

FARMERS' COLUMN.

Pneumalism. Neuralgia, Sprains, Pain in the Back and Side.

There is nothing more painful than these diseases, but it is within the power of the farmer to cure them by the use of Perry Davis' Pain Killer.

This remedy is not a cheap medicine or a trifling product that is to be kept away from fire or heat to avoid danger of explosion, nor is it an untried experiment that may do more harm than good.

Pain Killer has been in constant use for forty years, and the universal testimony from all parts of the world is, it never fails.

It is not only a permanent cure, but it relieves pain almost instantaneously, being a purely vegetable remedy, it is safe in the hands of the most inexperienced.

The record of cures by the use of Perry Davis' Pain Killer is so long that it is impossible to give a full list of the names of those who have testified to its efficacy.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A lovely poster: "I don't see any sense in that sort of thing," said Mrs. Smith, as she walked whirled past her.

The art of living easily as to money is to pick your seals of living one degree below your means.

Several women from the United States, wives of Mexican capitalists and politicians, are leaders in the city of Mexico society.

Don't make the mistake of enjoining a remedy of merit with quack medicines. We speak from experience when we say that Parker's Ginger Tonic is a sterling health restorative which will do all that is claimed for it.

A reasonable lover: "Yes," he said to his confidential friend, "I am engaged to her and I suppose I ought to be very happy, but somehow I am worried about a former attachment of hers. There's that infernal blackguard, Jones, who—"

We notice that a great many proprietary medicine men are advertising in such a manner as to lead the public, and particularly the rural districts, to believe that the sale of their goods is so great that unless their orders are sent in early they will be unable to fill them.

One of the Ocar Wilder agents: A new song is for a young lady who by a thirty-six-cent loaf, a pair of stockings, and a handkerchief, she has made a fortune.

My wife has been troubled with biliousness, bloating of stomach and bowels, swelling of the limbs, constipation for years, but all has vanished from the use of three bottles of Dr. R. V. G.'s dyspepsia remedy.

Conversation overheard in a horse car: "When you call for a beer do you say 'A glass of Bawse' or 'A glass of Bawse'?"

When a young woman has an overcoat sleeve around her neck, can she claim to have an ultra-staid air?

"I have divided my subject," begins the person, "into two heads. 'Two heads with but a single thought,' whispered Fogg to his wife, and then he closed his eyes for his usual nap.

I take this opportunity to bear testimony to the efficacy of your "Hot Bitters." Expecting to find them nauseous and bitter and composed of bad whiskey, we were greatly surprised at their mild taste.

A handsome girl never gets angry when reflections are cast upon her appearance by her mirror.

A little girl who was much puffed said: "I like sitting on gentlemen's knees better than on ladies' ones, ma'am."

When a medicine professes such cures as Kidney-Wort is constantly doing, it may truly be said to have wonderful power.

Her heart was troubled: Two well-dressed ladies were examining a statue of Andromeda, labeled, "Executed in terraotta." Says one: "Where is that?"

For five years I have been troubled with constipation, liver and stomach troubles, coupled with loss of memory and sleepless nights. Three bottles of Dr. R. V. G. has made me a well man and a happy one.

Conclusive evidence: Mr. Slobson walked into the police office on Saturday and complained to the officer in charge that the Star coat he had broken into his house and robbed him.

—Boston can count up 203 women in that city worth over $1,000,000 each.

—In a life of 65 years one must have eaten 30 tons of solids and liquids.

—There were 1,440 pounds of diamonds shipped to Europe from Cape Town last year.

—The ancient Scandinavians celebrated days of death with rejoicing, and those of birth with mourning.

—The arm of a man, fore leg of a quadruped, wing of a bird, and fin of a fish, all present the same bones varied and modified.

—The average life of an English gold sovereign is about eighteen years—that is, the coin loses three-quarters of a grain in weight in about that length of time. It then ceases to be a legal tender.

