Small-Pox.—Last week we stated that the cases of small-pox in the family of Henry Drumbo, of this place, were conventional, and that the house was being disinfected and would be released from quarantine; but on Saturday morning the fatal disease developed on the infant child (aged ten weeks)—too young to vaccinate—in a severe form, resulting in a renewal of the strict quarantine.

A child suffered until Tuesday evening when it died, and was buried in the cemetery at 4 o'clock on Wednesday morning. We are assured by Dr. Rober that at this writing there are no indications of a further spread of the disease; the other members of the family having been vaccinated when the disease first developed itself on the father. If our Council maintain a strict watch upon the premises, and deter children from playing in front of the building and older people from visiting there, until everything is thoroughly purified, we may conclude that the case is stamped out. While we sympathize with Mrs. Drumbo in her sad affliction, we must, on the part of our people, demand that everything in the power of our Council be done to prevent the spread of this disease.

Among the Mollies Again.—A heading despatched to the 18th inst., says a detective, belonging to Pinkerton's force and disguised as a tramp, was wandering about Millin, Schuylkill county, recently, about the premises of late week and, in an instant, a body was enveloped in flames and the unfortunate woman was soon burned to a crisp. The terrific affair created considerable excitement. It is supposed jealousy was the cause of the trouble.

Spikers from Penn Forest.

While John Baumgardner was loading lumber at Getz's saw mill, a few days ago one of his horses was taken with colic and died. The horse was only four years old, and was valued at $200.

Charles A. Baumgardner, of Emsus, Lehigh county, formerly of this township, was here on a visit one day last week, and on leaving took with him Franklin Yeager, to assist him in his distillery business.

Franklin Yeager, of Kresgeville, paid us a short visit last Monday.

Amos A. Hawk, of Emsus, Monroe county, has bought a 100 acre farm of Wm. Getz, Jr., for $100. There being no buildings on the place, he will immediately commence the erection of a very handsome 1 1/2-story Swiss cottage, large barn and other necessary buildings.

Joseph S. Hawk was on a trip to Lehigh county, looking for a location to establish a new distillery.

Henry J. Deppy is erecting a large 2-story frame dwelling house, 28 x 30 feet, with kitchen attached, 12 x 24 feet, to be occupied by his employees. H. G. Drippy has the contract for the work.

Henry J. Deppy, one of the leading lumber merchants of this township, starts next Monday for Birmingham, Ala., where he owns a large tract of iron ore land, he will also visit St. Louis, Missouri, Zanesville and Cincinnati, Ohio; he will be absent about six weeks, and during that time his oldest son, H. G., will conduct his business.

Mrs. G. Christian George who has been visiting friends and relatives in Monroe county, returned home last Monday much pleased with her trip.
