These who go to live-stock exhibitions can make object lessing of such tuirs. The dif ferent breeds are before visitors to study Never mind the horse races.

To grade up a herd atways breed from the best and most valuable specimens and to do that you must know which are the most valuable. As to cows, you must know how much milk they give in a year.

To force a herd of cows into an open field during such weather as August and September of this year has afforded, with n shelter from the sun, calls for an admonition from the Society for the Pervention of Cruelty to Animala. And in what condition will pasture pastured now be in the next year ?

The managers of the Chicago Fat-stock Show require the exact age in days of each animal to be given, togother with its weight on the scales. This is an excellent planmuch better than to eay so many years. What we want in all such matters is exactness. The National Live Stock Journal very justly claims that the kind and quantity of food given should also be reported, so that the cost can be known.

If the advancing prices of grain result in educating farmers to better methods in stock feeding it will not be without its value, particularly at the West. Feeding whole corn to cattle, with a herd of awine to follow them and live on their droppings or starve Is one of the reforms this drouth ought to nocelerate. But drouth or no drouth, the man who starves his herds this fall and winter because feed is higher than commo is not much of a farmer. He had better reduce expenses at his own table, and generally it can be done to advantage there.

A good early pear is Osban's summer. It is larger and finer than the Doyenne d'Ete.

and is a prolific bearer. The yellow rust on blackberries, ruspberries and wheat is said to be the same thing, and is produced by minute microscopic to

The country needs more fruit evaporators. But then the work should be done at a price within the reach of farmers, and not quite all the fruits used up in tolls.

A good sort of a drink can be made from pears, the regular name for which is "perry." Perry and eider mixed, and kept sweet for winter use by salscylic acid, is a fine winter

The plan for keeping winter apples under water, so as to thoroughly exclude air and maintain a low temperature, ought to be thoroughy tested by experiment stations and such farmers on have the facilities for exments of this sort, When a grower has nice things to store away, put in shallow bexes deep enough for one layer and ventilated at the sides. One box covers the last one, and when you want to examine you can see every specimen

A correspondent of the Country Gentle men put a tenspoonful of sulphur under his strawberry plants at planting to keep white grubs from eating them and succeeded, but recently he noticed his plants to be wilting and dying from small green lice on the roots, some of them so small as scarcely to be recognized by the naked eve. So if sulphor keeps one insect away it fails on an-

Blackberries can be grown year after year without manure (in a suitable climate), and will pay better than corn; but they will pay much better still to be regularly and aughly fertilized each year. The berples will be much larger, a greater crop can be carried, and if the manure is fine and rich the land will stand a drouth better. A yield of a hundred bushels per acre is much etter than thirty or forty, and the berries sell better also. Fine fruit pays.

Clapp's Favorite is a pear deserving of more attention than it gets. It ripens ahead of the Bartlett, is about as large and more shows, and in the judgment of many is of strap, remove his beard with ease, comfort showy, and in the judgment of many is of better quality, and it brings, so far, better prices than the Bartlett's average.