—At Eastport, Me., a sailor, wanting a drink of water and finding the cask-pump frozen, poured hot water into it, and while attempting to suck a drink from it, inhaled the steam and was scalded to death.

—That a human bite is as dangerous as that of any animal is shown by an occurrence in the German city of Munster, where a man, who was bitten in one of his fingers during a fight, has had the alternative of losing his arm or his life.

—Wintering bees in cellars appears to be an improvement over wintering them outside. The bees consume less honey, have less loss, and are healthier in the end.

—Pun of the Patticake kind: Most great singers are accused of taking some slight stimulant, but few know how much it takes to prime a donna.

—Carpenters rather than reformers: What is wanted in these days is not so much the elevation of the stage as the enlargement of the means of exit from the auditorium.

—"Colonel," said a man who wanted to make out a genealogical tree. "Colonel, how can I get thoroughly acquainted with my family history?" "Simply by running for Congress," answered the colonel.

—Sound, but somewhat noisy: "Your arguments are sound, my son, and delivered with force," said the clergyman to his boy, who had been banging away at his drum for an hour or more; "but we have heard quite enough on that head." The boy stopped at once, with the aid of his mother and hired girl.

—Repentance is remorse discounted. —Bologna is the link that unites man with the brute.

—Wit is a merchandise that is sold but can never be bought. —Will Carleton, the writer of farm ballads, never lived on a farm.

—Too much sensibility creates unhappiness; too much insensibility creates crime. —Varieties of mere nothings give more pleasure than uniformity of something.

—A young lady who was squeezed between two freight cars says it felt just like trying on a pair of new corsets. —Amounts to the same: The man who stops his paper to economize ought to cut his nose off to keep from buying handkerchiefs.

—Composers are almost always intelligent men. They are men of letters who literally pick up their knowledge as they go along. —One of the experts at Washington said "he couldn't understand Giteau." It is rumored that the Sheriff will get the hang of him.

—A Cincinnati woman, 84 years old, makes up so that no one judges her to be over 40. Paint, powder, dye and false hair will work wonders. —Pew rents coming down in Brooklyn, and hopes are entertained that some day the Gospel will be within the reach of people of moderate means.

—The pistol and knife are altogether too handy in this country, as is evidenced by the large crop of murders for the New Year, although it is only a fortnight old. —Keyhole caution: When a man is about to be told a secret he shuts the door. When it is a woman she opens it to be sure no one is listening outside.

—A New Haven girl eats half a pound of cloves daily. She must be a spicy sort of a young woman. But when she gets a husband will she cleave or clove to him. —It is a very pretty figure to speak about going from pole to pole, but nothing except the atmosphere has ever succeeded in doing that—unless we except also repeaters at an election.

—Peck, of Peck's Sun helped an old lady off the cars, at some Western station three or four years ago and she died last month and left him $22,000 in bonds—Confederate 7 per cent. —A Massachusetts Judge has decided that the ringing of a church bell at 5 o'clock in the morning is a nuisance. The man who has to ring the bell must have come to that conclusion long ago.

—The first daily newspaper appeared in 1702. The first newspaper in the United States was published in Boston, Sept. 25, 1790. The first religious newspaper, the Boston Record, was published in 1815. —An Irishman being asked on a late trial for a certificate of his marriage, exhibited a huge scar on his head, which looked as though it might have been made by a fire shovel. The evidence was satisfactory.

—Hayes continues to be heard from occasionally, but what is said of him don't amount to much. He will be remembered in history as the man who occupied the White House during the four years the United States had no President. —The latest female idea is a dress album in which is painted a sample of every dress the owner wears, with the date of her first appearance in it. It might facilitate keeping the family accounts if the price and cost of making were also noted. —Thomas Nast makes a policeman say to flunkies of a New York private house which receives New Year's calls: "Won't you close up now, please? All the real grog shops shut up hours ago." —Subscribe for the Advocate, only $1 per annum.
