A TOUCH OF PITY.

E. CONDER GRAY. Forth they sat at early morn, Happy in their hope, Adown the path and through the corn, And by a grassy slope;

Then o'er a stretch of clean sea-sand, And reached a slippery pter ; And there the brother raised his hand, And said, " We'll cast lines here." And oh, the tremor of her heart. As tackle straight he set;

She deemed her brother had more art Than any angel yet. And at each bits she felt a glow Of pride that made her speak, In louder tones; there came a flow Of blood to either cheek.

At last a catch? the allvery sides Came twinkling o'er the pler-She shricked with joy ; but soon the tide Of joy were changed to fear.

As full she tooked upon the thing

That writhed before her eyes, The heart felt for its suffering She burst in tears and sighs And all her day were clouded dim, With thoughts she could not speak ;

But pale was now her cheek. Her first glimpse of the ill and pain, That haunts the world, that day Disturbed her heart, and ne'er again Will she so gladly play.

Ah, little maid, that mystery, O'er shadows all our work, And unto many, as to thee, Has turned the bright to dark
