QUINT. The Cont Trade. The anthracite coal trade, says Monday's Ledger, continues in much the same condition as at this time last week. The coal business keeps well up ; that is, the supply is good and the demand such as to hold prices steady. The question that still occupies considerable attention in the authrasite coal market is whether there shall be suspension of coal production during the coming month of September, or whether there shall be an advance of prices, or both. The general impression in the trade on Saturday was that there will be no general change in prices during the mouth of September. There may possibly be a retail advance, but it has not yet been decided to do so. The Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Company will possibly reduce, in its forthcoming circular, the price of pea-coal from $3.10 to $3. City and harbor prices are not likely to be changed just now. The more considerate of those who are governors in the coal trade, while admitting that there is a fairly good business doing in coal for this season of the year, do not think it large enough to take the entire production that is now under way. Prices have not yielded to any marked degree. There is a very good line and Western demand, and a better business could be done to the East were there a greater number of vessels available. The local demand is very quiet. Coal is accumulating rapidly on the hands of some of the companies, while one or two seem to -To be compelled to submit to willful have about all they can do.
