focus in "Room 59" of the Post Office Department. It is in this room that the case against the "star route" thieves is being made up, and the daily secret sessions of the attorneys, detectives, and agents are the object of no small degree of interest.

That indefatigable and ever-zealous friend of dumb animals, Mr. Henry Berg, President of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, is just now making himself rather ridiculous in connection with pig-sticking.

George Dennis, a hotel keeper of Manhattan, Coxsack county, has disappeared. He owed large sums of money in Philadelphia, New York, Reading and Lancaster, and had no less than $2000 raised on notes endorsed by his friends.

The Pennsylvania State Equal Rights League will hold its seventeenth annual meeting on the 18th of August next at New Castle, Lawrence county, Pa. The League suggests that the colored people of the State celebrate the recent passage of the act giving equal rights in the public schools on the 4th of July, as the act goes into effect on that date.

WASHINGTON. OUR SPECIAL LETTER. WASHINGTON, D. C., JUNE 15, 1881. The country in the neighborhood of Washington never looked more beautiful than it appears at the present time.

NEW YORK.

FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT. NEW YORK, JUNE 16, 1881. The death of matters of special interest outside of politics is nowhere more apparent at present than in the columns of our daily newspapers.

THE "STAR ROUTE."

Pretty much all the excitement we have in Washington now, writes our special correspondent, has its central focus in "Room 59" of the Post Office Department. It is in this room that the case against the "star route" thieves is being made up, and the daily secret sessions of the attorneys, detectives, and agents are the object of no small degree of interest.

That indefatigable and ever-zealous friend of dumb animals, Mr. Henry Berg, President of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, is just now making himself rather ridiculous in connection with pig-sticking.

George Dennis, a hotel keeper of Manhattan, Coxsack county, has disappeared. He owed large sums of money in Philadelphia, New York, Reading and Lancaster, and had no less than $2000 raised on notes endorsed by his friends.

The Pennsylvania State Equal Rights League will hold its seventeenth annual meeting on the 18th of August next at New Castle, Lawrence county, Pa. The League suggests that the colored people of the State celebrate the recent passage of the act giving equal rights in the public schools on the 4th of July, as the act goes into effect on that date.

WASHINGTON. OUR SPECIAL LETTER. WASHINGTON, D. C., JUNE 15, 1881. The country in the neighborhood of Washington never looked more beautiful than it appears at the present time.

NEW YORK.

FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT. NEW YORK, JUNE 16, 1881. The death of matters of special interest outside of politics is nowhere more apparent at present than in the columns of our daily newspapers.

THE "STAR ROUTE."

Pretty much all the excitement we have in Washington now, writes our special correspondent, has its central focus in "Room 59" of the Post Office Department. It is in this room that the case against the "star route" thieves is being made up, and the daily secret sessions of the attorneys, detectives, and agents are the object of no small degree of interest.

That indefatigable and ever-zealous friend of dumb animals, Mr. Henry Berg, President of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, is just now making himself rather ridiculous in connection with pig-sticking.

George Dennis, a hotel keeper of Manhattan, Coxsack county, has disappeared. He owed large sums of money in Philadelphia, New York, Reading and Lancaster, and had no less than $2000 raised on notes endorsed by his friends.

The Pennsylvania State Equal Rights League will hold its seventeenth annual meeting on the 18th of August next at New Castle, Lawrence county, Pa. The League suggests that the colored people of the State celebrate the recent passage of the act giving equal rights in the public schools on the 4th of July, as the act goes into effect on that date.

WASHINGTON. OUR SPECIAL LETTER. WASHINGTON, D. C., JUNE 15, 1881. The country in the neighborhood of Washington never looked more beautiful than it appears at the present time.

NEW YORK.

FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT. NEW YORK, JUNE 16, 1881. The death of matters of special interest outside of politics is nowhere more apparent at present than in the columns of our daily newspapers.

THE "STAR ROUTE."

Pretty much all the excitement we have in Washington now, writes our special correspondent, has its central focus in "Room 59" of the Post Office Department. It is in this room that the case against the "star route" thieves is being made up, and the daily secret sessions of the attorneys, detectives, and agents are the object of no small degree of interest.

That indefatigable and ever-zealous friend of dumb animals, Mr. Henry Berg, President of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, is just now making himself rather ridiculous in connection with pig-sticking.