Star to Kill Whent Moths

know of but one efficient remedy for this insect, and that applies as well to the wasyil and to the Angumois Grain moth, which is said to do no little damage in the southern and southwestern part of our country. I have frequently seen every kerhel of earn in samples from the Gull States perforated by this latter moth-lurva. Tie remedy proposed is Bisulphide of Carton. We have only to pour a quantity of this into the bin at the bottom of the grain to kill ail of the insects. It is very penetrating and volatile, and equally deadly to all of the insect tribes. I think that a half pint of the liquid would destroy the insects in a bin of 50 to 100 bushels of grain. Not having experimented with grain in such quantitles I cannot give the precise quantities of the liquid to be used in different sized bins of grain, but this can easily be determined by trial. To apply 'be remedy it is desirable to pour the liquid in at the bottom of the grain. To do this we can take a bellow iron cylinder-a gas pipe will do well-and at into it a wooden rod which shall be a little longer than the iron tube. One end of the rod is to be made sharp; now place the rod inside the tube, and, with the sharp end down, force them both to the bottom of the grain; then having withdrawn the rod turn in the liquid through the tube, which should be pulled out. The insectcide of course is left at the bottom of the grain, and being very volatile, soon diffuses through the mass and converts the bin into an insect cemetery. Paor. A. J. Cook, in American Agriculturist for February.

A Talk with Farmers About the Wenther. Out of 100 storm or ntres noted during 1879 one moved north, 3 southerst, 24 northeast, and 72 nearly due east. Their velocity varles from 20 to 40 miles per hour, so that wither storm-centres or cold waves travel from the mountains to the sea in from two to five days, then passing off upon the cean, frequently taking a north caverly direction after reaching the crast. Sometimes a storm may be deflected from its course, or spend its force midway, or increase in severity, as it moves custward. It is these possibilities, together with the varying velocity of the wave, which render us dependent on the telegraph for its record of daily or even hourly progress, and which sometimes contradict the best founded predictions. But with all these possibilities of error, 80 to 90 per cent of the predictions are verified, and upon perhaps 75 per cent our reliance may be almost perfect. At times, either on land or see, a single warning may save properly to un amount greater than the whole annual expense of the boreau, to say nothing of life and comfort. Our weather then, in general terms, comes from the west, and when we read in the papers, that "an area of low pressure with heavy rain and severe gales is developing in the upper Mississippi, or upper Lake region," the farmer had better not begin his having or his harvesting, and the traveller had better not set out by way of the lakes or the ocean, until it has passed by. While in the fall or winter, you read that "an area of high pressure with violent winds and rapidly falling temperature is prevailing" in the same regions, the farmer had better look to his young stock, and make all anug about A se cellar and barn, and the traveler will do well to take his heaviest overcost .- Pror.
